

FROM THE DIRECTOR OF
INDEPENDENCE DAY AND STARGATE

A movie poster for the film 'Making Contact'. The scene is set inside a dark wooden closet. A young boy with dark hair, wearing a blue t-shirt and dark pants, is seen from the back, reaching out with both hands towards a bright, glowing blue figure. The figure has a large, cartoonish head with wide eyes and a mustache, and a blue, cylindrical body. Bright white lightning bolts emanate from the figure. Various objects are floating or falling around them: a skateboard at the top, a portable cassette player on the left, a soccer ball on the right, a tennis racket, a pair of sneakers, and a portable CD player at the bottom. The floor of the closet is covered with a layer of gold coins. The overall lighting is a mix of the cool blue from the alien figure and the warm orange from the gold coins.

Education I have used Seidman's text with great success with graduate students new to qualitative research. Its complex yet readable treatment is an essential part of the toolbox for both novice and experienced qualitative interviewers. Mark R. Warren, Associate Professor of Public Policy and Public Affairs, University of Massachusetts Boston. This is a thoughtful and well-written introduction to the topic. I assign it in multiple undergraduate and graduate classes I teach. The chapter on interview technique is particularly helpful, giving students useful advice on topics like how to avoid asking leading questions. Highly recommended. Amy Bruckman, College of Computing, Georgia Institute of Technology. Now in its fourth edition, this popular book provides clear step-by-step guidance for new and experienced interviewers to develop, shape, and reflect on interviewing as a qualitative research process. Using concrete examples of interviewing techniques to illustrate the issues under discussion, this classic text helps readers understand the complexities of interviewing and its connections to broader issues of qualitative research. The text includes principles and methods that can be adapted to a range of interviewing approaches. Appropriate for individual and classroom use, the new edition has been completely updated and expanded to include important new material on ethical issues, long-distance interviewing, computer-assisted data analysis, and more.
