Development and Vulnerability in Close Relationships Gil G. Noam, Kurt W. Fischer, 2013-06-17 How do people develop in their important relationships How do two people come together to form a new close relationship How do relationships affect or determine who we are and who we become These questions should be central to the study of mind and development but most researchers neglect relationships and focus instead on analyses of individuals as if people were basically alone experiencing occasional fleeting moments with other people Research based on this individualist assumption has dominated the behavioral and clinical sciences but there are other voices and they are growing In this book many of the scholars who are moving relationships and attachments back to the center of human development outline their central concepts findings and perspectives People are fundamentally social and relationships are part of the fabric of being human forming an essential foundation that molds each person's mind and action A mind does not reside in one person but in relationships and communities composed of many people's interconnected minds which mutually support and define each other From the start and throughout life each person develops strengths and vulnerabilities in important relationships in communities and cultures Those relationships are so central to each person's activity and experience that without them no scientific explanation can even begin to analyze mind and action There is no mind without other people There is no psychological vulnerability that does not involve others The contributors to this book aim to establish a firm foundation for the role of relationships in human activity and health and to promote strong research by bringing together in one place most of the best research and theory on development and relationships Their goal is to stimulate a more radical inclusion of relationships in mind an ecological focus on the ways that relationships constitute action feeling and thought

Journal - Department of Agriculture and Fisheries Ireland. Department of Agriculture and Fisheries,1915 The Special Relationship between West Germany and Israel Lily Gardner Feldman,2025-04-30 First Published in 1984 The Special Relationship between West Germany and Israel stresses the uniqueness of the historical ties between Germans and Jews but attempts to set the implementation of post war German Israeli policy relations in the context of a general theory of bilateral ties between states Lily Gardner Feldman has articulated the concept of the special relationship and indicated its relevance for other international partnerships including those between France and Germany and the United States and Israel It is difficult to imagine a less likely bilateral relationship of friendship and mutual support after World War II than one between Germans and Jews Yet in their simultaneous efforts to establish legitimacy in the family of nations the Federal Republic of Germany and Israel turned to each other And so in one of history s greatest ironies West Germany looked to Israel for the Nazi victims to acknowledge the moral acceptability of the successor state and Israel looked to as Germany as the lone industrial state with both the means and the will to provide a measure of economic security This book reveals the intricacies of the German Israeli policy relationship in a setting of extensive and complicated ties between German and Israeli societies and individuals It is based on more than 100 interviews with key actors in erstwhile West Germany and Israel The innovative combination of theory and practice about such dramatic historical and contemporary importance should appeal not only to academics but also to the policy communities
