Paraliterary Merve Emre, 2017-11-14 Emre's intellectual moves are many subtle and a pleasure to follow None of her bad readers could have written this very good book Los Angeles Review of Books Literature departments tend to be focused on turning out good readers attentive to nuance aware of history interested in literary texts as self contained works But the majority of readers are to use Merve Emre's tongue in cheek term bad readers They read fiction and poetry to be moved distracted instructed improved engaged as citizens How should we think about those readers and what should we make of the structures well outside the academy that generate them We should Emre argues think of such readers not as non literary but as paraliterary thriving outside literary institutions She traces this phenomenon to the postwar period when literature played a key role in the rise of American power At the same time as American universities were producing good readers by the hundreds many more thousands of bad readers were learning elsewhere to be disciplined public communicators whether in diplomatic and ambassadorial missions private and public cultural exchange programs multinational corporations or global activist groups As we grapple with literature's diminished role in the public sphere Paraliterary suggests a new way to think about literature its audience and its potential one that looks at the civic institutions that have long engaged readers ignored by the academy Paraliterary does for reading what The Program Era did for writing profoundly upend what we thought we knew about how institutions other than the university have shaped our culture and our engagement with it Deborah Nelson University of Chicago

The Blackademic Life Lavelle Porter, 2019-10-15. The Blackademic Life critically examines academic fiction produced by black writers. Lavelle Porter evaluates the depiction of academic and campus life in literature as a space for black writers to produce counternarratives that celebrate black intelligence and argue for the importance of higher education, particularly in the humanistic tradition. Beginning with an examination of W. E. B. Du Bois's creative writing as the source of the first black academic novels, Porter looks at the fictional representations of black intellectual life and the expectations that are placed on faculty and students to be racial representatives and spokespersons, whether or not they ever intended to be. The final chapter examines black academics on stage and screen, including in the 2014 film Dear White People and the groundbreaking television series A Different World.

Coming Together Ryan Powell, 2019-07-15. In Coming Together, Ryan Powell captures the social and political vitality of the first wave of movies made by and for and about male desiring men in the United States between World War II and the 1980s. From the underground films of Kenneth Anger and the Gay Girls Riding Club to the gay liberation era hardcore films and domestic dramas of Joe Gage and James Bidgood, Powell illuminates how central filmmaking and exhibition were to gay socializing and worldmaking. Unearthing scores of films and a trove of film-related ephemera, Coming Together persuasively unsettles popular histories that center Stonewall as a ground zero for gay liberation and visibility. Powell asks how this generation of movie making, which defiantly challenged legal and cultural norms around sexuality and gender, provided and may still provide meaningful models for living. The Other Emerson Branka Arsić, Cary Wolfe, Stanley Cavell, Embodying Difference Simon Dickel, 2022-01-08. This book explores how phenomenological ideas about embodiment, perception, and lived experience are discussed within disability studies, critical race theory, and queer studies. Building on these disciplines, it offers readings of memoirs and novels that address the consequences of stigmatization and the bodily dimensions of social differences. The texts include Robert F. Murphy's The Body Silent, Simi Linton's My Body Politic, Rod Michalko's The Two in One, Walking with Smokie, Walking with Blindness, three memoirs by Stephen Kuusisto, Vincent O. Carter's The Bern Book, as well as two novels: Matthew Griffin's Hide and Armistead Maupin's Maybe the Moon. All of the texts discussed in this book negotiate the significance of bodily and perceptual habits, the influence of language and culture on embodiment, the importance of relationality and community, the severe effects of misrecognition, and the possibilities of emancipation and social recognition. Hence, they are read as pioneering contributions to the emerging field of critical phenomenology. Gender, Race, and American Science Fiction Jason Haslam, 2015-05-08. This book focuses on the interplay of gender, race, and their representation in American science fiction from the nineteenth century through to the twenty-first and across a number of forms, including literature and film. Haslam explores the reasons why SF provides such a rich medium for both the preservation of and challenges to dominant mythologies of gender and race Defining SF linguistically and culturally the study argues that this mode is not only able to illuminate the cultural and social histories of gender and race but so too can it intervene in those histories and highlight the ruptures present within them The volume moves between material history and the linguistic nature of SF fantasies from the specifics of race and gender at different points in American history to larger analyses of the socio cultural functions of such identity categories SF has already become central to discussions of humanity in the global capitalist age and is increasingly the focus of feminist and critical race studies in combining these earlier approaches this book goes further to demonstrate why SF must become central to our discussions of identity writ large of the possibilities and failings of the human past present and future Focusing on the interplay of whiteness and its various others in relation to competing gender constructs chapters analyze works by Nathaniel Hawthorne Mary E Bradley Lane Edgar Rice Burroughs Philip Francis Nowlan George S Schuyler and the Wachowskis Frank Herbert William Gibson and Octavia Butler Academics and students interested in the study of Science Fiction American literature and culture and Whiteness Studies as well as those engaged in critical gender and race studies will find this volume invaluable

Black Utopias Jayna Brown, 2021-01-11 In Black Utopias Jayna Brown takes up the concept of utopia as a way of exploring alternative states of being doing and imagining in Black culture Musical literary and mystic practices become utopian enclaves in which Black people engage in modes of creative worldmaking Brown explores the lives and work of Black women mystics Sojourner Truth and Rebecca Cox Jackson musicians Alice Coltrane and Sun Ra and the work of speculative fiction writers Samuel Delany and Octavia Butler as they decenter and destabilize the human radically refusing liberal humanist ideas of subjectivity and species Brown demonstrates that engaging in utopian practices Black subjects imagine and manifest new genres of existence and forms of collectivity For Brown utopia consists of those moments in the here and now when those excluded from the category human jump into other onto epistemological realms Black people untethered from the hope of rights recognition or redress celebrate themselves as elements in a cosmic effluvium

Extreme States Coco d'Hont, 2018-11-14 Transgressive fiction explores the crossing of boundaries Because of its extreme content and style it is often considered controversial However transgressive fiction is not just shocking or disruptive It is a continuation of an American tradition of creating culture through the crossing of moral geographical and social boundaries Extreme States traces the evolution of American transgressive fiction from the 1960s to 2000 exploring how transgressive fiction reflects exaggerates and critically interrogates how central American ideologies are perpetually re constructed in its extra textual context

In Search of Silence Samuel R. Delany, 2015-10-06 The renowned novelist and critic's private journals spanning from his years as a high school student in the Bronx to early adult life in San Francisco For fifty years Samuel Delany has cultivated a special relationship with language in works of fiction criticism and memoir that have garnered critical praise and legions of fans The present volume the first in a series reveals a new dimension of his genius In Search of Silence presents over a decade's worth of Delany's private journals commencing in 1957 when he was still a student at the Bronx High School of Science and ending in 1969 when he was living in San Francisco and on the verge of reconceiving the novel that would become Dhalgren. In these pages Delany muses on the writing of the stories that will establish him as a science fiction wunderkind, the early years of his marriage to the poet Marilyn Hacker, performances as a singer-songwriter during the heyday of the American folk revival, travels in Europe, experiences in a New York City commune, and much more, and crosses paths with artists working in many genres, including poets such as Robert Frost, W. H. Auden, and Marie Perle, and science fiction writers such as Arthur C. Clarke, Michael Moorcock, Roger Zelazny, and Joanna Russ. Delany scholar Kenneth R. James presents the journal entries alongside generous samplings of story outlines, poetry fragments, of novels and essays that have never seen publication, and more. James also provides biographical synopses and an extensive set of endnotes to supply contextual information and connect journal material to Delany's published work. This is a tremendously significant and vital addition to the oeuvre of Samuel R. Delany; it clarifies questions not only of the writer's process but also his development, to see in his juvenilia traces that take full form in his novels is literally breathtaking.

Matthew Cheney, author of Blood Stories, traversing Delany's youth, we see a precocious mind grappling with his own talent; he lives on two registers, participating in the world and also observing it, living simultaneously as a kid in NYC and a writer of genius. Robert Minto, New Republic, mesmerizing a true portrait of an artist as a young Black man already visible in these pages are the wit, sensitivity, penetration, playfulness, and the incandescent intelligence that will characterize Delany and his extraordinary work.

Junot Diaz, author of The Brief Wondrous Life of Oscar Wao. Modernist Crisis and the Pedagogy of Form Matthew Cheney, 2020-01-23. What is the role of the author in times of crisis? Modernist Crisis and the Pedagogy of Form examines how Virginia Woolf, Samuel R. Delany, and J. M. Coetzee developed literary strategies in common to cope with crisis periods they were anticipating, living through, or looking back on. Matthew Cheney outlines how the three writers shaped their art to create an author-audience relationship congruent with the goals of critical pedagogy espoused by such thinkers as Paulo Freire and bell hooks. Seeking to stimulate ethical thought, Woolf, Delany, and Coetzee required their readers to be active interpreters of their texts, forms, contents, and contexts. By pushing against fiction's fictionality, these writers of very different backgrounds, geographies, privileges, situations, tastes, and styles discovered complex ways to address the world wars in England, the AIDS crisis in New York, and apartheid in South Africa, going so far as to question the value of fiction itself.

Anarchism & Sexuality Jamie Heckert, Richard Cleminson, 2011-10-20. Anarchism, Sexuality, Ethics, Relationships, and Power brings the rich traditions of anarchist thought and practice to contemporary questions about the politics of sexuality.

The Individual and Utopia Clint Jones, Cameron Ellis, 2016-03-09 Central to the idea of a perfect society is the idea that communities must be strong and bound together with shared ideologies. However, while this may be true, rarely are the individuals that comprise a community given primacy of place as central to a strong communal theory. This volume moves away from the dominant current macro level theorising on the subject of identity and its relationship to and with globalising trends, focusing instead on the individual's relationship with utopia so as to offer new interpretive approaches for engaging with and examining utopian individuality. Interdisciplinary in scope and bringing together work from around the world, The Individual and Utopia enquires after the nature of the utopian as citizen, demonstrating the inherent value of making the individual central to utopian theorizing and highlighting the methodologies necessary for examining the utopian individual.

The various approaches employed reveal what it is to be an individual yoked by the idea of citizenship and challenge the ways that we have traditionally been taught to think of the individual as citizen. As such, it will appeal to scholars with interests in social theory, philosophy, literature, cultural studies, architecture, and feminist thought whose work intersects with political thought, utopian theorizing, or the study of humanity or human nature. Exploring the Limits of the Human through Science Fiction Gerald Alva Miller Jr., 2012-12-04 Through its engagement with different kinds of texts, Exploring the Limits of the Human through Science Fiction represents a new way of approaching both science fiction and critical theory and its uses both to question what it means to be human in the digital era. National Review's Literary Network Stephen Schryer, 2024-01-23 National Review's Literary Network traces the careers of novelists, journalists, and literary critics who wrote for William F. Buckley Jr.'s National Review. In the 1950s, the magazine sought to establish itself as a conservative alternative to liberal journals like Partisan Review. To do so, it needed a robust book review section featuring nationally recognized writers. Between the 1950s and the 1980s, Whittaker Chambers, John Dos Passos, Hugh Kenner, Guy Davenport, Joan Didion, Garry Wills, and D. Keith Mano wrote for the magazine. The magazine boosted their careers, and they in turn helped make Buckley's version of conservatism respectable. In the pages of National Review and elsewhere, these writers fashioned a body of literary work that takes up and refracts right-wing concerns about tradition, religion, and personal liberty. Uncovering a neglected part of post-World War II American literary history, Stephen Schryer highlights these writers' enduring impact on movement conservatism. Believing in the power of intellectuals, Buckley and his fellow editors argued that the academy, the media, and other institutions had been taken over by a liberal establishment that sought to impose its ideas on the nation. They wanted to establish a network of institutional counter-circuits staffed by conservatives. The magazine's literary intellectuals contributed to this effort, helping conservatives present themselves as a counter-elite sheltering traditional humanities-based knowledge within a technocratic welfare state. In so doing, they facilitated the magazine's assault on the very possibility of expertise, ushering in the fragmented epistemological landscape that has characterized the United States since the late 1960s.
