Making a Living in Crafts Donald A. Clark, 2006 Kuna Crafts, Gender, and the Global Economy Karin E. Tice, 2010-01-01. Brightly colored and intricately designed molas have become popular with buyers across the United States, Europe, and Japan, many of whom have never heard of the San Blas Kuna of Panama, who make the fabric pictures that adorn the clothing, wall hangings, and other goods we buy. In this study, Karin Tice explores the impact of the commercialization of mola production on Kuna society, one of the most important yet least studied social changes to occur in San Blas in this century. She argues that far from being a cohesive force, commercialization has resulted in social differentiation between the genders and among Kuna women residing in different parts of the region. She also situates this political-economic history within a larger global context of international trade, political intrigue, and ethnic tourism to offer insights concerning commercial craft production that apply far beyond the Kuna case. These findings, based on extensive ethnographic field research, constitute important reading for scholars and students of anthropology, women's studies, and economics. They also offer an indigenous perspective on the twentieth-century version of Columbus's landing, the arrival of a cruise ship bearing wealthy souvenir-seeking tourists.

Mindful Crafts as Therapy Cynthia Evetts, Suzanne Peloquin, 2017-04-28. Arts and crafts were one of the very first therapies employed by occupational therapists. Today, crafts are still employed as effective interventions for clients with mental health disorders, physical dysfunctions, cognitive issues, and sensory concerns in hospitals, outpatient clinics, veterans' centers, schools, skilled nursing facilities, or community settings. Step by step, the authors show you how to use a wide range of novel and highly engaging crafts. They explain how to connect the key tasks associated with an activity to functional outcomes and how to modify them to meet the specific needs of individual patients. They also address the issues of documentation and reimbursement.

Paper Crafts Workshop Marie Browning, 2007. Crafts involving paper manipulation, like collages, quilling, paper tole, and chigiri-e, to create many projects.
