The Power of Entrepreneurs Mercedes Cabrera,Fernando del Rey Reguillo,2007 Although Spain is an important member of the EU relatively little is known about its economy and its interrelationship with political forces This book the first of its kind offers a long term view and analyzes this ever changing relationship throughout the 20th century with its various upheavals such as the crisis of the democratic republic and the civil war in the 1930s the long General Franco dictatorship from the 1940s until the 1970s and the subsequent transition to democracy From the detailed studies of individual cases specific companies as well as entrepreneurial organizations a very diverse picture emerges contradicting widespread simplistic interpretations of politico economic linkages which demonstrates both the pluralism of the economic interests as well as the complexity of their relationship to the political class Gender Inequalities and Development in Latin America During the Twentieth Century María Magdalena Camou,Silvana Maubrigades,Rosemary Thorp,2017-05-15 This book presents evidence of the evolution of the gender inequalities in Latin America during the twentieth century using basic indicators of human development namely education health and the labour market There are very few historical studies that centre on gender as the main analytical category in Latin America so this book breaks new ground Using case studies from

Argentina Chile Colombia Mexico and Uruguay the authors show that there is evidence of a correlation between economic growth and the decrease in gender inequality but this process is also not linear Although the activity rate of women was high at the beginning of the twentieth century female participation in the labour market diminished until the 1970s when it began to increase dramatically Since the 1970s fertility reduction and education improvements and worsening labour market conditions are associated to the steadily increase of women participation in the labour market By gauging the extent to which gender gaps in the formation of human capital access to resources quality of life and opportunities may have operated as a restriction on women s capabilities and on economic growth in the region this book demonstrates that Latin America has lagged behind in terms of gender equality

Politics of Agricultural Co-Operativism Tanya Korovkin, 2011-11-01 This book is a detailed analysis of the evolution of state sponsored agricultural co operativism in Peru an Andean country with high levels of land concentration and widespread rural poverty Most Peruvian agricultural co operatives were organized during the military populist government of Velasco Alvarado which after radical land reform transformed expropriated estates into co operatives From the start these projects became subject to multiple pressures that ranged from unfavourable government economic policies designed to promote import substitution industrialization at the expense of the agricultural sector to the growth of the co operative bureaucracy and the deterioration of labour discipline A shift toward market oriented economic strategies after the fall of the Velasco government aggravated the co operatives difficulties Stabilization programs implemented by Velasco's successor General Morales Bermudez and liberalization of the national economy by the civilian government of Belaúnde Terry dealt a severe blow to Peru's co operative agriculture The ensuing crisis gave rise to political mobilization against the market oriented economic policies. However the effectiveness of this movement was undermined by a trend toward dissolution of agricultural co-operatives by many members who turned to individual private agriculture as a solution. Korovkin examines not only the diverging responses of co-operative members to the crisis but also the external policy related and internal organizational causes behind it. The focus of this book is on the cotton growing sector that constituted the back bone of the state sponsored co-operative movement in Peru. The analysis of the national dynamic is complemented by case studies of three cotton estates converted into agricultural production co-operatives. One of these proved reasonably successful while the other two experienced serious economic difficulties looking for their solution in either political mobilization against the government's economic policies or in the shift to individual private agriculture. The comparative analysis of their experiences provides valuable insights into the nature of organizational problems confronting Peru's co-operative movement. Korovkin also places the discussion of the Peruvian co-operative experience in a broader historical and theoretical perspective focusing on the changing nature of social alliances and economic strategies during the populist and post populist periods.
