Clothing and Fashion in Southern History Ted Ownby, Becca Walton, 2020-07-23 Contributions by Grace Elizabeth Hale Katie Knowles Ted Ownby Jonathan Prude William Sturkey Susannah Walker Becca Walton and Sarah Jones Weicksel Fashion studies have long centered on the art and preservation of finely rendered garments of the upper class and archival resources used in the study of southern history have gaps and silences Yet little study has been given to the approach of clothing as something made worn and intimately experienced by enslaved people incarcerated people and the poor and working class and by subcultures perceived as transgressive The essays in the volume using clothing as a point of departure encourage readers to imagine the South's centuries long engagement with a global economy through garments with cotton harvested by enslaved or poorly paid workers milled in distant factories designed with influence from cosmopolitan tastemakers and sold back in the South often by immigrant merchants Contributors explore such topics as how free and enslaved women with few or no legal rights claimed to own clothing in the mid 1800s how white women in the Confederacy claimed the making of clothing as a form of patriotism how imprisoned men and women made and imagined their clothing and clothing cooperatives in civil rights era Mississippi An introduction by editors Ted Ownby and Becca Walton asks how best to begin studying clothing and fashion in southern history and an afterword by Jonathan Prude asks how best to conclude

The Cutter - It started as an obsession with hacking hair from women's heads. It ended with murder Michael Litchfield, 2011-08-18 Heather Barnett's mutilated body was discovered by her son and daughter on their return home from school in Bournemouth one November afternoon. The police quickly ascertained that the murder was premeditated and meticulously planned down to the last macabre detail: the killer had not left one single piece of DNA evidence even the bloody footprints from a distinct pair of trainers did not lead out of the house but ended in the front room without any further trace. As a bizarre and sickening calling card, the killer placed a lock of someone else's hair in the victim's hand. Detectives were shocked by the savagery of the murder and baffled by the apparently sadistic ritualism of the killing. Many long months of enquiries led to an eventual lead from Interpol: the parents of a missing girl in Italy had been posted a lock of hair. Could the two murders be linked and had the police just made the breakthrough they so desperately needed? In this in-depth and chilling book, acclaimed crime writer Michael Litchfield investigates the full story of the killer behind these terrible murders.
