Goodman, 2011-03-16 A sharp and lively text that covers issues in depth but not to the point that they become inaccessible to beginning students An Introduction to Architectural Theory is the first narrative history of this period charting the veritable revolution in architectural thinking that has taken place as well as the implications of this intellectual upheaval The first comprehensive and critical history of architectural theory over the last fifty years surveys the intellectual history of architecture since 1968 including criticisms of high modernism the rise of postmodern and poststructural theory critical regionalism and tectonics Offers a comprehensive overview of the significant changes that architectural thinking has undergone in the past fifteen years Includes an analysis of where architecture stands and where it will likely move in the coming years A Fourth World Bernard J. James, 1997 A meditation grand in scope this work examines the relationship of Western civilization's thought structures to scientific social environmental political population and economic problems Tracing the philosophies underlying societal practices from the Enlightenment through the rise and fall of Romanticism and Modernism to this century the author argues that we stand on the threshold of fourth world which can either consist of a melange of shanty town societies characterized by war and scarcity or a sophisticated mosaic of cultures behaving in a benign way which would live in harmony with the delicate balance between what is known by the mind and what is respected by the spirit Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Contemporary Architects Ann Lee Morgan, Colin Naylor, 1987 To strengthen the contemporary focus of this volume we have added about forty architects and have deleted some whose activity ceased before World War II In making these decisions we have been assisted by an Advisory Board As in the first volume we have continued to define the word architect very broadly so as to include planners theorists structural engineers and landscape architects whose work seems to be central to the enterprise of creating habitable spaces in our day Editor's note The Architectural Project Alfonso Corona-Martínez, 2003-01-15 An Essay Concerning the Project considers the practice of architectural design as it has developed during the last two centuries In this challenging interpretation of design education and its effect on design process and products Argentinean scholar Alfonso Corona Martinez emphasizes the distinction between an architectural project created in the architect's mind and materialized as a set of drawings on paper and the realized three dimensional building Corona Martinez demonstrates how representation plays a substantial role in determining both the notion and the character of architecture and he traces this relationship from the Renaissance into the Modern era giving detailed considerations of Functionalism and Typology His argument clarifies the continuity in the practice of design method through the nineteenth and twentieth centuries a continuity that has been obscured by the emphasis on changing goals instead of design procedures and examines the influences of modernity and the legend of the Bauhaus Architectural schooling he suggests has had a decisive role in the transmission of these practices He concludes that the methods formalized in Beaux Arts teaching are not only still with us but are in good part responsible for the stylistic instability that haunts Modern architecture Abstract but not abstruse An Essay Concerning the Project provides clear information for a deeper understanding of the process of design and its results More so than any other recent text it shows the scope and richness of the field of speculation in architecture It presents subtle considerations that must be mastered if an architect is to properly use typology the means of representation and the elements of composition and in architecture Students teachers and practitioners alike will benefit from its warning about the deeper aspects of the endeavor of architecture

Constructing Community Brian Elliott, 2010-08-20 Constructing Community examines community from the particular perspective of the shaping and control of urban space in contemporary liberal democracies Following a consideration and critique of influential theories of community that have arisen within European philosophy over the last three decades Brian Elliott investigates parallel approaches to community within urban theory and practice over the same period Underlying the comparison of political theory and urban practice is a basic assumption that community and place are intimately connected such that the one cannot be adequately understood without the other The underlying intention of this book is to advocate a particular understanding of community one that centers on collective grassroots oppositional action While it draws on certain current theories and practices the model of community put forward is far from the orthodox position This study is a provocative and original analysis of the question of urban politics in contemporary liberal democracies It offers a strong case for reconsidering current debates on democratic politics in light of the connection between political power and the control of public space and the built environment

Modern Architecture Graham Livesey, 2024-11-15 Modern Architecture The Basics examines technological stylistic socio political and cultural changes that have transformed the history of architecture since the late 18th century Broad definitions of modernity and postmodernity introduce the book which comprises 24 short thematic chapters looking at the concepts behind the development of modern and postmodern architecture These include major historical movements key figures and evolving building typologies There is also an emphasis on the changing city during the 19th and 20th centuries Approaches to representation and its impacts on architecture are studied along with the changing global role of architecture as cultural expression The book introduces new topics including gender race postcolonialism and indigeneity An undaunting contemporary and inclusive account of modern architectural history this is a must read for all students of architecture as well
