Wielding Words like Weapons Ward Churchill,2017-04-15 Wielding Words like Weapons is a collection of acclaimed American Indian Movement activist intellectual Ward Churchill's essays in indigenism selected from material written during the decade 1995-2005. It includes a range of formats from sharply framed book reviews and equally pointed polemics and op eds to more formal essays designed to reach both scholarly and popular audiences. The selection also represents the broad range of topics addressed in Churchill's scholarship including the fallacies of archeological and anthropological orthodoxy such as the insistence of cannibalologists that American Indians were traditionally man-eaters, Hollywood's cinematic degradations of native people, questions of American Indian identity, the historical and ongoing genocide of North America's native peoples and the systematic distortion of the political and legal history of U.S. Indian relations. Less typical of Churchill's oeuvre are the essays commemorating Cherokee anthropologist Robert K. Thomas and Yankton Sioux legal scholar and theologian Vine Deloria Jr. More unusual still is his profoundly personal effort to come to grips with the life and death of his late wife Leah Renae Kelly, thereby illuminating in very human terms the grim and lasting effects of Canada's residential schools upon the country's indigenous peoples. A foreword by Seneca historian Barbara Alice Mann describes the sustained efforts by police and intelligence agencies as well as university administrators and other academic adversaries to discredit or otherwise neutralize both the man and his work. Also included are both the initial stream of consciousness version of Churchill's famous or notorious little Eichmann's opinion piece analyzing the causes of the attacks on 9/11 as well as the counterpart essay in which his argument was fully developed. Maize Duccio Bonavia, 2013-05-13

This book examines one of the thorniest problems of ancient American archaeology: the origins and domestication of maize. Using a variety of scientific techniques, Duccio Bonavia explores the development of maize, its adaptation to varying climates, and its fundamental role in ancient American cultures. An appendix by Alexander Grobman provides the first ever comprehensive compilation of maize genetic data, correlating this data with the archaeological evidence presented throughout the book. This book provides a unique interpretation of questions of dating and evolution supported by extensive data following the spread of maize from South to North America and eventually to Europe and beyond. Children of Aataentsic Bruce G. Trigger, 1988-09-01. Trigger's work integrates insights from archaeology, history, ethnology, linguistics, and geography. This wide knowledge allows him to show that far from being a static prehistoric society quickly torn apart by European contact and the fur trade, almost every facet of Iroquoian culture had undergone significant change in the centuries preceding European contact. He argues convincingly that the European impact upon native cultures cannot be correctly assessed unless the nature and extent of precontact change is understood. His study not only stands Euro-American stereotypes and fictions on their heads but forcefully and consistently interprets European and Indian actions, thoughts, and motives from the perspective of the Huron culture. The Children of Aataentsic revises widely accepted interpretations of Indian behaviour and challenges cherished myths about the actions of some celebrated Europeans during the heroic age of Canadian history. In a new preface, Trigger describes and evaluates contemporary controversies over the ethnohistory of eastern Canada The Historical Ecology Handbook Dave Egan, Evelyn A.
