Reinventing Work Martin Reeves,Deborah Lovich,2024-10-21 Organizations often declare that their biggest asset is their people As such business leaders make constant efforts to hire the best talent and to get the best out of their workers But a confluence of forces is reshaping all aspects of talent management A war for talent rages and will be exacerbated in the long term by demographic aging the half life of skills is decreasing as AI powers more parts of business workflows flexible and hybrid work models are becoming commonplace and management methods focused on measurement and efficiency are not sufficient for engaging a purpose seeking generation In these turbulent times CEOs and their entire teams not just HR need to rethink how they can create a people advantage going beyond traditional approaches to organization performance management and compensation This book a collection of recent essays written by researchers at the BCG Henderson Institute Boston Consulting Group s think tank aims to help leaders to reinvent work by providing a forward looking perspective on all aspects of talent management Across five chapters the book discusses How to attract the talent of the future How to shape the workforce in an evolving context How to embrace new models of work How to build the workplace of the future How to establish new models of leadership and culture By providing a combination of new ideas real world examples and concrete recommendations Reinventing Work serves as a guide for leaders to effectively navigate the changing nature of work

The Accelerating Transport Innovation Revolution George Giannopoulos,John F. Munro,2019-04-17 The Accelerating Transport Innovation Revolution A Global Case Study based Assessment of Current Experience Cross sectorial Effects and Socioeconomic Transformations offers a comprehensive view of current state of the art and practices around the world to create innovation on a revolutionary scale and connect research to commercial exploitation of its results It offers a fascinating new model of the innovation process based on theories of biological ecosystems general systems theory and basins of attraction represented through space time graphs well known in mathematics Furthermore it considers through a number of dedicated chapters key issues and elements of innovation ecosystems such as Causal Factors and system constraints affecting the development and sustainability of innovation ecosystems Chapter 4 Review of innovation organization and governance in key countries and regions Chapter 5 the role of technological Spillovers Chapter 6 Collection and use of data for innovation monitoring and benchmarking Chapter 7 Intellectual Property protection between competing ecosystems Chapter 8 Economics of innovation Chapter 9 Public and private sector involvement in Transport innovation creation Chapter 10 the role of the individual entrepreneur innovator in energizing change Chapter 11 Finally in Chapter 12 there is a thorough summary of key findings This book uses a paradigmatic approach to augment the innovation ecosystem model of innovation that integrates beliefs and learning into the innovation ecosystems model It therefore includes ten case studies from the U S Europe and Asia detailing how innovation is created across continents and different ecosystems and what are the critical lessons to be learned It does this effectively at five different levels of analysis i e the individual innovator entrepreneur level the organization level government agency or company the regional ecosystem level the nation state level and the global systemic or international level Each level of analysis reveals unique features of the innovation landscape and the ten case studies allow the reader to assess when and where specific enablers are facilitating innovation especially on a revolutionary scale The need for the book came from the realization that despite the billions of dollars spent on various research programs over the past 20 years especially in the public sector there have been few clear and tangible efforts directed at exploring how innovation production increasingly occurs and the critical factors necessary to sustain large scale revolutionary change as the future unfolds Thus a primary theme of the book is that understanding how research results translate into market innovation and implementation especially understanding the nature of revolutionary innovation is as important as the creation of innovations themselves While the focus of the book is on Transportation the concepts and recommendations presented apply to other fields too

Innovation Communities Klaus Fichter, Severin Beucker, 2012-01-03 Self organising networks have become the dominant innovators of complex technologies and radical innovation The growing need for co operation to ensure innovation success calls for a broader understanding of what makes innovation projects successful and requires new concepts The book introduces the new concept of innovation communities defining them as informal networks of like minded individuals who act as innovation promoters or champions These key figures come from various companies and organisations and will team up in a project related fashion jointly promoting a certain innovation product or idea either on one or across different levels of an innovation system The publication presents findings from surveys that demonstrate that networks of champions are a success factor in radical innovation Five case studies of noteworthy innovation projects illustrate why the collaboration of champions can make innovation projects more successful Furthermore the book presents hands on methods and includes best practice cases and guidelines on how to develop innovation communities This publication comprises empirical findings and practical experiences that are valuable for the following groups in particular Entrepreneurs Innovation R Innovation and strategy consultants Innovation and start up intermediaries Innovation researchers Government officials and politicians responsible for R D and innovation programmes and funding

Gender Intentional Crop Breeding: From Integration To Institutional Innovation Hale Tufan, Vivian Polar, Jacqueline Ashby, 2025-06-02 Significant progress in agricultural technology development has remained persistently blind to social and gender inequalities Creating agricultural research ecosystems and institutions that address gender inequality requires structural and systemic analysis One of the major areas of investment in agricultural innovation is plant breeding Integrating social welfare objectives in plant breeding is a good starting point to catalyze progress towards gender equality objectives in research for development at a global scale yet devoid of structural change these efforts risk falling short of expectations Intentionally addressing gender in plant breeding research can reshape the technical options goals and intended impact of breeding programs Improving the benefits delivered to rural women through plant breeding can be achieved through new methods and learning critically analyzing systematic barriers to equitable plant breeding research and documenting experiences that demonstrate positive change There is a wide diversity of global experiences where gender research has analyzed how gender differences influence needs preferences and potential benefits from crop varieties and crop specific traits Some of these experiences were able to successfully integrate results and learning from gender research into breeding processes and decisions while some have failed to demonstrate concrete actionable results in breeding programs

countries around the world are investing a great amount of resources in government IT initiatives. However, few of these projects achieve their stated goals and some of them are complete failures. Therefore, understanding e government success has become very important and urgent in recent years. In order to develop relevant knowledge about this complex phenomenon, researchers and practitioners need to identify and assess what are the main conditions, variables, or factors that have an impact on e government success. However, before being able to evaluate these impacts, it is necessary to define what e government success is and what some e government success measures are. This book presents a review of both e government success measures and e government success factors. It also provides empirical evidence from quantitative analysis and two in depth case studies. Although based on sound theory and rigorous empirical analysis, the book not only significantly contributes to academic knowledge but also includes some practical recommendations for government officials and public managers. Theoretically, the book proposes a way to quantitatively operationalize Fountain's enactment framework. Based on the institutional tradition, the technology enactment framework attempts to explain the effects of organizational forms and institutional arrangements on the information technology used by government agencies. According to Fountain (1995, 2001), the technology enactment framework pays attention to the relationships among information technology, organizations, embeddedness, and institutions. This framework is very well known in the e government field but is normally used for qualitative analysis and there is no previous proposal of how to use it with quantitative data. The book proposes variables to measure each of the different constructs in this framework and also tests the relationships hypothesized by Fountain's theory. Finally, using the advantages of the selected quantitative analysis technique, Partial Least Squares, the study also proposes some adjustments and extensions to the original framework in a theory building effort. Methodologically, the book reports on one of the first multi method studies in the field of e government in general and e government success in particular. This study uses a nested research design which combines statistical analysis with two in depth case studies. The study begins with a statistical analysis using organizational, institutional, and contextual factors as the independent variables. An overall score representing e government success in terms of the functionality of state websites is the dependent variable. Second, based on the statistical results, two cases are selected based on their relative fitness to the model residuals and their position in the general ranking of website functionality, which includes four different measures. In order to complement the results of the statistical analysis, case studies were developed for the two selected states, New York and Indiana, using semi structured interviews and document analysis. In terms of the statistical analysis, the book constitutes one of the first applications of Partial Least Squares (PLS) to an e government success study. PLS is a structural equations modeling (SEM) technique and therefore allows estimating the measurement model and the structural model simultaneously. The use of this sophisticated statistical strategy helped to test the relationships between e government success and different factors influencing it, as well as some of the relationships between several of the factors, thus allowing exploring some indirect effects.
