Hill, 2021-05-30 This book first published in 1986 argues that there is a special category of medium powers in the world such as Britain France India Brazil Japan China and others which have sufficient military power to do something to protect their interests but which are not a match for the superpowers It surveys the whole range of naval warfare equipment operations organisation and deployment and discusses how each item should be tailored by the recognition of the position of the medium power It considers alliances a key element for medium powers and explores how these should be handled and what use they may be expected to fulfil The book argues that the concept of medium power here developed thoroughly for the first time will be extremely useful to many countries in defining their strategic role in a purposeful way Reader's Guide to Military History Charles Messenger, 2013-10-31

This book contains some 600 entries on a range of topics from ancient Chinese warfare to late 20th century intervention operations. Designed for a wide variety of users, it encompasses general reviews of aspects of military organization and science as well as specific wars and conflicts. The book examines naval and air warfare as well as significant individuals including commanders, theorists, and war leaders. Each entry includes a listing of additional publications on the topic accompanied by an article discussing these publications with reference to their particular emphases, strengths, and limitations.

The Future: Warfare, military forces and technology, 1993 Naval Aviation News, 1997 All Possible Wars? Sam J. Tangredi, 2000. This survey is a product of the Quadrennial Defense Review QDR 2001 Working Group, a project of the Institute for National Strategic Studies at the National Defense University. Sponsored by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the working group is an independent, honest broker effort intended to build intellectual capital for the upcoming QDR. More specifically, it aims to frame issues, develop options, and provide insights for the Chairman, the services, and the next administration in three areas: defense strategy, criteria for sizing conventional forces, and force structure for 2005-2010. One of the group's initial tasks was to assess the future security environment to the year 2025. This was pursued by surveying the available literature to identify areas of consensus and debate. The goal was to conduct an assessment that would be far more comprehensive than any single research project or group effort could possibly produce. This survey documents major areas of agreement and disagreement across a range of studies completed since the last QDR in 1997. Because it distills a variety of sources and organizes and compares divergent views, this volume makes a unique contribution to the literature. It also provides a particularly strong set of insights and assumptions on which both strategists and force planners can draw in the next Quadrennial Defense Review. This survey does not claim to predict or illustrate all possible wars that America might face between now and the year 2025. Rather, it attempts through analysis of representative and reputable sources to incorporate the most likely characteristics of the future security environment into a single scenario while heightening our awareness of dissenting viewpoints and plausible wild cards.

Proceedings of the Technology and the Mine Problem Symposium
Albert M. Bottoms, Barbara Honegger, 1996 Arms Control At Sea J. Richard Hill, 2024-04-01. Originally published in 1989, this book reviews the history of maritime control measures from before the First World War and provides a critical examination of both the objectives of maritime power and the concepts of disarmament, peace zones, parity, verifiability, and peaceful co-existence. It argues that the objectives of maritime power are not necessarily incompatible with international security and that strategic deterrence can contribute to improved security. Limitation measures, it is argued, can in some cases be double-edged, endangering other security fields and having a destabilizing effect. The book stresses the need for non-absolute solutions in order to achieve a reasonable level of security and makes proposals for both structural and confidence-building measures along those lines.
