Northern Landscapes Daniel Nelson,2010-09-30 Alaska in the early 1950s was one of the world s last great undeveloped areas Yet sweeping changes were underway In 1958 Congress awarded the new state over 100 million acres to promote economic development In 1971 it gave Native groups more than 40 million acres to settle land claims and facilitate the building of an 800 mile oil pipeline Spurred by the newly militant environmental movement it also began to consider the preservation of Alaska s magnificent scenery and wildlife Northern Landscapes is an essential guide to Alaska s recent past and to contemporary local and national debates over the future of public lands and resources It is the first comprehensive examination of the campaign to preserve wild Alaska through the creation of a vast system of parks and wildlife refuges Drawing on archival sources and interviews Daniel Nelson traces disputes over resources alongside the politics of the Alaska statehood movement He provides in depth coverage of the growth of Alaskan environmental organizations their partnerships with national groups and their participation in political campaigns into the 1970s and after Engagingly written Northern Landscapes focuses on efforts to persuade public officials to recognize the value of Alaska s mountains forests and wildlife That activity culminated in the passage of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act ANILCA of 1980 which set aside more than 100 million acres doubling the size of the national park and wildlife refuge systems and tripling the size of the wilderness preservation system Arguably the single greatest triumph of environmentalism ANILCA also set the stage for continuing battles over the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and Alaska s national forests Let's Go Pacific Northwest

Whether your tastes turn to hiking the glaciers of Banff National Park or exploring the marble canyons of Oregon Caves National Monument all you need is adrenaline and Let's Go The Forest House Joelle Fraser, 2013-03-12 Following divorce Fraser resolves to stay in the small mountain town where her son's father lives but it soon proves too claustrophobic. She finds relief a world away in a small house up a winding road tucked so far into the forest one forgets it is technically still in town. It's in this small and remote forest house both buffered and enveloped by endless wilderness where she slowly rebuilds. The life she carves out for herself and son Dylan is harsh at times and lyrical at others. The physical landscape feeds her with its trees and animals, firewood, barbed wire and rugged unforgiving demands while her internal self brims over with favorite passages culled from beloved books and also with immense guilt about pulling her son into the confusing and messy reality of divorce. Of course it is complicated reflection as our lives often are. No moment of reveling goes unpunished by self reproach. How dare she be happy for the quiet afforded her when Dylan is with his dad? Is it okay to be happy? Shouldn't she be sadder? And her past is not past at all. Her history and the history of her family are very much alive in her and memories crop up unbidden providing hints of explanation that both prop her up and damn her. It is when all these gremlins hound her that she turns to what is outside her door. This is a literary gem for anyone who has navigated the treacherous waters of loss and rebuilt a life for those who love an expanse of sky and for those who carry books in their mind Subject Guide to Children's Books in Print 1997 Bowker Editorial Staff, R R Bowker Publishing, 1996-09 Recent Transportation Literature for Planning and Engineering Librarians University of California, Berkeley.
