Media Regulation, Public Interest and the Law Mike Feintuck, 2006-07-10 Regulation of the media has traditionally been premised upon claims of the public interest yet the term itself remains contested and generally ill defined In the context of technological development and convergence as well as corporate conglomeration traditional public service values in British broadcasting are challenged by market values With such ongoing trends continuing apace regulators must increasingly justify their interventions The communication industries commercialisation and privatisation pose a fundamental threat to democratic values Media Regulation Public Interest and the Law argues that regulators will only successfully protect such values if claims associated with citizenship are recognised as the rationale and objective for the regulatory endeavour While such themes are central to the book this second edition has been substantially revised and updated to take account of matters such as European Directives the UK's Communications Act 2003 the process of reviewing the BBC's Charter and relevant aspects of the reform of general competition law Key Features Identifies and examines the rationales underlying media regulation and the current challenges to them Considers fully the actual and potential utility of legal mechanisms and principles in the design and activities of regulatory institutions Fully updated to take account of the European Union's 2002 New Regulatory Framework and the UK's Communications Act 2003. Accessible to a wide readership in media studies, journalism, broadcasting and law. Praise for the First Edition: A detailed and critical assessment of the problems and confusions of recent media regulation in the UK including digital television franchising and the Broadcasting Complaints Commission. It is well organised and should be a useful resource for more advanced students and academics. For updating the public regulation case with vigour and clarity, this book is to be welcomed.

THESE Mass Media James B. Martin, 2002. Mass media has become an integral part of the human experience. News travels around the world in a split second, affecting people in other countries in untold ways. Although being on top of the news may be good at least for news junkies, mass media also transmits values or the lack thereof, condenses complex events and thoughts to simplified sound bites, and often ignores the essence of an event or story. The selective bibliography gathers the books and magazine literature over the previous ten years while providing access through author title and subject indexes.

Press Freedom and Regulation in a Digital Era Irini Katsirea, 2024-04-22. The processes of convergence and digitalization have altered the technological conditions in which the press operates. More than that, they have altered the environment in which the press stakes its claim to freedom and strives to protect its turf from other media players. The advent of internet-based services and applications has blurred the technological boundaries between the press, broadcasting and telecommunications, challenging their regulatory silos. Press Freedom and Regulation in a Digital Era: A Comparative Study assesses the extent to which the emergent regulatory model for online news media is shaped by analogies from the past or rather by a newly prevalent culture of control. By interweaving two distinct strands of analysis, the concepts of press freedom and regulation and the phenomena of convergence and digitalization, this book examines the key implications of digitalization and assesses the challenges for press freedom in the nascent digital news ecosystem. Drawing upon decisions of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) as well as from cases in Germany, the United Kingdom and the United States, this comparative work comprehensively explores the regulation of the press in the digital era and the impact of the proliferating media laws, policies and jurisprudence on press freedom. Irini Katsirea identifies the regulatory ruptures that persist and makes concrete and timely recommendations for the evolving online news ecosystem.

Regulating Audiovisual Services Thomas Gibbons, 2023-07-14. In recent years, the changing nature of audiovisual services has had a significant impact on regulatory policy and practice. The adoption of digital technology means that broadcasting, cable, satellite, the Internet and mobile telephony are converging, enabling each of them to deliver the same kinds of content and allowing users to exercise much greater choice over the kind of material that they receive and when they receive it. The essays examine the implications for regulatory design asking whether there is still a role for traditional style state controls or whether other techniques such as competition in the market and self regulation are more appropriate. They also explore how in the digital era structural issues of media ownership and control become problems of access and interconnection between services and how content regulation focuses more on problems raised by the interactions between providers and users, the relationship between freedom of information and technologies to control it and the international reach of the new media.

Contemporary Challenges in Regulating Global Crises M. Findlay, 2013-02-21. Mark Findlay's treatment of regulatory sociability charts the anticipated and even inevitable transition to mutual interest which is the essence of taking communities from shared risk to shared fate. Media Power and its Control in Contemporary China Yanling Zhu, 2022-11-30. This book takes an ethnographic approach to discuss the policy practices within China's broadcasting industry. Exploring the gap between the contemporary policy regime and its implementation in national broadcasters and streaming services, taking into account the interplay between broadcasters, political bodies, producers and audiences, Zhu explains the contemporary role of Chinese national broadcasters in mediating the public discourse, the collective reimagining of China's national identity and the newly found policy initiative of using state media as a means of nation branding. Cases investigated include China Central Television (CCTV), Documentary China, Global Television Network (CGTN) and the Shanghai Media Group (SMG) as well as co-productions made by CCTV and international media firms including the BBC, Discovery and the Japan Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) in a book that will interest scholars of Chinese politics, media studies and sociology.
