

Overall the merits of the book outweigh its inconsistencies. These are perhaps to be expected given the diversity of topics which Urry deals with in a relatively short space. In the course of developing his main arguments Urry provides critical discussion of, amongst others, Gramsci, Poulantzas, Hindess and Hirst, Althusser and the German State theorists, some of which are more useful than others. In some respects the book provides substantive illustrations of a number of the positions that Giddens established in his Central Problems in Social Theory. Both writers seek to overcome the division between functionalist or systems and action or interpretive approaches in either their Marxist or orthodox sociological versions. A number of Urry's examples of the interrelations of social practices and their unintended effects come close to the basic ideas in Giddens notion of the "duality of structure" and both writers in turn owe much to a realist epistemology in the form that this has recently been developed by Bhaskar. Finally although Weber is mentioned only in passing, his general sociological position is surely only a short step from the qualified relative autonomy model that Urry espouses.

OF MARRIAGE AND THE MARKET: WOMEN'S SUBORDINATION IN INTERNATIONAL PERSPECTIVE, edited by Kate Young, Carol Walkowitz and Roslyn McCullagh.
London: CSE Books, 1981. 202 pp. £4.95 (paper).

This collection of essays explores the connection between the continuous elements of gender hierarchy and economic relations. It is particularly concerned with the effect on women of changes taking place in third world countries as their economies are being transformed along capitalist or socialist paths. A central theme is that gender ascriptive relations (particularly marriage) are the fundamental sites of women's subordination and that these became further entrenched in other relations in which we are the bearers of gender. An example of the second is the sexual division of labour in the capitalist labour process. The authors give a great deal of attention to the household as the mediating institution between marriage and the market and to cross-cultural comparisons.

The writers share an ambivalent attitude to Marxism. Though dissatisfied with its capacity to explain gender relations, they attempt to use it in a residual way, to develop an analytical framework that goes beyond the standard feminist applications of exploitation, oppression or patriarchy. How successfully do they do this? One can appreciate their concern to avoid general assertions about the universality of male domination. Rather than treating each society as a variation on some timeless theme, they insist on the historical and cultural specificities of gender. But do the Marxist categories take us any further towards an understanding of male power? Most of the essays in this book concentrate on structural analysis. Gender hierarchy is seen as a product of wider social arrangements. Although there are some biting descriptions of

Of Marriage And The Market Womens Subordination In International Perspective:

Of Marriage and the Market Kate Young, Carol Wolkowitz, Roslyn McCullagh, 2023-07-05 Despite the vast difference between first and third world societies the subordination of women to men seems to be a universal fact Originally published in 1984 the chapters in this book look specifically at the marital bond contract and locate the subordination of women in terms of that contract Others examine the development and expansion of market relations and show how that affects marital relations husbands control over wives men s over women Feminist Knowledge (RLE Feminist Theory) Sneja Gunew, 2013-05-20 The minority feminist viewpoints have often been submerged in the interests of maintaining a mainstream universal model of feminism This anthology takes into account the various differences among women while looking at the important areas of feminist struggle While sisterhood is indeed global it certainly does not mean that all women are required to submerge their specific differences and assimilate to a universal model Consequently the collection includes essays by leaders in the field of post structuralist enquiry as well as by those immersed in the new spirituality and the social consequences of recent biological research Other essays reflect the political struggles which continue to be waged with different strategies by socialist and radical feminists and the self searching analyses undertaken by feminists uneasy about their inclusion within educational institutions and the radical new interpretations of sexuality within the cultural domain The collection begins with a critique of white mainstream feminism emanating from Aboriginal women in Australia The implications of the critique indicate that there is a pervasive racism within the feminist movement Gender & Social Protection Strategies in the Informal Economy Naila Kabeer, 2014-03-21 The vast majority of the world s working women particularly those from low income households in developing countries are located in the informal economy in activities that are casual poorly paid irregular and outside the remit of formal social security and protective legislation This book examines the constraints and barriers which continue to confine women to these forms of work and what this implies for their ability to provide for themselves and their families and to cope with insecurity It develops a framework of analysis that integrates gender life course and livelihoods perspectives in order to explore the interactions between gender inequality household poverty and labour market forces that help to produce gender differentiated experiences of risk and vulnerability for the working poor Drawing on practical experiences from the field It uses this framework to demonstrate the relevance of a gender analytical approach to the design and evaluation of a range of social protection measures that are relevant to women at different stages of their life course These include conditional and unconditional social transfers to reduce child labour and promote children s education child care support for working women financial services for the poor employment generation through public works and different measures for old age security The book stresses the importance of an organised voice for working women if they are to ensure that employers trade unions and governments respond to their need for socio economic security Finally the book synthesises the main lessons that emerge from the discussion and the linkages between social

Globalization is transforming the world at an accelerated pace Integration of the world continues widening and intensifying international linkages in economic political and social relations Liberalization of trade and finance lubricated by revolutionary changes in information technology has resulted in significant economic growth at the global level On the other hand the process of globalization is changing the nature of production relations threatening the traditional roles of the nation state and carrying with it far reaching implications for sustainable growth development and the environment Although both developed and developing countries are actively participating in this saga of globalization nearly ninety countries as the United Nations Human Development Report 1996 indicates are worse off economically than they were ten years ago leading to global polarization between haves and have nots The report further indicates that the gap between the per capita incomes of the industrialized world and the developing countries far from narrowing has more than tripled during the last thirty years Further a majority of the countries benefitting from this globalization drive have seen a rise in inequality and poverty This failure of market driven globalization to reward the benefits equitably led the United Nations to proclaim 1996 as the International Year for the Eradication of Poverty IYEP and the decade of 1997 2006 as the international decade for the eradication of poverty and to promote people centered sustainable development The Household Economy Richard R Wilk,2019-07-11 This book focuses on the economic decisions that must be made in the household It states that domestic activities are commonly grouped into two primary types one having to do with social reproduction the other with the production and consumption of foods Ending Violence Against Women Francine Pickup,Suzanne Williams,Caroline Sweetman,2001 8 Challenging the state Globalization, Export Orientated Employment and Social Policy S.

Razavi,R. Pearson,C. Danloy,2004-04-30 Gender and development theory and analysis is replete with implicit assumptions that women s entry into the world of paid work will positively affect their status both in the household and in the public sphere Until recently the debate on global factories and export production has remained focused on women s individual experience of export employment and the extent to which this represents a positive opportunity or gross exploitation In spite of the extended discussion of rights and citizenship in the global economy little attention has hitherto been paid to the implications for women s entitlements arising out of their pivotal role in export sectors Whilst many assume that women s visible and crucial presence in key economic sectors will be reflected in the ways in which social policies are formulated there has been up to now little empirical and analytical engagement with this question This volume bringing together
