taken it up himself when hardly more than a lad had faced bad seasons blacks bush fires bushrangers and bankers these last he always said terrified him far more than the others and had finally settled down into a somewhat too easy possession of a couple of thousand good cattle a well bred rather fortunate stud and a roomy cool cottage with a broad verandah all covered with creepers The climate in which his abode was situated was temperate from latitude and proximity to the coast It was cold in the winter but many a ton of she oak and box had burned away in the great stone chimney before which Jack used to toast himself in the cold nights after a long day s riding after cattle He had plenty of books for he did not altogether neglect what he called his mind and he had time 2 to read them as of course he was not always out on the run or away mustering or doing a small sometimes very small bit of business at the country town just forty miles off or drafting or branding his cattle He would work away manfully at all these avocations for a time and then the cattle being branded up the business in the country town settled the musters completed and the stockmen gone home he used to settle down for a week or two at home and take it easy Then he read whole forenoons rather indiscriminately perhaps but still to the general advantage of his intelligence History novels voyages and travels classics science natural history political economy languages they all had their turn He had an uncommonly good memory so that no really well educated prig could be certain that he would be found ignorant upon any given subject then before the company as he was found to possess a fund of information when hard pressed Carolyn W.
