contemporary Celtic identity and the Celtic diaspora Celtic praxis New Directions in Celtic Studies Colin H. Williams, Amy Hale, Philip Payton, 2003 New Directions in Local History Since Hoskins Christopher Dyer, Andrew Hopper, Evelyn Lord, 2011-10

Utilizing the techniques developed by renowned local historian W G Hoskins in his landmark study published 50 years ago Local History in England this book demonstrates how local history has evolved as a discipline over the last half century Fifteen historians write about a variety of local history subjects that are significant in their own right but which also point to current trends in the field They show how local historians use their sources systematically from the nonverbal evidence of buildings to various types of electronic sources All periods between the middle ages and the early twenty first century are explored covering many parts of England from Skye to the Kent coast and discussing topics that include social economic religious legal intellectual and cultural history New Directions in Later Medieval Manuscript

Studies Derek Pearsall, 2000 Influential scholars from Britain and North America discuss future directions in rapidly expanding field of manuscript study The study of manuscripts is one of the most active areas of current research in medieval studies manuscripts are the basic primary material evidence for literary scholars historians and art historians alike and there has been an explosion of interest over the past twenty years Manuscript study has developed enormously codices are no longer treated as inert witnesses to a culture whose character has already been determined by the modern scholar but are active participants in a process of exploration and discovery The articles collected here discuss the future of this process and vital questions about manuscript study for tomorrow s explorers They deal with codicology and book production with textual criticism with the material structure of the medieval book with the relation of manuscripts to literary culture to social history and to the medieval theatre and with the importance to manuscript study of the emerging technology of computerised digitisation and hypertext display The essays provide an end of millennium perspective on the most vigorous developments in a rapidly expanding field of study Contributors A I Doyle C David Benson Martha W Driver J P Gumbert Kathryn Kerby Fulton Linne R Mooney Eckehard Simon Alison Stones John Thompson DEREK PEARSALL is former Professor and Co Director of the Centre for Medieval Studies York and Professor of English at Harvard University Mysticism, Myth and Celtic Identity Marion Gibson, Shelley Trower, Garry Tregidga, 2013 Mysticism Myth and Celtic Identity explores how the mythical and mystical past informs national imaginations Building on notions of invented tradition and myths of the nation it looks at the power of narrative and fiction to shape identity with particular reference to the British and Celtic contexts The authors consider how aspects of the past are reinterpreted or reimagined in a variety of ways to give coherence to desired national groupings or groups aspiring to nationhood and its defence The coverage is unusually broad in its historical sweep dealing with work from prehistory to the contemporary with a particular emphasis on the period from the eighteenth century to the present The subject matter includes notions of ancient deities Druids Celticity the archaeological remains of pagan religions traditional folk tales racial and religious myths and ethnic politics and the different types of returns and hauntings that can recycle these ideas in culture Innovative and interdisciplinary the scholarship in Mysticism Myth and Celtic Identity is mainly literary but also geographical and historical and draws on religious studies politics and the social sciences Thus the collection offers a stimulatingly broad number of new viewpoints on a matter of great topical relevance national identity and the politicization of its myths

Written on Stone Joanne Parker,2009-10-02 This collection of essays is not interested in the unresolved questions about the origin original use and authentic meaning of the prehistoric monuments of the British Isles It is not concerned with their prehistory Rather it deals with the history of barrows standing stones and stone circles with the ways in which they have been viewed the meanings that have been attributed to them and the significant impact that they have had over the centuries on British life and culture from motivating artists authors musicians and film makers to inspiring New Age religions It is thus as interested in stones commonly believed to be megaliths like the foundation stones of the chapel in the Dartmoor village of South Zeal as in real remains In her recent study of Stonehenge the historian Rosemary Hill asserted Stonehenge does not belong to archaeology or not to archaeology alone Likewise this book is not written primarily for archaeologists or not for the interest of archaeologists alone It will also be of interest to social and cultural historians to those interested in fine art literature or film and to anyone fascinated by the construction of national local or counter cultural identities It should also intrigue anybody who lives near one of the thousands of prehistoric remains that add beauty and mystery to Britain s countryside The book surveys over eight hundred years of rediscovery study superstition inspiration fear restoration and destruction investigating how different generations saw their own anxieties beliefs and concerns reflected in the mysterious lives of the prehistoric builders By discussing the many different ways in which prehistoric remains have been treated in different periods the book interrogates any notion of objective approaches to archaeology Instead it asserts that what we think of as the past is in fact multiple and man made Thus if we are to effectively interpret and fully understand the prehistoric remains of the past a variety of disciplines and a range of approaches both traditional and unconventional will need to work together For this reason this book has been produced as a jointly authored text a collaboration between archaeologists folklorists historians journalists and literary critics

Contested Concepts in the Study of Religion George D. Chryssides,Amy R. Whitehead,2022-08-11 This book offers a clear concise introduction to the meaning of problematic terms and the ways in which they should legitimately be used Each entry considers the following Why is this concept problematic What are the origins of the concept How is it used or misused and by whom Is it still a legitimate concept in the study of religion and if so what are its legitimate uses Are there other concepts that are preferable when writing on religion Concepts covered include Belief Religion Magic Secularisation Violence This is a jargon free indispensable resource for students and scholars that encourages the critical use of terms in the study of religion Making Ireland Irish Eric G. E. Zuelow,2009-03-01 From the dark shadow of civil war to the pastel painted towns of today Making Ireland Irish provides a sweeping account of the evolution of the Irish tourist industry over the twentieth century Drawing on an extensive array of previously untapped or underused sources Eric G E Zuelow examines how a small group of tourism advocates inspired by tourist development movements in countries such as France and Spain worked tirelessly to convince their Irish compatriots that tourism was the secret to Ireland s success Over time tourism went from being a national joke to a national interest Men and women from across Irish society joined in eager to help shape their country and culture for visitors eyes The result was Ireland as it is depicted today a land of blue skies smiling faces pastel towns natural beauty ancient history and timeless traditions With lucid prose and vivid detail Zuelow explains how careful planning transformed Irish towns and villages from grey and unattractive to bright and inviting sanitized Irish history to avoid offending Ireland s largest tourist market the English and supplanted traditional rural fairs revolving around muddy animals and featuring sexually suggestive ceremonies with new family friendly festivals and events filling today s tourist calendar By challenging existing notions that the Irish tourist product is either timeless or the consequence of colonialism Zuelow demonstrates that the development of tourist imagery and Irish national identity was not the result of a handful of elites or a postcolonial legacy but rather the product of an extended discussion that ultimately involved a broad cross section of society both inside and outside Ireland Tourism he argues played a vital role in making Ireland Irish Edinburgh Companion to the Gaelic Language Moray Watson,2010-06-30 Bringing together a range of perspectives on the Gaelic language this book covers the history of the language its development in Scotland and Canada its spelling syntax and morphology its modern vocabulary and the study of its dialects It also addresses sociolinguistic issues such as identity perception language planning and the appearance of the language in literature Each chapter is written by an expert on their topic The book has been written accessibly with a non specialist audience in mind It will have a particular value for those requiring introductions to aspects of the Gaelic language It will also be of great interest to those who are embarking on research on Gaelic for the first time Authors include Colm O Baoill David Adger Rob Dunbar Seosamh Watson Ken Nilsen Ken MacKinnon and Ronald Black
