Short Term Visual Information Forgetting:

Short-term Visual Information Forgetting (PLE: Memory) A.H.C. van der Heijden, 2014-05-09 When this title was originally published in 1981 the information processing approach to perception and memory was dominant in experimental psychology and the research reported here had major implications for future development After exploring the shortcomings of earlier work in this field the author develops a new model which he shows to be capable of accounting for a variety of experimental data connected with human information processing visual perception and attention The central theme which is discussed is how we select relevant and discard irrelevant information The basic assumption is that all incoming information is identified that is it reaches and activates the appropriate lexical entries A piece of identified information is described as a unit consisting of three distinguishable codes a visual code a lexical or semantic code and a motor or action code Identified information decays fast so selective attention operates by selecting those units which have to be saved from this rapid decay In a sense therefore the human information processor is described as struggling against forgetting

A Theory of the Microdynamics of Occurrent Thought Herbert S. Demmin, 2015-08-13 A Theory of the Microdynamics of Occurrent Thought T2 is based on a reflective analysis of occurrent thoughts OTs in the spirit of phenomenological philosophy and proposes that such thoughts consist of a specific combination of ten or fewer micro phases possessing phenomenal contents that are so brief that most of us are unaware of their existence The theory specifies the movements of an operating I or central executive in as and among these phases in the service of processing their contents by fleetingly becoming them followed by one of several transitions of attention that bring about different degrees of their objectification The relatively fixed sequences of the phases of OTs along with an operating I's immersion in and face up or face down surfacing from their phenomenal contents form a structure that carries and drives on line cognition supporting the view that they play a causal role in human information processing Two categories two forms and fifteen different types of OTs are defined based on the transitions of an operating I therein This book includes detailed illustrations of the different types of OTs
