Abstract. The new mainstream film is an upgraded version of the main theme film, which is more commercial, entertaining and popular. The themes are more extensive, and the casting is bolder and more grounded. Nowadays, the rise of new mainstream films also means that Chinese films have embarked on a new journey. A new type of film that combines artistry and commercialism skillfully has its unique advantages from both artistic and commercial perspectives.

1 Introduction

As an important vehicle for carrying China's dreams and building cultural confidence, cinema has always conveyed mainstream ideology and conceptual values with its rich and vivid content and forms. Since the 21st century, as the overall industrialisation of Chinese cinema has become more mature and the marketisation process has gradually advanced, melodramatic cinema has begun its own transformation and innovation. As melodramatic films have begun to pay real attention to the sense of cinema, experimenting with genre expression, balancing ideology, artistry and spectacle in narrative and characterisation, they have become the new mainstream commercial films, gaining high reputation and box office, and the industry has formed a consensus that "melodramatic" is moving towards "new mainstream". The industry has formed a consensus that the "main theme" is moving towards the "new mainstream".

2 The present theory

2.1 Definition and explanation of "new mainstream" films

When it comes to "new mainstream" films, we have to mention "theme" films and "mainstream" films. These three types of films all play an important role in carrying the Chinese dream and establishing their own cultural confidence. They always convey the mainstream ideology and ideological values in vivid content and form. But they are also very different from each other. This type of film is constantly developing and progressing. "Main melody" is originally a term from the music field, which refers to the main tune of a voice part in music performance. In 1987, at the National Feature Film Creation Conference, the Film Bureau put forward the word "theme" for the first time, and encouraged filmmakers to create "theme" films with the idea of "sticking to the theme and sticking to the diversity". During that period, the birth of a large number of films with revolutionary historical themes also laid the keynote of Chinese theme films. In 1988, the film Founding Ceremony, which recorded the founding moment, was born and became the landmark work of the theme film. In the 1990s, with the rapid development of social economy and popular culture, the disadvantages of theme films began to appear. First, political expression was greater than artistic expression, and the theme was turned into a textbook of sound and painting; Secondly, too much emphasis is placed on creating the perfect hero image and the completely negative villain image. The characterization of the character image is single and unrealistic. As a result, the industry began to propose "mainstream film", which, on the one hand, continued the valuable character of the traditional theme film in advocating the mainstream cultural route, on the other hand, actively adapted to the new era of market economic conditions and the development mode of film industrialization reform. The commercialization of traditional theme films, that is, the commercialization of theme films, has become a good strategy for the film and television industry to deal with the drawbacks of theme films. After entering the 21st century, with the overall level of the Chinese film industry rising and the growing maturity of marketization, "mainstream" films have begun their own innovation and transformation, breakthrough and innovation. The narrative mode of the "new mainstream" film has gradually changed in recent years. Instead of outputting various grand political ideas in a condescending manner, it has made the audience resonate in the historical moment reappearance of the national memory through the shaping of civilian heroes in the background of the great era, and realized the collective memory of building social identity. In recent years, a large number of new mainstream films have

In other words, what happens in the minds of people before they decide to use political violence as a means to attain their goals? Also, this book asks what has to happen in the minds of people in order to preclude them from using political violence as a way of attaining their goals. This volume unites scholars from several disciplines and perspectives from a number of different geographical, social, and cultural contexts with the overarching aim to refine our understanding of what radicalization actually implies.

Animal People Adam Reed, 2025-01-15 Animal People introduces readers to the professionalized world of animal protection from the perspective of those who consider themselves to be moderate activists. Adam Reed explores the interrelationships between moral cause and organizational culture, including the ways in which expert roles such as investigator and lobbyist inform the practice and outlook of animal protection. This book examines not only connections between forms of professionalism and everyday advocacy but also how those working to improve the welfare of animals can come to possess an expertise in public or mainstream ethics. Reed explores these issues through the example of a Scottish-based animal protection organization. Animal People makes a distinctive contribution to anthropological debate and Evolution of West European Electoral Politics Erik R. Tillman, 2021-07-22 Authoritarianism and the Evolution of West European Electoral Politics provides a novel explanation of rising Euroscepticism and right wing populism in Western Europe. The changing political and cultural environment of recent decades is generating an ongoing realignment of voters structured by authoritarianism which is a psychological disposition towards the maintenance of social cohesion and order at the expense of individual autonomy and diversity. High authoritarians find the values and demographic changes of the past several decades a threat to social cohesion which has created an opportunity for PRR parties to gain their support by campaigning against these perceived threats to national community posed by immigration values change and European integration. The result is a worldview evolution in which party conflict is shaped by the rival preferences of high and low authoritarians. Drawing on national and cross national survey data as well as an original survey experiment this book demonstrates how the relationship between authoritarianism and 1 attitudes towards the EU and 2 voting behaviour has evolved since the 1990s. In doing so this book advances these literatures by providing an explanation for why certain voters are shifting towards PRR parties as electoral politics realigns.

Flat-World Fiction Liliana M. Naydan, 2021-12-15 Flat World Fiction analyzes representations of digital technology and the social and ethical concerns it creates in mainstream literary American fiction and fiction written about the United States in the first two decades of the twenty first century. In this period authors such as Don DeLillo, Jennifer Egan, Dave Eggers, Joshua Ferris, Jonathan Safran Foer, Mohsin Hamid, Thomas Pynchon, Kristen Roupenian, Gary Shteyngart and Zadie Smith found themselves not only implicated in the developing digital world of flat screens but also threatened by it while simultaneously attempting to critique it. As a result their texts explore how human relationships with digital devices and media transform human identity and human relationships with one another, history, divinity, capitalism and nationality. Liliana M. Naydan walks us through these complex relationships revealing how authors show through their fiction that technology is political. In the process these authors complement and expand on work by historians, philosophers and social scientists creating accessible literary road maps to our digital future.
