Making History An Introduction To The Practices Of History:

Making History Peter Lambert, Phillipp Schofield, 2004-08-02 Making History offers a fresh perspective on the study of the past. It is an exhaustive exploration of the practice of history, historical traditions, and the theories that surround them. Discussing the development and growth of history as a discipline and of the profession of the historian, the book encompasses a huge diversity of influences organized around the following themes: the professionalization of the discipline, the most significant movements in historical scholarship in the last century including the Annales School, the increasing interdisciplinary trends in scholarship, theory in historical practice including Marxism, postmodernism, and gender history, historical practice outside the academy. The volume offers a coherent set of chapters to support undergraduates, postgraduates, and others interested in the historical processes that have shaped the discipline of history. Making History Peter Lambert, 2017. Making History Institute of American Indian Arts, 2020-10-15. Written by scholars actively producing Native art resources, this book guides readers, students, educators, collectors, and the public in how to learn about Indigenous cultures as visualized in our creative endeavors. History in Practice 2nd edition Ludmilla Jordanova, 2016-07-28. History in Practice explores the discipline's breadth, its complexities, and the tasks it takes on. This study by one of the liveliest and most acute practitioners in the field demystifies what historians do. It looks at history as an academic discipline but also engages with the use of historical ideas in the wider world. Historical work has public consequences and draws considerable energy from contemporary preoccupations. For this new edition of her respected and widely used book, Ludmilla Jordanova has revised the text and added a new chapter that takes into account recent world events. She discusses the role of the internet, globalisation, world history, and the current enthusiasm for military history. This book is essential reading for all students needing an understanding of history as a discipline. Making History Jorma Kalela, 2011-11-18. Everyone has a personal connection to the past independent of historical inquiry. So what is the role of the historian? Making History argues that historians have damagingly dissociated the discipline of history from the everyday nature of history, defining their work only in scholarly terms. Exploring the relationship between history and society, Kalela makes the case for a more participatory historical research culture in which historians take account of their role in society and the ways in which history making as a basic social practice is present in their work. Making History not only asks provocative questions about the role of the historian, it also provides practical guidance for students and historians on planning research projects with greater public impact. This book is vital reading for all historians, lay and professional, and will be an essential text for undergraduate and postgraduate courses on historiography and research methods. Making History Greg Clingham, 1998. By identifying a dialogical rather than monological relation between postmodern and Enlightenment discourses and texts, Making History offers a theoretically and historically nuanced account of eighteenth-century cultures and makes a timely and original contribution to the study of the eighteenth century and its dialogue with postmodernism. Making History with
