Metropolitan Problems Ibues Confronting New York And Tokyo:

Metropolitan Problems Tōkyō Shisei Chōsakai, 1992 Metropolitan Problems S. Miles, 2013-05-13

Metropolitan Problems is the end product of one of the most dynamic research programmes of its kind ever conceived and executed. The book, which took three years to complete, represents the culmination of a two-year study that was highlighted by a conference held in Toronto in 1967. In the early 1960s, the Bureau of Municipal Research in Metropolitan Toronto decided that a significant way for it to celebrate Canada's centennial would be to initiate a systematic international study of the world's metropolitan areas. The study, with the official cooperation of the United Nations, was designed to produce positive insights into the methods of coping with the interlocking sets of problems associated with the expansion of the modern metropolis. Twelve papers on various aspects of metropolitan problems were commissioned from an international body of experts. Working with these experts were study groups drawn from forty major metropolitan centres throughout the world. After making exhaustive studies of their respective urban centres, the groups reported their findings and submitted detailed briefs through their representatives at the conference. Throughout the symposium, a conscious effort was made to examine single aspects of social, economic, and physical change within the overall perspective of the metropolis. The book reflects this approach. Each chapter directs attention to specific problems of the metropolis, problems resulting from the contradiction between accelerating technology and our ability to cope with the incredible pace and rate of change. Together, they prove that despite differences in technology, culture, and political and social matters, the major urban areas of the world do have much in common. Emerging tendencies can be analysed, and corrective and preventative measures can be made through comparative analysis. This book was first published in 1970.

Scaling Urban Environmental Challenges Peter J. Marcotullio, Gordon McGranahan, 2012-06-25

Think globally, act locally emphasizes the importance of scale in dealing with environmental challenges, but not how to factor it in. This major new book focuses on the spatial dimensions of urban environmental burdens, showing how important it is to take these into account when pursuing environmental justice and good governance, whether in the context of the sanitary risks of slum living, the pollution of uncontrolled industrialization and motorization, or the enormous ecological footprints of affluent urban lifestyles. Written by leading experts in the fields of urban development and environmental planning, the book reviews the urban environmental shifts that have shaped today's challenges and examines conditions and problems in the urban centres of low, middle, and high income countries. Case studies address such economically diverse cities as Accra, New Delhi, Mexico City, and Manchester, while thematic chapters explore issues including water, sanitation, and transportation. The book concludes by exploring and analysing different scales of governance. The editors argue that we should not rely solely on local governance to address local burdens like poor sanitation, nor depend only on global governance for global challenges such as greenhouse gas emissions, but that scale is crucial in both understanding the problems and devising successful responses. Urban Development Challenges,

Risks and Resilience in Asian Mega Cities R.B. Singh, 2014-10-16 In this book an interdisciplinary research group of faculty members researchers professionals and planners contributed to an understanding of the dynamics and dimensions of emerging challenges and risks in megacities in the rapidly changing urban environments in Asia and examined emerging resilience themes from the point of view of sustainability and public policy The world's urban population in 2009 was approximately 3.4 billion and Asia's urban population was about 1.72 billion Between 2010 and 2020 411 million people will be added to Asian cities 60 % of the growth in the world's urban population By 2020 of the world's urban population of 4.2 billion approximately 2.2 billion will be in Asia China and India will contribute 31.3 % of the total world urban population by 2025 Developing Asia's projected global share of CO2 emissions for energy consumption will increase from 30 % in 2006 to 43 % by 2030 City regions serve as magnets for people enterprise and culture but with urbanisation the worst form of visible poverty becomes prominent The Asian region with a slum population of an estimated 505.5 million people remains host to over half of the world's slum population The book provides information on a comprehensive range of environmental threats faced by the inhabitants of megacities It also offers a wide and multidisciplinary group of case studies from rapidly growing megacities with populations of more than 5 million from developed and developing countries of Asia

Metropolitan Economic Development Alejandra Trejo Nieto, José L. Niño-Amézquita, 2019-08-28 Metropolitan areas are home to a significant proportion of the world's population and its economic output Taking Mexico as a case study and weaving in comparisons from Latin America and developed countries this book explores current trends and policy issues around urbanisation metropolisation economic development and city region governance Despite their fundamental economic relevance the analysis and monitoring of metropolitan economies in Mexico and other countries in the Global South under a comparative perspective are relatively scarce This volume contains empirical analysis based on comparative perspectives with relation to international experiences It will be of interest to advanced students researchers and policymakers in urban policy urban economics regional studies economic geography and Latin American studies

Globalization and Urban Development Harry W. Richardson, Chang-Hee C. Bae, 2006-03-30 Most research on globalization has focused on macroeconomic and economy wide consequences This book explores an under researched area the impacts of globalization on cities and national urban hierarchies especially but not solely in developing countries Most of the globalization urban research has concentrated on the global cities e g New York London Paris Tokyo that influence what happens in the rest of the world In contrast this research looks at the cities at the receiving end of the forces of globalization The general finding is that large cities on balance benefit from globalization although in some cases at the expense of widening spatial inequities

Governing Urban Indonesia Edward Aspinall, Amalinda Savirani, 2024-08-28 Indonesia has become a majority urban society Despite the classic images of rice fields volcanoes and rural life we often associate with the country now almost 60 per cent of Indonesia s people live in cities towns suburbs gated communities and other urban areas Urbanisation has brought with it a familiar range of problems including some of the worst traffic jams and air pollution in the world housing scarcity periodic flooding and dramatic land subsidence These problems pose massive challenges to Indonesian governments as they try to provide clean water public transport housing garbage disposal and other services to urban dwellers Governing Urban Indonesia brings together scholars and practitioners with diverse backgrounds to examine how urbanisation is remaking Indonesia and how governments are responding It focuses on how varied political patterns are shaping urban governance enabling some cities to pioneer improved service delivery and better public amenities for their citizens while others stagnate And it brings to bear multiple perspectives on how historical legacies changing residential patterns social inequality and myriad other factors are combining to produce a new social and political landscape across urban Indonesia
