Literature-based Instruction with English Language Learners, K-12 Nancy L. Hadaway, Sylvia M. Vardell, Terrell A. Young, 2002 This book takes a literature based approach to how children learn language and how it is taught in today's diverse K-12 classrooms. The material is based on the belief that literature offers the most effective instructional approach for English language learners. The book offers meaningful reading, writing, speaking, and listening activities as well as new understandings about the forms and functions of written language. This is the first book that offers instructors guidance in expanding the range of materials they use for teaching ESL by going beyond the standard texts to include books of all kinds: children's literature, trade books, magazines, and other media. Voices from the Classroom: Scenarios from K-12 classrooms with English language learners are provided throughout the chapters, offering practical stories from teachers' points of view. K-12 Educators with diverse student populations

Sharing the Journey Katherine Ball Ross, 2007 A timeless collection of memoirs culled from the pages of Victoria magazine by some of the finest women writers around. Such distinguished authors as Diane Ackerman, Jane Howard, Perri Klass, Madeleine L. Engle, Susan Minot, Francine Prose, Carol Shields, and Jane Smiley have contributed to these pages, and their emotionally rich, lovingly crafted essays embrace all phases of a woman's life as well as literature and the process of writing itself. The topics so insightfully and often poignantly explored include childhood, motherhood, solitude, rituals, home, sisters, and remembering the past. From Phyllis Theroux's memories of her convent education to Susan Schneider's thoughts on living in A Gently Haunted House, each piece will touch your heart, mind, and soul.

For Younger Readers, 2000 Investigating Science - Weather and Climate Michael Foster, 2000-09 Investigate essential science concepts with fun, easy-to-implement, hands-on activities designed to support the National Science Education Standards. You'll find plenty of creative ideas and reproducibles to enhance your curriculum, grab your students' attention, and make science connections to everyday life. A wide range of activities promote scientific inquiry and connect science with other areas of the curriculum, such as math, writing, and art. Investigating science has never been more fun. Each unit contains step-by-step instructions, clearly defined objectives and skills, background information for the teacher, engaging reproducibles, and a valuable resource booklist.

A Hundred And Seventy Chinese Poems Various, A Hundred And Seventy Chinese Poems Certain elements are found but in varying degree in all human speech. It is difficult to conceive of a language in which rhyme, stress, accent, and tone accent would not to some extent occur. In all languages, some vowel sounds are shorter than others, and in certain cases, two consecutive words begin with the same sound. Other such characteristics could be enumerated, but for the purposes of poetry, it is these elements which man has principally exploited. English poetry has used chiefly rhyme, stress, and alliteration. It is doubtful if tone has ever played a part; a conscious use has sporadically been made of quantity. Poetry naturally utilizes the most marked and definite characteristics of the language in which it is written. Such characteristics are used consciously by the poet, but less important elements also play their part, often only in a negative way.

Thus the Japanese actually avoid rhyme the Greeks did not exploit it but seem to have tolerated it when it occurred accidentally The expedients consciously used by the Chinese before the sixth century were rhyme and length of line A third element inherent in the language was not exploited before that date but must always have been a factor in instinctive considerations of euphony This element was tone Chinese prosody distinguishes between two tones a flat and a deflected In the first the syllable is enunciated in a level manner the voice neither rises nor sinks In the second it 1 rises 2 sinks 3 is abruptly arrested These varieties make up the Four Tones of Classical Chinese The deflected tones are distinctly more emphatic and so have a faint analogy to our stressed syllables They are also in an even more remote way analogous to the long vowels of Latin prosody A line ending with a level has consequently to some extent the effect of a feminine ending Certain causes which I need not specify here led to an increasing importance of tone in the Chinese language from the fifth century onwards It was natural that this change should be reflected in Chinese prosody A certain Sh n Yo a d 441 513 first propounded the laws of tone succession in poetry From that time till the eighth century the L shih or strictly regulated poem gradually evolved But poets continued and continue till to day side by side with their l shih to write in the old metre which disregards tone calling such poems Ku shih old poems Previous European statements about Chinese prosody should be accepted with great caution Writers have attempted to define the l shih with far too great precision
