Raft Fisherman Tradition Change In Th:

The Raft Fishermen Shepard Forman, 1970 An American anthropologist's report on extensive fieldwork in the village of Coqueiral in northeastern Brazil where he conducted an economic and sociological investigation of the traditional raft fishing economy. By examining the social structural and ecological aspects of the local fishing industry, Shepard Forman sought to uncover the reasons for the fishermen's resistance to new technology and their persistent use of traditional fishing methods. His study of social behavior in the fishing community bears on certain widespread hypotheses about so-called peasant conservatism and assumptions about resistance to change in traditional societies. Through his study of the structure of village life, Forman discovered that power is concentrated in the hands of a few local entrepreneurs who alone have sufficient capital gained through enterprises other than fishing to introduce new equipment into the fishing industry. This elite group is unwilling to spend money on technological innovations that do not directly improve their standing in the village. The fishermen, on the other hand, are prevented from introducing such improvements by complex political and economic factors. Forman draws a sympathetic portrait of the fishermen describing decision making in peasant households, the system of credit and savings, and the complex organization of economic life at the local level. Foremost among the conclusions he draws is that it is the fisherman's search for security rather than a distaste for cooperation or a lack of initiative that leads him to reject innovation. On the basis of his study, Forman maintains that the obstacles to change in traditional peasant societies are ecological and socioeconomic rather than psychological. He suggests that it is time we ceased to justify the immobilizing effects of poverty in such societies by attributing them to certain misconceptions about peasant behavior. His conclusions concerning barriers to change are wide-ranging and their implications for all social scientists are significant indeed.

The Logic of Poverty Simon Mitchell, 2024-05-01 First published in 1981, The Logic of Poverty consists of eight essays that share at least one assumption: that Northeast Brazil provides a startling example of inhumane economic development. The contributors have all worked in the area and know it at first hand. They look at rural structure and the role of the unemployed reserve army, the state of the sugar industry, the ineffectiveness of the irrigation schemes, the stagnation in the fishing sector, the lack of credit available to peasants, and the role of SUDENE, the first development agency in the region. Together they paint a picture of poverty and of the factors that allow it to continue, and they place that poverty in the context of the wider economy of Brazil, relating it to the extraordinary transformation that has been called the Brazilian miracle This book will be of interest to students of geography anthropology economics and sociology

Compendium of community and indigenous strategies for climate change adaptation Mwenge Kahinda, J., Bahal'okwibale, P. M., Budaza, N., Mavundla, S., Nohayi, N.N., Nortje, K., Boroto, R.J., 2021-10-27 Climate change is a major challenge for life on Earth It is mainly manifested through modifications of average temperature rainfall intensity and patterns winds and solar radiation These modifications significantly affect basic resources such as land and water resources Populations at disproportionately higher risk of adverse consequences with global warming of 1.5°C and beyond include disadvantaged and vulnerable populations some indigenous peoples and local communities dependent on agricultural or coastal livelihoods IPCC 2018 Therefore adaptation measures are recommended in order to cope with climate change Indigenous peoples have developed practices for climate change adaptation based on their long term experience with adverse climatic effects There was thus a need to identify such practices as they could be effectively mainstreamed in community based adaptation programmes This report makes an inventory of indigenous and community adaptation practices across the world The inventory was mainly done through literature review field work and meetings with selected organisations The case studies documented are categorized in five technologies and practices themes including 1 Weather forecasting and early warning systems 2 Grazing and Livestock management 3 Soil and Water Management including cross slope barriers 4 Water harvesting and storage practices 5 Forest Management as a coping strategy to water scarcity and 6 Integrated wetlands and fisheries management These were then related to the corresponding main agro ecological zones AEZ namely arid semi arid sub humid humid highlands and coastal and wetlands The AEZ approach was considered as an entry point to adopting or adapting an existing indigenous strategy to similar areas Challenges that threaten the effectiveness of indigenous and community adaptation strategies were identified These challenges include climate change itself which is affecting the indicators and resources used by communities human and livestock population growth which is increasing pressure on natural resources beyond their resilience thresholds current institutional and political settings which limit migrants movements and delimits pieces of usable land per household cultural considerations of communities such as taboos and spiritual beliefs and the lack of knowledge transfer to younger communities Indigenous knowledge provides a crucial foundation for community based adaptation strategies that sustain the resilience of social ecological systems at the interconnected local regional and global scales In spite of challenges and knowledge gaps these strategies have the potential of being strengthened through the adoption and adaptation of introduced technology from other communities or modern science Attention to these strategies is already being paid by several donor funded organisations although in an uncoordinated manner

Caye Caulker Anne Sutherland, 2019-09-10 First published in 1986 In the last decade the island of Caye Caulker was transformed from a subsistence fishing village into an affluent enclave within a poor Caribbean country This ethnographic study of the island recounts the economic success story of Caye Caulker attributing the island's relative prosperity to several key features: the reorganization of the lobster fishing industry into producer cooperatives, the limiting and controlling of tourism, and the maintenance of sociocultural institutions that historically have created strong family networks and encouraged autonomy and self-sufficiency. Dr. Sutherland's unusual case study of positive development without external assistance makes a valuable contribution to our understanding of Third World development in general and local development in particular.

Management Systems for Riverine Fisheries Thayer Scudder, Thomas Conelly, 1985-01-01. This paper is concerned specifically with the problems of river fisheries and associated management issues. It deals in particular with the scope for building on traditional practices through the participation of traditional fishing communities as a means of improving the quality of river fishery management. The paper reviews the most frequently encountered problems of riverine fisheries such as overfishing due to population pressure or migration and artificially induced environmental factors such as dams, pollution, and deforestation. It lays stress on the importance of studying fishing communities as well as strictly biological factors and presents a four-stage analysis of the evolution of traditional riverine fisheries. Several undesirable consequences of this typical evolution, both on the resource itself and on traditional fishing communities, are identified and illustrated by case studies from the Amazon and the Zambesi. Certain types of traditional management strategies are examined and assessed for their future utility. The current ineffectiveness of many existing government river fisheries management policies is noted, either as a result of lack of resources or because they are inappropriate, often rooted in outdated colonial legislation. The lack of both limited access measures and of participation by local fishing communities are highlighted as major deficiencies. The paper concludes by linking these two features as crucial components of durable river management strategies for the future, although other possibilities for management are also reviewed and assessed. The paper contains a comprehensive bibliography for further reading.
