Rogue Reels Oppositional Film In Britain 1945 9:

Rogue Reels Margaret Dickinson, 2019-07-25 Margaret Dickinson's history of oppositional film is a pioneering account of an important but little documented aspect of modern British Cinema the often extreme form of independent cinema that accompanied the radical politics of the 1960s and 70s During the 70s an organized independent film and video movement emerged including such filmmaking groups as London Filmmakers Co op Cinema Action Amber Liberation Films and Sheffield Co op This avant garde exerted an increasing influence within the British media mainstream changing attitudes and practice and enabling cross over work by filmmakers such as Peter Greenaway and Sally Potter This oppositional sector revolutionized British media especially during the formation of Channel Four at the start of the 1980s even as the political landscape at large was shifting dramatically to the right Organized into three parts Rogue Reels provides the first overview of the various strands of politicized filmmaking that emerged in postwar Britain Part I is a concise history of the movement Part II collects key texts and documents from the period 1971-92 Part III is made up of seven oral histories of the most influential production houses Recuperating the radical tradition of postwar filmmaking which continues to impact on today's media culture Rogue Reels raises urgent issues of policy and practice Mixing narrative with first hand accounts and the important statements and documents of this movement the book provides the first overview of the different strands of filmmaking that are still impacting on avant garde and mainstream practice The British working class in postwar film

Philip Gillett, 2019-01-04 An incidental pleasure of watching a film is what it tells us about the society in which it is made Using a sociological model The British working class in postwar film looks at how working class people were portrayed in British feature films in the decade after the Second World War Though some of the films examined are well known others have been forgotten and deserve reassessment Original statistical data is used to assess the popularity of the films with audiences With its interdisciplinary approach and the avoidance of jargon this book seeks to broaden the approach to film studies Students of media and cultural studies are introduced to the skills of other disciplines while sociologists and historians are encouraged to consider the value of film evidence in their own fields This work should appeal to all readers interested in social history and in how cinema and society works Directors in British and Irish Cinema Robert

Murphy, 2019-07-25 A guide to directors who have worked in the British and Irish film industries between 1895 and 2005 Each of its 980 entries on individuals directors gives a resume of the director's career evaluates their achievements and provides a complete filmography It is useful for those interested in film making in Britain and Ireland The Quay Brothers Suzanne Buchan, 2011 The complex special power of the Quay Brothers puppet animation poetics Reel Rebels: the London Film-Makers' Co-Operative 1966 to 1996 Joy I. Payne, 2015-07-17 The London FilmMakers Cooperative was founded in 1966 by a group of artists who sought to explore the possibilities of the moving image whilst maintaining autonomy over the production distribution and exhibition of their work Although their films were not overtly political artists

nevertheless expressed their political attitudes by creating nonnarrative films thereby rejecting conventional narrative structures associated with mainstream commercial cinema which they perceived as supporting the dominant ideology in society A return to narrative in the 1980s coincided with the introduction of British Art Cinema and the art house films of Derek Jarman Peter Greenaway and Sally Potter all of whom made experimental films in the early days of the London Co op

Memory, Place and Autobiography Jill Daniels,2019-01-03 There has been a significant growth in autobiographical documentary films in recent years This innovative book proposes that the filmmaker in her dual role as maker and subject may act as a cultural guide in an exploration of the social world It argues that in the cinematic mediation of memory the mimetic approach in the construction of documentary films may not be feasible and memory may instead be evoked elliptically through hybrid strategies such as critical realism and fictional enactment Recognizing that identity is formed by history and what goes on in the world the book charts the historical trajectory of the British independent filmmaking movement from the mid 1970s to the present growth of new online distribution outlets and new media through digital technologies and social media

A History of 1970s Experimental Film P. Gaal-Holmes,2015-03-17 This comprehensive historical account demonstrates the rich diversity in 1970s British experimental filmmaking acting as a form of reclamation for films and filmmakers marginalized within established histories An indispensable book for practitioners historians and critics alike it provides new interpretations of this rich and diverse history

100 British Documentaries Patrick Russell,2019-07-25 Ever since John Grierson popularized the term documentary British non fiction film has been renowned sometimes reviled but seldom properly appreciated 100 British Documentaries provides a uniquely accessible occasionally provocative introduction to a rich and surprisingly varied tradition by considering 100 examples taken from across a century's worth of output. The 100 films range from the Victorian period to the present day. Alongside such classics as Night Mail and Touching the Void are documentaries that illustrate the many uses to which it has been put from pro gram filler to political propaganda to classroom teaching aid and the many styles and viewpoints it has embraced. While the focus is on the documentary film several television productions are included indicating how the genre has developed on the small screen.

British art cinema Paul Newland, Brian Hoyle, 2019-07-23 This is the first book to provide a direct and comprehensive account of British art cinema. Film history has tended to view British filmmakers as aesthetically conservative but the truth is they have a long tradition of experiment and artistry both within and beyond the mainstream. Beginning with the silent period and running up to the 2010s the book draws attention to this tradition while acknowledging that art cinema in Britain is a complex and fluid concept that needs to be considered within broader concerns. It will be of particular interest to scholars and students of British cinema history film genre experimental filmmaking and British cultural history.

Transformation and Tradition in 1960s British Cinema Richard Farmer, 2019-05-03 Making substantial use of new and underexplored archive resources that provide a wealth of information and insight on the period in question this book offers a fresh perspective on the major resurgence of creativity and international appeal experienced by British cinema in the 1960s.

Women's Activism Behind the Screens Frances C. Galt, 2020-11-27 Frances C. Galt explores the role of trade unions and women's activism in the British film and television industries in this important contribution to debates around gender inequality. The book traces the influence of the union for technicians and other behind the camera workers and examines the relationship between gender and class in the labour movement. Drawing on previously unseen archival material and oral history interviews with activists it casts new light on women's experiences of union participation and feminism over nine decades. As concerns about the gender pay gap women's rights and harassment continue it assesses historical progress and points the way to further change in film and TV.
