Sam J. Tangredi,2000 This survey is a product of the Quadrennial Defense Review QDR 2001 Working Group a project of the Institute for National Strategic Studies at the National Defense University Sponsored by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff the working group is an independent honest broker effort intended to build intellectual capital for the upcoming QDR More specifically it aims to frame issues develop options and provide insights for the Chairman the services and the next administration in three areas defense strategy criteria for sizing conventional forces and force structure for 2005 2010 One of the group s initial tasks was to assess the future security environment to the year 2025 This was pursued by surveying the available literature to identify areas of consensus and debate The goal was to conduct an assessment that would be far more comprehensive than any single research project or group effort could possibly produce This survey documents major areas of agreement and disagreement across a range of studies completed since the last QDR in 1997 Because it distills a variety of sources and organizes and compares divergent views this volume makes a unique contribution to the literature It also provides a particularly strong set of insights and assumptions on which both strategists and force planners can draw in the next Quadrennial Defense Review This survey does not claim to predict or illustrate all possible wars that Anmrca might face between now and the year 2025 Rather it attempts through analysis of representative and reputable sources to incorporate the most likely characteristics of the future security environment into a single scenario while heightening our awareness of dissenting viewpoints and plausible wild cards

Global Development and Human Security Robert Picciotto,2017-07-05 Global Development and Human Security explores the possibility of connecting all countries to the global economy while defusing the social tensions and managing the security risks that can result from exposure to a turbulent international system The complex intersection between security and development policies has not been adequately mapped or explored Frail and failing states that lack sound market and security institutions are the weak links in an interconnected global system Yet aid allocation principles discourage engagement with these difficult partners and the insular culture of development assistance hinders interaction with the security community In a world beset by problems without passport infectious diseases environmental pollution international crime conflict spillovers terrorism etc a new paradigm should supplant the now obsolete development consensus The authors took stock of current development practices through the prism of Sweden s Shared Responsibility bill which addresses peace security opportunity environmental conservation human rights and democracy The resulting volume draws the implications of emerging threats to global peace and prosperity for development policy and practice It seeks to build bridges of understanding between the development community and the security establishment by bringing together lessons of experience currently scattered in the literature Each chapter is self contained and includes policy findings and recommendations The book is principally aimed at practitioners who need up to date knowledge about security and development issues Publication of this paperback edition makes the book available for use as an introductory text for security specialists with little knowledge of development or for development specialists with limited knowledge of security or for college or university students in these areas
