Sexual Exploitation and Abuse in UN Peacekeeping Kelly Neudorfer, 2014-12-31 While serving in United Nations peacekeeping missions some peacekeepers sexually exploit and abuse the local population a fact which erupted into a scandal published by many media outlets in 2005 and 2006 This book analyzes factors which may increase the risk of such behavior as well as measures the UN has taken which may have decreased the number of incidents Using a mixed methods design the book argues that previous analyses have been largely undertheorized with the exception of gender theories and turns to criminology to look at the phenomenon of so called Sexual Exploitation and Abuse SEA in a new light The three risk factors found to increase the likelihood of SEAs are an environment of sexual violence in the mission s host country the presence of internally displaced persons close to the mission and a lack of supervised or regulated contact with the local population In turn the presence of an office whose purpose is to collect reports and investigate allegations training on preventing SEAs for the incoming peacekeepers and campaigns to empower the local population on these issues all seem to reduce the risk of sexual exploitation and abuse occurring By using a statistical analysis followed by case studies of the UN peacekeeping missions in the Democratic Republic of the Congo Liberia and the Golan Heights the author demonstrates the importance these factors have in the peacekeepers behavior on the mission providing a solid basis upon which future policy recommendations can be made

Fear of Crime and Punitiveness Helmut Kury, 2013 As a subject area of inquiry and research fear of crime and punitiveness have played an increasingly important role in criminology Since the early 1990s and emanating largely from within the United States there has been a growing body of research as well as increased attention given to the subject by the media and policy makers In part triggered by the fact that the United States has the highest imprisonment rate

approx 780 100 000 in 2012 in the Western world and still has the death penalty in most states increasing attention has been paid to the impact of peoples perceptions of crime their fear of possible victimization and their sense of punitivity to wards offenders And although the body of literature on fear of crime and punitivity has been growing there still remain many regions and countries of the world where there is a dearth of such research This collection includes several of the countries where such research represents the first of its kind The reader will be provided a broad overview of the subject and presented with varied observations about fear of crime and punitivity from different parts of the world As the project represents a novel and exploratory venture into the subject area the collective content provided in this collection will hopefully also serve to advance future research and inform sentencing policy and initiatives to address fear of crime This volume includes seven comparable reports in which the contributors used a common standardized survey to collect data on fear of crime and punitivity among post secondary students The countries represent a cross section of different legal political and cultural systems The countries also vary in their degree of criminal justice development and in terms of the rights of victims In each of the contributions the author s provide an overview of their country before discussing the results of the survey they administered The articles are prepared in a manner that allow varying degrees of comparison as well as recommendations for the future direction of this relatively new area of international inquiry

Violence, Prejudice and Sexuality Stephen Tomsen, 2013-05-13 The binary model of sexuality can be devastating and even fatal for people left outside the category of heterosexuality Essentialist categories of sexuality and gender are often enforced by harassment and violence as is clear in the case of violence directed against sexual minorities such as homosexual men This book investigates why men launch assaults on sexual minorities why these attacks are so vicious and frequently irrational the identities of perpetrators and their victims and why such violence seems to have some acceptance in fields such as law psychiatry the media and popular opinion Tomsen discusses the theoretical and research literatures on models of understanding human sexuality and gender and the nature of hate violence and prejudice in contemporary societies and also provides an analysis from his own original research to draw out the contradictory nature of both sexual identity and violence and the significance of viewing both fields as linked domains This text makes an important contribution to current and future discussions of the nature of social prejudice and its ties to legal rulings collective beliefs and mainstream culture
