Dunbar Ph.D.,2014-03-17 In the first book of its kind in the English language historian Dr John Dunbar provides an overview of attempts throughout film history to put historical topics on screen in the United States and Great Britain The earliest attempts were biographic films about famous people and some great epic films such as Gone With the Wind that were not claimed to be accurate histories of a period World War Two paved the way for post war developments through the evolution of the documentary film that were often accurate portrayals of events in the war After WW 2 a number of social political technical and economic developments opened the way for the making of historically accurate films The dissolution of the Studio System in Hollywood the disappearance of film censor boards the arrival of television and later the internet the appearance of greater market segments than those traditionally served by motion picture all opened up market opportunities for films of greater historical accuracy than had traditionally been available The emergence of film makers and production companies dedicated to the accurate telling of history now engages the resources of professional historians in the making of films of unequalled accuracy As items in the modern world of media literacy and political discourse these films play an important role in the sustenance of the open society in which the ideals of the European Enlightenment can be continually realized

International Television & Video Almanac Quigley Publishing,2005 America ,1913 Secular Magic and the Moving Image Max Sexton,2017-12-14 The power of the moving image to conjure marvelous worlds has usually been to understand it in terms of move magic On film a fascination for enchantment and wonder has transmuted older beliefs in the supernatural into secular attractions But this study is not about the history of special effects or a history of magic Rather it attempts to determine the influence and status of secular magic on television within complex modes of delivery before discovering interstices with film Historically the overriding concern on television has been for secular magic that informs and empowers rather than a fairytale effect that deceives and mystifies Yet shifting notions of the real and the uncertainty associated with the contemporary world has led to television developing many different modes that have become capable of constant hybridization The dynamic interplay between certainty and indeterminacy is the key to understanding secular magic on television and film and exploring the interstices between them Sexton ranges from the real time magic of street performers such as David Blaine Criss Angel and Dynamo to Penn and Teller s comedy magic to the hypnotic acts of Derren Brown before finally visiting the 2006 films The Illusionist and The Prestige Each example charts how the lack of clear distinctions between reality and illusion in modes of representation and presentation disrupt older theoretical oppositions Secular Magic and the Moving Image not only re evaluates questions about modes and styles but raises further questions about entertainment and how the relations between the program maker and the audience resemble those between the conjuror and spectator By re thinking these overlapping practices and tensions and the marking of the indeterminacy of reality on media screens it becomes possible to revise our understanding of inter medial relations
