Abstract. The unemployment rate declines as a result of a lack of income and assets to meet basic needs such as food, clothing, housing, good health, and education. This cannot be done separately from the issues of unemployment, education, health and other issues explicitly related to the problem of poverty. The study aims to analyze economic growth, the Regional Minimum Wage (UMR), and unemployment rate inflation in Brebes County. Quantitative approaches are used in this research. Secondary data was obtained from the Central Statistics Agency (BPS), journals, and books on economic growth, UMR, and inflation data in Brebes Regency. Sampling is done by a stratified random sampling system, by first making a classification or grouping of residents according to certain characteristics. The secondary data used is annual data from BPS Brebes Regency in percent in the form of time-series data from 2010 to 2020. The technique used in this study is descriptive analysis with a quantitative approach. According to the findings of the analysis, economic growth does not have a significant impact on the unemployment rate; the magnitude of UMR does not have a significant impact on the unemployment rate; and the magnitude of UMR does not have a significant impact on the unemployment rate. The magnitude of influence of 24.60% and the remaining 75.40% was affected by variables not included in the regression equation or unexplored variables.

1 Introduction

Unemployment can be described as a situation where there is a transfer of a number of factors of labour to other fields which will not reduce the overall output of the sector of the origin or it is said that the marginal productivity of the units of the factor of labour in which they work is zero or close to zero or also negative [1]. This unemployment occurs because there are those who have not got a job even though they have tried their best and there are also those who are lazy to find work or are lazy to work [2]. Regional Wage Inflation and Unemployment Ron L. Martin, 1981 Regional Industrial Analysis and Development Geoffrey J. D. Hewings, 2017-09-05 Originally published in 1977 This book provides an introduction to some of the more important techniques of regional analysis techniques derived from geographical regional economic and regional science theory and describes the way some of these techniques have been applied in the identification of problems development of strategy and evaluation of regional programmes The theory and applications of methods of regional analysis are integrated with the use of examples taken from the USA the UK and Canada The author introduces the problems which are encountered in the field of regional analysis describes some of the analytical tools beginning with the fundamental model of the economic base approach and then examines regional flows and the applicability of international trade theory to interregional trade Considering the shortcomings of the aggregated base approach input output analysis is also examined The Economics of Non-Wage Labour Costs (Routledge Revivals) Bob Hart, 2010-07-19 Throughout the OECD 30% of the average firm's total labour costs comprises items which are other than direct remuneration This reissue first published in 1984 focuses upon these non wage labour costs which include fringe benefit payments obligatory social welfare contributions holiday entitlements and expenditures on recruitment and training seeking to make amends for the woeful lack of consideration given to these important factors in previous wage literature The book focuses on two major areas of enquiry firstly the costs for the cyclical behaviour of employment and secondly the role of average working hours per employee in the firm's overall allocation of labour services The author begins with an empirical survey and costs breakdown followed by extensive data on Japan the UK the USA and West Germany The ensuing analysis considers the question as to why firms incur the various non wages and a comparative static factor demand model is constructed which accommodates the major cost items Regional Economic Problems A. J. Brown, E. M. Burrows, 2017-08-25 Originally published in 1977 This book provides the first concise non technical account of what the main kinds of regional problems are how they arise and the kinds of policy which have been used to tackle them in the UK USA and Western Europe The book starts with a discussion of why regional problems really are situations which call for special action followed by a short preliminary classification of problem regions including those in the less developed countries then on to a more detailed survey of the origins and experience of selected problem regions in the more developed market economies The authors focus on four broad kinds of problem region agricultural regions coal mining regions old textile regions and so called congested regions They conclude with a selective survey of regional policies in these more advanced economies distinguishing and comparing the main trends and the different national styles Regional Economic Policy and Its Analysis Harvey Armstrong, Jim Taylor, 1978 Regional Science David Boyce, Peter Nijkamp, Daniel Shefer, 2012-12-06 Regional science as an integrating discipline for many scientific analyses concerning the element of space has a remarkable record of achievements in both breadth and depth The great many scientific journals in this field and the large number of regional science books mirror the appeal of this discipline in both the developed and the developing world. The scientific organization in this area, the Regional Science Association International, is organizing a world conference every four years. The 1989 Regional Science World Conference was held in an interesting setting viz kibbutz Ramat Rachel on the outskirts of Jerusalem. The organization of this meeting was undertaken by the Israeli Section of the Regional Science Association under the supervision of Professor Rafi Bar-Eli, Development Study Center, Rehovot. The meeting turned out to be a great success and provided an extremely interesting cross section of new developments in the area of regional science. It was decided afterward to publish a set of representative papers from this meeting in one volume. The present book brings together these papers which were duly selected after a careful screening and refereeing process. The editors wish to thank all referees for their willingness to assist them in the task of producing this volume. Many thanks also go to Rita Hittema for her skillful copy editing and word processing of the manuscript.

Handbook of Regional and Urban Economics P. Nijkamp, Edwin S. Mills, P. C. Cheshire, 1986. This second volume of the Handbook presents professional surveys of all the important topics in urban economics. The first section contains 6 surveys on locational analysis, the second 5 surveys of specific urban markets, and the third part presents 5 surveys of government policy issues. The book brings together exhaustive research by distinguished scholars from many countries. It is the only complete survey volume of urban economics and should serve as a reference volume to scholars and graduate students for many years. Economic Policy Issues for the Next Decade, Karl Aiginger, G. Hutschenreiter, 2013-03-09. There are several reasons why it has become important to rethink economic policy. Out of the European perspective, it is the new currency, the enlargement towards Central and Eastern European countries, the sluggish growth, and the end of productivity convergence towards the USA and the insufficient creation of employment. From the transatlantic perspective, increasing differences in the economic policy and the potential rise of conflicts between Europe and the USA, for example in trade competition and health issues, are important. The current volume touches most but not all of these topics. It starts with the overview by Joseph Stiglitz on policy issues. Then macroeconomics policy is discussed, followed by the problem of an ageing society and European enlargement. Differences between Europe and the USA are large in taxation and in the role of public finance. The relative competitiveness of countries, as well as of Europe, will be decided by investments into new technologies and progression towards the Science Based Economy. In the final section, the role of economists in shaping the economic agenda and giving policy advice is discussed.
