Making Common Sense:

Technopopulism Christopher J. Bickerton, Carlo Invernizzi Accetti, 2021 Contemporary democracies face a crisis of political representation In understanding this crisis scholars and commentators often frame it as the end or the collapse of democracy This book takes a very different path It argues that we are witnessing a transformation in the nature and practice of political competition within existing democratic regimes This transformation consists in the rise of a new political field techno populism Within this field appeals to the people and appeals to expertise are the new structuring logic of democratic politics Populist appeals to a unitary people combine in multiple ways with technocratic claims about efficient policy making and policy implementation These multiple combinations form the basis for the varieties of techno populism outlined in detail in this book We focus in particular on British French and Italian cases The concept of technopopulism helps us to make sense of new and idiosyncratic political movements such as En Marche and the Five Star Movement Technopopulism is also the conceptual key to understanding the significance of Blairism for British politics and its legacy in the profound transformations underway in the contemporary Conservative Party The transition from an ideological struggle between left and right to this technopopulist political field where populist and technocratic appeals are fused together into novel forms of political organization is having a significant impact on the quality of democratic political competition This book analyses the origins and consequences of the rise of technopopulism as well as considering the remedies available to us to tackle its negative effects

Pitt,2011-03-24 As science becomes more deeply embedded in a complex technological infrastructure has this changed the relationship between the sciences and the various technologies that support them As our technologies help shrink our world can we restrict our ethical concerns or must we find a way to face the fact that we are now one world What do new forms of architecture say about whom we are Is the design process the new epistemological paradigm The answers to all of these is yes according to Joseph C Pitt VirginiaTech Doing Philosophy of Technology presents an updated and integrated overview of the most important thinking from this prominent philosopher of technology Throughout his career Joseph C Pitt has defended the view that to say anything meaningful about the value of a technology one must know something about that technology and how it functions in the world This starting point leads naturally to a pragmatist philosophical stance since it is the real world consequences of introducing a technology that must be the basis for any further normative judgements In the book we find an extended set of arguments that challenge the idea that there are eternal philosophical issues that transcend the impacts that technologies make on human beings and their world Rather it is claimed that as our technologies transform our world they transform us and the kinds of questions we find important to answer      Common Sense on Mutual Funds John C. international organization of UNESCO through an ethnographic lens Hafstein demonstrates how concepts that are central to the discipline of folklore gain force and traction outside of the academic field and go to work in the world ultimately shaping people's understanding of their own practices and the practices themselves From the cultural space of the Jemaa el Fna marketplace in Marrakech to the Ise Shrine in Japan Making Intangible Heritage considers both the positive and the troubling outcomes of safeguarding intangible heritage the lists it brings into being the festivals it animates the communities it summons into existence and the way it orchestrates difference in modern societies
