Duffey,1986 William Carlos Williams was an inventive writer never confined by any static genre or aesthetic postulate In this authoritative study Bernard Duffey recognizes that literary dynamism as he approaches the full breadth of Williams s work including his poetry prose fiction and drama as an interrelated and interdependent web of writing The result the first truly comprehensive examination of a major American author and his kinetic art will interest students and scholars of Williams American literature and modern poetry and criticism Central to Duffey s study is a critical framework based on Kenneth Burke s A Grammar of Motives and the perception of the poet as an agent working in relation to a scene and its content in this case the geographical and cultural locale that Williams clung to Williams s work Duffey argues was informed by the dramatic sense of himself as a literary actor seeking embodiment of a dynamic altering whole and his present condition of being Ultimately he stresses the writer was more engaged in expressing literary action than in forging literary objects Duffey amplifies this critical view through a close reading of specific works Examining Williams s principal writings in the lights that seem most immediate to them he tackles a variety of themes the pervasiveness of scene in In the American Grain and the fiction the role of agent or poetic person in Kora in Hell A Voyage to Pagany Paterson and Pictures from Brueghel the function of poetic agency in the short poems and of poetic action in Williams s drama John Derian

Bruce Elder,2015-10-15 This book deals with the early intellectual reception of the cinema and the manner in which art theorists philosophers cultural theorists and especially artists of the first decades of the twentieth century responded to its advent While the idea persists that early writers on film were troubled by the cinema s lowly form this work proposes that there was another largely unrecognized strain in the reception of it Far from anxious about film s provenance in popular entertainment some writers and artists proclaimed that the cinema was the most important art for the moderns as it exemplified the vibrancy of contemporary life This view of the cinema was especially common among those whose commitments were to advanced artistic practices Their notions about how to recast the art media or the forms forged from those media s materials and the urgency of doing so formed the principal part of the conceptual core of the artistic programs advanced by the vanguard art movements of the first half of the twentieth century This book a companion to the author s previous Harmony Dissent examines the Dada and Surrealist movements as responses to the advent of the cinema
