

A Mother's Story

EndoSure, Inc. forwarded an enquiry from a lady in the Midlands, wanting to know if the EndoSure Test was available in the U.K. We made contact with the lady, who was a mother trying to find a diagnostic test for her young daughter, who she strongly suspected had endometriosis. We sent details of the EndoSure Test for the mother to discuss with their G.P. But she received a negative response. So, we arranged for the daughter to have the test and for David Griffiths, a respected gynaecologist in Swindon, to interpret the result. Mr. Griffiths confirmed and communicated a positive test for endometriosis, and consequently, the G.P. has initiated a treatment plan.

The EndoSure Test has facilitated a treatment pathway for this young lady, who, statistically, may have had to wait eight years for a diagnosis.

These are the words of the patient's mother:

My daughter started her periods at age 11 and progressively over the years her menstrual pain has been getting worse and worse, like she is confined to her bed for at least a couple of days. We had repeatedly been to the GP about this, but you always get dismissed and put on pills. They did send her for an ultrasound scan but that came back negative, but my daughter was still suffering so mum had to do some Dr Googling and research and that's how I came across EndoSure. When i contacted them through the site they were very quick with their response and told me that there was a trial happening but when we saw the GP about trying to get on the trial we got shot down and told there is no need to find out till my daughter wants to have children but you want to know what is causing this pain etc when I told EndoSure this they went above and beyond and let us have the test anyway. Beth was lovely and very professional, and the test only took around half an hour in total silence so it could read her body (which totally killed her no phone for 30 mins). As soon as we got the results which was a couple of days later, we booked a GP appointment and the GP did her research on EndoSure and said that the private sector is all over this and she was very thorough and explained everything and all of the options and we have been put on the waiting list for gynaecology. So now it's a waiting game but without EndoSure I am sure we would still be banging our heads up against a wall with the GP's."

Shaping Losses Julia Epstein, Lori Hope Lefkovitz, 2001 Shaping Losses explores how traumatic loss affects identity and how those who are shaped by loss give shape in turn to the empty place where something relationships family culture was and is no longer Taking the example of the decimation of European Jewry during the Nazi era Shaping Losses confronts the problem of transforming trauma into cultural memory This eloquent volume examines how memoirs films photographs art and literature as well as family conversations and personal remembrances embody the impulse to preserve what is destroyed The contributors all distinguished women scholars most of them survivors or daughters of survivors examine classic memorializations such as Claude Lanzmann s film Shoah and Roman Vishniac s photographs of prewar Jews as well as several less well known works They also address ways in which children of survivors of the Holocaust and of other catastrophic traumas struggle with inherited or vicarious memory striving to come to terms with losses that centrally define them although they experience them only indirectly Shaping Losses considers the limitations of Holocaust representations and testimonies that capture shards of the experience but are necessarily selective and reductive Contributors discuss artistic efforts to preserve the rawness of memory to resist redemptive closure in Holocaust narratives and public memorials and to prevent the Holocaust from being sealed in the cold storage of history The authors probe the nature of memory and of trauma studying the use of language within and outside a traumatic context such as Auschwitz and pinpointing the qualities that make traumatic memory ineffable untransmittable and perhaps unreliable Within the haunted terrain of traumatized memory that all Holocaust testimonies inhabit the impulse to give form to emptiness to shape loss emerges as a necessary betrayal a vital effort to bridge the gap between history and memory

The Geography of Memory Jeanne Murray Walker, 2013-09-03 Award winning poet Jeanne Murray Walker tells an extraordinarily wise witty and quietly wrenching tale of her mother's long passage into dementia This powerful story explores parental love profound grief and the unexpected consolation of memory While Walker does not flinch from the horrors of the ugly twins aging and death her eye for the apt image provides a window into unexpected joy and humor even during the darkest days This is a multi layered narrative of generations faith and friendship As Walker leans in to the task of caring for her mother their relationship unexpectedly deepens and becomes life giving Her mother's memory which more and more dwells in the distant past illuminates Walker's own childhood She rediscovers and begins to understand her own past as well as to enter more fully into her mother's final years The Geography of Memory is not only a personal journey made public in the most engaging funny and revealing way possible here is a story of redemption for anyone who is caring for or expecting to care for ill and aging parents and for all the rest of us as well by women writers that present women's experiences during and after the Spanish Civil War and Franco dictatorship highlighting the struggles of female protagonists of different ages to confront an unresolved individual and collective past. It discusses the different narrative models and strategies used in these works and the ways in which they engage with their political and historical context particularly in the light of campaigns for the so-called recovery of historical memory in Spain, the memory boom and in the broader context of memory and trauma studies. The novels that are examined in this book are Dulce Chacón's La voz dormida (2002), Rosa Regés's Luna lunera (1999), Josefina Aldecoa's La fuerza del destino (1997), Carme Riera's La mitad del alma (2005) and Almudena Grandes's El corazón helado (2007). These works all highlight the multiple nature of memories and histories and demonstrate the complex ways in which the past impacts on the present. This book also considers the extent to which the memories represented in these five novels are inflected by gender and informed by the gender politics of twentieth-century and contemporary Spain.

On History and Memory in Arab Literature and Western Poetics Bootheina Majoul, Yosra Amraoui, 2020-10-06. Texts act like receptacles for an ever-present remembered past or what the French philosopher Paul Ricœur calls the present representation of an absent thing. They might embody an efficient remedy to forgetting but could also become a vivid testimony for exorcised traumas. This volume focuses on Ricœur's phenomenology of memory, epistemology of history and hermeneutics of forgetting. A special emphasis is laid on the dissension between individual and collective institutional memory.

The Pages In Between Erin Einhorn, 2008-09-09. In a unique intensely moving memoir, Erin Einhorn finds the family in Poland who saved her mother from the Holocaust. But instead of a joyful reunion, Erin unearths a dispute that forces her to navigate the increasingly bitter crossroads between memory and truth. To a young newspaper reporter, it was the story of a lifetime: a Jewish infant born in the ghetto, saved from the Nazis by a Polish family, uprooted to Sweden after the war, repeatedly torn away from the people she knew as family, all to take a transatlantic journey with a father she'd barely known toward a new life in the United States. Who wouldn't want to tell that tale? Growing up in suburban Detroit, Erin Einhorn pestered her mother to share details about the tumultuous wartime childhood she'd experienced. I was always loved, was all her mother would say over and over again. But for Erin, that answer simply wasn't satisfactory. She boarded a plane to Poland with a singular mission: to uncover the truth of what happened to her mother and reunite the two families who once worked together to save a child. But when Erin finds Wiesław Skowronski, the elderly son of the woman who sheltered her mother, she discovers that her search will involve much more than just her mother's childhood. Sixty years prior, at the end of World War II, Wiesław Skowronski claimed that Erin's grandfather had offered the Skowronsks his family home in exchange for hiding his daughter. But for both families, the details were murky. If the promise was real, fulfilling it would be arduous and expensive. To unravel the truth and resolve the decades-old land dispute, Erin must search through centuries of dusty records and maneuver an outdated convoluted legal system. As she tries to help the Skowronski family, Erin must also confront the heart-wrenching circumstances of her family's tragic past while coping with unexpected events in her own life that will alter her mission completely Six decades after two families were brought together by history Erin is forced to separate the facts from the glimmers of fiction handed down in the stories of her ancestors In this extraordinarily intimate memoir journalist Erin Einhorn overcomes seemingly insurmountable barriers legal financial and emotional only to question her own motives and wonder how far she should go to right the wrongs of the past

Beyond Memory G. Uehling, 2004-11-26 In the early morning hours of May 18 1944 the Russian army under orders from Stalin deported the entire Crimean Tatar population from their historical homeland Given only fifteen minutes to gather their belongings they were herded into cattle cars bound for Soviet Central Asia Although the official Soviet record was cleansed of this affair and the name of their ethnic group was erased from all records and official documents Crimean Tatars did not assimilate with other groups or disappear This is an ethnographic study of the negotiation of social memory and the role this had in the growth of a national repatriation movement among the Crimean Tatars It examines the recollections of the Crimean Tatars the techniques by which they are produced and transmitted and the formation of a remarkably uniform social memory in light of their dispersion throughout Central Asia Through the lens of social memory the book covers not only the deportation and life in the diaspora but the process by which the children and grandchildren of the deportees returned and anchored themselves in the Crimean Peninsula a place they had never visited

Holocaust Graphic Narratives Victoria Aarons, 2019-12-19 In Holocaust Graphic Narratives Victoria Aarons demonstrates the range and fluidity of this richly figured genre Employing memory as her controlling trope Aarons analyzes the work of the graphic novelists and illustrators making clear how they extend the traumatic narrative of the Holocaust into the present and in doing so give voice to survival in the wake of unrecoverable loss In recreating moments of traumatic rupture dislocation and disequilibrium these graphic narratives contribute to the evolving field of Holocaust representation and establish a new canon of visual memory The intergenerational dialogue established by Aarons reading of these narratives speaks to the ongoing obligation to bear witness to the Holocaust Examined together these intergenerational works bridge the erosions created by time and distance As a genre of witnessing these graphic stories in retracing the traumatic tracks of memory inscribe the weight of history on generations that follow
