David Ownby, 2017 Sainthood has been and remains a contested category in China given the commitment of China's modern leadership to secularization modernization and revolution and the discomfort of China's elite with matters concerning religion However sainted religious leaders have succeeded in rebuilding old institutions and creating new ones despite the Chinese government's censure This book offers a new perspective on the history of religion in modern and contemporary China by focusing on the profiles of these religious leaders from the early 20th century through the present Edited by noted authorities in the field of Chinese religion Making Saints in Modern China offers biographies of prominent Daoists and Buddhists as well as of the charismatic leaders of redemptive societies and state managers of religious associations in the People's Republic The focus of the volume is largely on figures in China proper although some attention is accorded to those in Taiwan Hong Kong and other areas of the Chinese diaspora Each chapter offers a biography of a religious leader and a detailed discussion of the way in which he or she became a saint The biographies illustrate how these leaders deployed and sometimes retooled traditional themes in hagiography and charismatic communication to attract followers and compete in the religious marketplace Negotiation with often hostile authorities was also an important aspect of religious leadership and many of the saints' stories reveal unexpected reserves of creativity and determination The volume's contributors from the United States Canada France Italy China and Taiwan provide cutting edge scholarship Taken together these essays make the case that vital religious leadership and practice has existed and continues to exist in China despite the state's commitment to wholesale secularization Ordinary Saints Stuart C. The Making of Saints in Late Antique North Africa Sabine Panzram, Nathalie Klinck, 2024 The Making of Saints is a phenomenon of central significance to Christianity since a vision inspired Ambrosius discovered the remains of the martyrs Gervasius and Protasius in 386 AD in Milan In North Africa it seems to have taken on an extremely interesting form that makes Brent D Shaw speaking of the blood of the martyrs as the vital force the kinetic energy powering Christian life in Africa This volume contributes to the productively expanding research field of North African Christianity by providing narrative analyses on the one hand and presenting case studies from an archaeological perspective on the other which allow a comparative perspective of the phenomenon in order to systematically combine them narrative alone did not make a martyr architectural staging too was needed the story made the martyr and the staging made the saint The multidisciplinary approach brings together the most recent results concerning excavations and epigraphy but also an innovative conceptual understanding of text space and last but not least religion in order to examine the social function that the veneration of martyrs had in a longue durée perspective
