Rains Asia An Assessment Model For Acid Deposition In Asia:

Rains-Asia Robert J. Downing, Ramesh Ramankutty, Jitendra J. Shah, 1997-01-01 Asia's rapid economic growth has fueled a growing appetite for commercial energy which is satisfied by fossil fuels that emit pollutants. These pollutants are oxidized and transported into the atmosphere creating acidic depositions known as acid rain that can damage foliage, soils and surface waters. At current energy consumption growth rates by the year 2000 sulfur dioxide emissions from Asia will surpass the emissions of North America and Europe combined. RAINS ASIA is an assessment tool developed by the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank and donors to study the implications of alternative energy development strategies for air pollution and acid rain and to help identify cost effective abatement methods. This report provides an overview of the model and some results of analyses that have been conducted as part of the RAINS ASIA program. Acid Rain - Deposition to Recovery Peter Brimblecombe, Hiroshi Hara, Daniel Houle, Martin Novak, 2007-12-11 This book looks at the sources and composition of the atmosphere and rainfall with particular attention on acidifying components and those that affect ecosystems. It further widens the subject to look at trace metals. It includes papers on the impact of deposition on soils and forests and the recovery of the natural environment. Work on critical loads makes a contribution to understanding the degree to which deposition must be reduced to limit its impact. Acid rain 2000 Kenichi Satake, 2012-12-06 The Acid Rain 2000 Conference in Tsukuba, Japan held 10-16 December 2000 was the sixth such conference in the series starting with Columbus, Ohio, USA in 1975 and including Sandefjord, Norway in 1980, Muskoka, Canada in 1985, Glasgow, UK in 1990 and Gteborg, Sweden in 1995. This series of International Conferences on the acid rain problem has made a very important contribution to the process of summarising the state of current understanding and making this information available. In the 6th Conference approximately 600 papers were presented including talks and posters. About 300 peer reviewed papers from the presentation appear in this volume and will provide readers with a comprehensive review of the history and scientific aspects of the acid rain problem. The papers appear in three volumes: the first containing the plenary and keynote papers and the other two the remaining scientific papers. Volume 1 ISBN 0 7923 7132 1, Volume 2 ISBN 0 7923 7133 X, Volume 3 ISBN 0 7923 7134 8. The Conference was arranged under the joint auspices of The Science Council of Japan, The Japanese Society of Limnology, representative academic society, Japan Association of Aerosol Science and Technology, The Japan Society for Analytical Chemistry, Japan Society for Atmospheric Environment, Chemical Society of Japan, The Ecological Society of Japan, The Japanese Society of Environmental Education, Society of Environmental Science, Japan, The Japanese Forestry Society, Japanese Society of Snow and Ice, Japanese Society of Soil Science and Plant Nutrition and Japan Society on Water Environment with the cooperation of Ibaraki Prefecture and Japan Environment Agency. Acid Rain Science and Politics in Japan Kenneth E. Wilkening, 2004-05-21 Acid Rain Science and Politics in Japan is a pioneering work in environmental and Asian history as well as an in depth analysis of the influence of science on domestic and international environmental politics. Kenneth Wilkening study also illuminates the global struggle to create sustainable societies The Meiji Restoration of 1868 ended Japan's era of isolation created self sufficiency and sustainability The opening of the country to Western ideas and technology not only brought pollution problems associated with industrialization including acid rain but also scientific techniques for understanding and combating them Wilkenning identifies three pollution related sustainability crises in modern Japanese history copper mining in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries which spurred Japan's first acid rain research and policy initiatives horrendous post World War II domestic industrial pollution which resulted in a hidden acid rain problem and the present day global problem of transboundary pollution in which Japan is a victim of imported acid rain He traces the country's scientific and policy responses to these crises through six distinct periods related to acid rain problems and argues that Japan's leadership role in East Asian acid rain science and policy today can be explained in large part by the historical scientific momentum generated by efforts to confront the issue since 1868 reinforced by Japan's cultural affinity with rain its culture of rain Wilkenning provides an overview of nature culture and the acid rain problem in Japan to complement the general set of concepts he develops to analyze the interface of science and politics in environmental policymaking He concludes with a discussion of lessons from Japan's experience that can be applied to the creation of sustainable societies worldwide

The ^AOxford Companion to Global Change Andrew Goudie,David Cuff,2008-11-21 The Oxford Companion to Global Change is a fresh look at the world and the compelling environmental issues of the early 21st century including global warming and its technical and regional implications as well as the prospects for current energy supplies and the promise of new technologies In one convenient volume it brings together current knowledge about the relations between technological social demographic economic and political factors as well as biological chemical and physical systems It is an essential reference work for law and policy practitioners researchers and other professionals seeking to understand any aspect of global change

Greening Industrialization in Asian Transitional Economies A. P. J. Mol,Joost C. L. van Buuren,2003-01-01 Studying transition economies is one of the most challenging tasks faced by those who wish to understand the political social and economic changes that the world has undergone since the end of the Cold War Greening Industrialization in Asian

Transitional Economies is a collection of essays which examine environmental performance and the transition to market economies particularly in China and Vietnam A comprehensive assessment of the state of industrial environmental management this informative volume looks at the movement for cleaner production from many perspectives analyzing its historical roots its political influences its implementation and its economic and technological feasibility Readers of these excellent essays will be left with an in depth understanding of both the necessity for environmental improvements in rapidly industrializing economies and the difficulties and challenges which this goal entails An ambitious and important project Greening Industrialization in Asian Transitional Economies provides a wide ranging analysis of a vital topic

The Environmental Dimension of Asian Security In-t'aek Hyŏn, Miranda Alice Schreurs, 2007 Northeast Asia is a region with highly disparate levels of industrialization and political systems It also contains some very troubling security flashpoints the Taiwan Strait the Korean Peninsula and the East China Sea China's rapacious quest for energy and rapid industrial expansion have led to intense international competition with Japan and the United States and internal instability as well North Korea poses two distinct environmental security threats famine refugees and the regime's use of nuclear blackmail for subsidized energy Yet there is very little regional cooperation despite the need to manage disputes over energy natural resources and pervasive pollution The Environmental Dimension of Asian Security examines these issues through a regional environmental security complex that explores the potential for greater intersubjective understandings of regional environmental and natural resource problems and greater institutional collaboration and management

Integrated Assessment of Sustainable Energy Systems in China, The China Energy Technology Program B. Eliasson, Y. Lee, 2012-12-06 The purpose of the China Energy Technology Program CETP has been to take a holistic view of electricity generation in China with special emphasis on the economic and environmental impact of technology The program is a collaborative effort involving industry as leader and manager of the program researchers from academia and national research institutes and the stakeholders users or planners of the electricity market A power plant no matter of what kind is not a solitary unit which may be considered independently from its environment Modern society has been built on easy access to power it is now asking for environmentally clean power Clean power is the pathway that will lead to sustainability an extension of the concept of an environmentally clean future Progress toward a sustainable technical solution must include an evaluation of the environmental economic and societal impact of electrical power generation To achieve the goals of the CETP program we wanted to go beyond what had been done in similar programs in the past Its organizers wanted the program not only to evaluate the overall impact of electricity generation but also do it in such a way that program results could be applied and adapted to different circumstances including countries other than China For this purpose we have developed a methodology and presented it on a DVD disc which the reader will find inside the back cover of this book The methodology is conceived to allow insights into the function of the program on various levels

Liu,2018-01-18 China s urban population growth rate has doubled in the past 20 years and the Chinese government has made further urbanization a developmental priority How Chinese cities cope with such rapid population increases has become a question of critical concern This book provides an analysis of the welfare implications of China s urbanization the development of the labour market including migration between rural and urban sectors and natural and social environmental issues arising from urbanization The book covers both academic and policy perspectives and together with its sister volume Urban Transformation in China brings together a comprehensive and multi disciplinary overview of China s urbanization

Acidification Research: Evaluation and Policy Applications T. Schneider,1992-04-24 A large number of nationwide research programmes in the field of acidification have been carried out in the last decade Especially in Western Europe extensive programmes have resulted in a good overview of all the effects mostly negative caused by acidifying substances There is now consensus that types of acidification damage relate to the unique geography of an area air pollution affects vegetation acid aerosol the ozone layer New in this volume is the relation between scientific results of integrated research programmes and policy actions to prevent reduce and limit the widespread damage caused by acidification The results of many different national research programmes are evaluated and compared to present a unique compilation for the research scientist and policy maker In this volume thematic reviews on specific topics of acidification research are presented followed by overviews of acidification policy plans and actual abatement plans The result is the best review of acidification research carried out worldwide during the last decade and presentation of the critical relation between research results and policy actions      China in the Global Economy Peter John Lloyd,Xiaoguang Zhang,2000-12-20 This work focuses on the theme of twin transitions occurring in the Chinese economy the transition from a centrally planned economic system to a market orientated one and from an agrarian to a modern industrialized society This book covers developments in the macroeconomy productivity and reform of state owned enterprises issues of international trade such as the management of the exchange rate the pattern of exports and the development of e commerce and problems in the agricultural sector and the environment

Publications Update World Bank,1996      Air Pollution and the Forests of Developing and Rapidly Industrializing Regions

John L. Innes, Abu Hassan Haron, 2000-06-27 This book examines the importance of air pollution for the forests of rapidly industrialising countries and regions. Its geographical coverage includes South and Central America, Africa and Asia including Siberia, China and Korea. The problems presented by air pollution are placed within the more general context of sustainable development within these regions and the historical legacy that they are attempting to deal with. Attention is drawn to the very serious problems associated with poor air quality in cities such as Mexico City and Chongqing, China. Air pollution in these areas is amongst the worst in the world. Several chapters examine the importance of forest fires as a source of air pollution, with particular reference being made to the Southeast Asian fires in recent years. The available information about the effects of this pollution on the surrounding forests is reviewed and recommendations are made for a better understanding of the impacts. A final chapter reviews the recent developments in air pollution control policies in the different regions covered by the book.      Technology for Global Economic and Environmental Survival and Prosperity Behram N.

Kursunogammalu, Stephan L. Mintz, Arnold Perlmutter, 2012-12-06 The 1996 Conference focused on topics of environmentally attractive technologies for electricity production, renewables, natural gas and nuclear energy. Recent technology developments were addressed which include creation of more efficient photovoltaic converters for electricity generation, the current and future role of natural gas in meeting global demand for electric power generation and the status of nuclear energy, its various applications and the prospects for its future. The Conference agenda, in light of its global economic impact, included comparative discussions of all the above alternative energy sources. The regional choice of energy sources and their impact on the global economy and environment was reviewed. In addition to the above subjects but strongly connected with the theme of global energy needs and security, the Conference program contained one session on new needs and directions in higher education, new curricula to cover fundamental global issues on energy resources and environment.      Routledge

Handbook of Global Environmental Politics Paul G. Harris, 2013-10-15 This handbook provides a comprehensive and authoritative survey of Global Environmental Politics. It brings together leading international academic experts and features 40 chapters that describe the history of global environmental politics as a discipline and explain the various theories and perspectives used by scholars and students to understand it. Examine the key actors and institutions in global environmental politics, explaining the role of states, international organizations, regimes, international law, foreign policy, institutions, domestic politics, corporations and transnational actors. Address the ideas and themes shaping the practice and study of global environmental politics, including sustainability, consumption, expertise, uncertainty, security, diplomacy, North-South relations, globalisation, justice, ethics, participation and citizenship. Assess the key issues and policies within global environmental politics, including energy, climate change, ozone depletion, air pollution, acid rain, sustainable transport, persistent organic pollutants, hazardous wastes, water, rivers, wetlands, oceans, fisheries, marine mammals, biodiversity, migratory species, natural heritage forests desertification food and agriculture With an in depth new preface by the Editor this edition of the handbook is an invaluable resource for students scholars researchers and practitioners of environmental politics environmental studies environmental science geography international relations and political science     Modern Biogeochemistry Vladimir N. Bashkin, 2006-12-29 At present quantitative ecological risk assessment is widely used in different contexts however very often without an understanding of the natural mechanisms that drive the processes of environmental and human risk Its application is often accompanied by high uncertainty about risk values On the other hand the sustainability of modern technoecosystems is known because of their natural biogeochemical cycling that has been transformed to various extents by anthropogenic studies Accordingly our understanding of the principal mechanisms that drive the biogeochemical food webs allows us to present a quantitative ecological risk assessment and to propose technological solutions for management of various ERA enterprises It also enables us to devise a powerful mechanism for ecological insurance to assign responsibilities and protect rights while managing the control of damage from natural and anthropogenic accidents and catastrophes
