Wilschut,2009-04-01 As educators in the United States and Europe develop national history standards for K 12 students the question of what to do with national history canons is a subject of growing concern Should national canons still be the foundation for the teaching of history Do national canons develop citizenship or should they be modified to accommodate the new realities of globalization Or should they even be discarded outright These questions become blurred by the debates over preserving national heritages by so called history wars or culture wars and by debates over which pedagogical frameworks to use These canon and pedagogical debates often overlap creating even more confusion A misconceived skills vs content debate often results Teaching students to think chronologically and historically is not the same as teaching a national heritage or a cosmopolitan outlook But what exactly is the difference Policy makers and opinion leaders often confuse the pedagogical desirability of using a framework for studying history with their own efforts to reaffirm the centrality of national identity rooted in a vision of their nation s history as a way of inculcating citizenship and patriotism These are the issues discussed in this volume Today s students are citizens of the world and must be taught to think in global supranational terms At the same time the traditionalists have a point when they argue that the ideal of the nation state is the cultural glue that has traditionally held society together and that social cohesion depends on creating and inculcating a common national culture in the schools From an educational perspective the problem is how to teach chronological thinking at all How are we to reconcile the social political and intellectual realities of a globalizing world with the continuing need for individuals to function locally as citizens of a nation state who share a common past a common culture and a common political destiny Is it a duty of history education to create a frame of reference and if so what kind of frame of reference should this be How does frame of reference knowledge relate to canonical knowledge and the body of knowledge of history as a whole A Social Dreaming Experience at the Time of COVID 19 Elisabetta Pasini,Cinzia Trimboli,2023-11-07 The book describes the experience of four Social Dreaming Matrices held online between March and May 2020 during the first lockdown caused by the Covid 19 emergency The pandemic isolated us and imposed prolonged contact with ourselves and our solitary thoughts Against this backdrop there was hope for change a desire for a different kind of sociability and different forms of intimacy On the basis of this evidence our research supports the shift from experiencing trauma to reacting to trauma looking at a collective traumatic experience not only as something to be overcome but as an opportunity for a transformation that changes our mental schemes in relation to the external context We have identified Social Dreaming as a privileged technique to overcome a collective traumatic experience supporting its elaboration through collective feelings new connections between intuition and rational thought the discovery of community meanings The authors s thesis is that the much needed transition from magical thinking to transformative thinking takes place in a setting that is able to contain the anxieties of life s transitional phases supporting the creation of new rituals and new social bonds and sustaining the passage from me to a wider we Medicine Through the Ages Peter Mantin,Richard Pulley,1997 Key History for GCSE offers a cost effective
