History and Causality M. Hewitson, 2014-01-22 This volume investigates the different attitudes of historians and other social scientists to questions of causality It argues that historical theorists after the linguistic turn have paid surprisingly little attention to causes in spite of the centrality of causation in many contemporary works of history

Boundaries of the State in US History James T. Sparrow, William J. Novak, Stephen W. Sawyer, 2015-09-07 The question of how the American state defines its power has become central to a range of historical topics from the founding of the Republic and the role of the educational system to the functions of agencies and America's place in the world Yet conventional histories of the state have not reckoned adequately with the roots of an ever expanding governmental power assuming instead that the American state was historically and exceptionally weak relative to its European peers Here James T Sparrow William J Novak and Stephen W Sawyer assemble definitional essays that search for explanations to account for the extraordinary growth of US power without resorting to exceptionalist narratives Turning away from abstract metaphysical questions about what the state is or schematic models of how it must work these essays focus instead on the more pragmatic historical question of what it does By historicizing the construction of the boundaries dividing America and the world civil society and the state they are able to explain the dynamism and flexibility of a government whose powers appear so natural as to be given invisible inevitable and exceptional

Jankowski, 1987-01-29 Throughout the 20th century Egyptian nationalism has alternately revolved around three primary axes a local Egyptian territorial nationalism a sense of Arab ethnic linguistic nationalism and an identification with the wider Muslim community This detailed study is devoted to the first major phase in the perennial debate over nationalism in modern Egypt the territorial nationalism dominant in Egypt in the early 20th century The first section of the book examines the effects of World War I and its aftermath which temporarily gave rise to an exclusively Egyptianist national orientation in Egypt Subsequent sections consider the intellectual and political dimensions of Egyptian interwar years Egypt Islam and the Arabs is the first volume in a new Oxford series Studies in Middle Eastern History The General Editors of the series are Bernard Lewis of Princeton University Itamar Rabinovich of Tel Aviv University and Roger M Savory of the University of Toronto

Taking the Town Kolan Thomas Morelock, 2008-08-22 The relationship between a town and its local institutions of higher education is often fraught with turmoil The complicated tensions between the identity of a city and the character of a university can challenge both communities Lexington Kentucky displays these characteristic conflicts with two historic educational institutions within its city limits Transylvania University the first college west of the Allegheny Mountains and the University of Kentucky formerly State College An investigative cultural history of the town that called itself The Athens of the West Taking the Town Collegiate and Community Culture in Lexington Kentucky 1880 1917 depicts the origins and development of this relationship at the turn of the twentieth century Lexington's location in the upper South makes it a rich region for examination Despite a history of turmoil and violence Lexington's universities serve as catalysts for change Until the publication of this book Lexington was still characterized by academic interpretations that largely consider Southern intellectual life an oxymoron Kolan Thomas Morelock illuminates how intellectual life flourished in Lexington from the period following Reconstruction to the nation's entry into the First World War Drawing from local newspapers and other primary sources from around the region Morelock offers a comprehensive look at early town gown dynamics in a city of contradictions He illuminates Lexington's identity by investigating the lives of some influential personalities from the era including Margaret Preston and Joseph Tanner Focusing on literary societies and dramatic clubs the author inspects the impact of social and educational university organizations on the town's popular culture from the Gilded Age to the Progressive Era Morelock's work is an enlightening analysis of the intersection between student and citizen intellectual life in the Bluegrass city during an era of profound change and progress Taking the Town explores an overlooked aspect of Lexington's history during a time in which the city was establishing its cultural and intellectual identity Placing the South Michael O'Brien, 2007 Placing the South offers a selection of work published between 1985 and 2005 by one of the most incisive historians and literary critics of the South The pieces seek to situate the South in a variety of contexts and offer a compelling defense of what Kwame Anthony Appiah has called rooted cosmopolitanism This is a mode of understanding based on respect for what is local and an awareness that regionalism is not enough Hybridity in both culture and literature is inescapable and desirable The first section of the book Placing contains three comparative analyses that look at how regionalism has recently been conceptualized globally how the modern South has acquired pertinence for those outside the United States and how the relationship between Britain and the South has worked The second section Ideologies scrutinizes political ideas freedom imperialism nationalism racial ideology which have transformed American discourse The third section Forms examines genre and how the South has been constructed and reconstructed by such literary forms as autobiography biography history and literary history The final section Writers contains critical appreciations of political thinkers novelists poets critics historians and sociologists important to southern intellectual life Taken together the essays offer a robust analysis of a dynamic region Michael O'Brien is professor of American intellectual history at University of Cambridge and a fellow at Jesus College He is the author of Conjectures of Order Intellectual Life and the American South 1810-1860 and other books Contours of Canadian Thought A.B. McKillop, 1987-12-15 The leaps of knowledge in nineteenth century science shook the foundations of religious and humanistic values throughout much of the world The Darwinian Revolution and similar developments presented enormous philosophical challenges to Canadian scientists philosophers and men of letters Their responses many and varied form a central theme in this collection of essays by one of Canada's leading intellectual historians McKillop explores the thought of a number of English Canadian thinkers from the 1860s to the 1920s decades that saw Canada's entry into the modern age We meet Daniel Wilson an educator and ethnologist for whom the pursuit of science was a form of poetic engagement requiring the poet's sensibilities John Watson one of the world's leading exponents of objective idealism whose philosophical premises helped to undermine the very religious tradition he sought to bolster and William Dawson LeSueur an apostle of Positivism whose spirited defence of critical inquiry and evolutionary social ethics led him towards an entirely contradictory position In addition to profiles of individuals McKillop considers the ways in which their ideas operated in the context of Canadian institutions including the universities and the press From these perspectives emerges a detailed analysis of the life of the mind of English Canada in an age of questioning of doubt and of struggle to reorient the intellectual and philosophical positions of a quickly changing society American Studies Jack
