Transcultural Architecture Thorsten Botz-Bornstein,2016-03-09 Critical Regionalism is a notion which gained popularity in architectural debate as a synthesis of universal modern elements and individualistic elements derived from local cultures This book shifts the focus from Critical Regionalism towards a broader concept of Transcultural Architecture and defines Critical Regionalism as a subgroup of the latter One of the benefits that this change of perspective brings about is that a large part of the political agenda of Critical Regionalism which consists of resisting attitudes forged by typically Western experiences is softened and negotiated according to premises provided by local circumstances A further benefit is that several responses dependent on factors that initial definitions of Critical Regionalism never took into account can now be considered At the book s centre is an analysis of Reima and Raili Pietilä s Sief Palace Area project in Kuwait Further cases of modern architecture in China Korea and Saudi Arabia show that the critique which holds that Critical Regionalism is a typical western exercise is not sound in all circumstances The book argues that there are different Critical Regionalisms and not all of them impose Western paradigms on non Western cultures Non Western regionalists can also successfully participate in the Western enlightened discourse even when they do not directly and consciously act against Western models Furthermore the book proposes that a certain architectural rationality can be contained in architecture itself not imposed by outside parameters like aesthetics comfort or even tradition but flowing out of a social game of which architecture is a part The key concept is that of the form of life as developed by Ludwig Wittgenstein whose thoughts are here linked to Critical Regionalism Kenneth Frampton argues that Critical Regionalism offers something well beyond comfort and accommodation What he has in mind are ethical precepts closely linked to a Encyclopedia of Body Adornment Margo DeMello,2007-08-30 People everywhere have attempted to change their bodies in an effort to meet their cultural standards of beauty as well as their religious and or social obligations Often times this modification or adornment of their bodies is part of the complex process of creating and re creating personal and social identities Body painting has probably been practiced since the Paleolithic as archaeological evidence indicates and the earliest human evidence of tattooing goes back to the Neolithic with mummies found in Europe Central Asia the Andes and the Middle East Adornments such as jewelry have been found in the earliest human graves and bodies unearthed from five thousand years ago show signs of intentional head shaping It is clear that adorning and modifying the body is a central human practice Over 200 entries address the major adornments and modifications their historical and cross cultural locations and the major cultural groups and places in which body modification has been central to social and cultural practices This encyclopedia also includes background information on the some of the central figures involved in creating and popularizing tattooing piercing and other body modifications in

The Future of Tradition Leon Shaskolsky Sheleff, 2013-09-05 Recent years have seen an increased interest in the variety of cultures co existing within one state and a growing acknowledgement of the values ensconced in pluralistic social structures this book examines the manner in which indigenous people can function in modern states preserving their traditional customs while simultaneously adapting aspects of their culture to the challenges posed by modern life Whereas it was formerly assumed that these tribal frameworks were doomed to extinction and some states even encouraged such a process there has been a revival in their vitality linked to a recognition of their rights The book offers a comprehensive survey of various aspects of tribal life focusing on political issues such as the meaning of sovereignty legal issues dealing with the role of custom and social issues concerned with sustaining communal life A focused study is made of a whole series of legal factors relating to possession and ownership of land religious rites the nature of polygamous marriages the assertion of group rites the manner of peacefully resolving disputes and allied questions Recent judicial decisions are analysed as a reflection of the far reaching changes that have taken place in a process that has seen the former disregard of basic rights of indigenous people being replaced by an awareness of the injustices perpetrated in the past and a willingness to seek to redress them The comparison between approaches of different English speaking countries provides an account of interwoven developments

Naturally Late Will Johncock, 2019-04-15 Is time a natural reality that social symbols such as clocks and calendars merely contingently represent Lateness protocols seemingly exhibit such contingency for not all cultures regulate synchronization identically Just as social cultural time structures are interpreted to diverge from time s natural rhythm body modifications are often presented as social productions that divert human bodies from their naturally originated corporeal temporality A similar separation informs climate change discourses supposing a natural rhythm that industrialized culture has invaded the effects of which humans might be too late to arrest Interrogating this conceptual separation matters given that if certain times are considered to be more natural than others a situated politics emerges regarding the associated cultural structures Furthermore our personal investments in experiences of lateness which are embedded within social time seemingly contradict the constructionist impression that social time is merely a contingent misrepresentation of what time actually is Through Derridian deconstruction Merleau Pontian phenomenology and Bergsonian time philosophy complemented with voices from fields including object oriented ontology new materialism and new criticism this book re evaluates the timing of times from a philosophical perspective

Derrida, Myth and the Impossibility of Philosophy Anais Spitzer, 2011-06-02 Philosophy Aesthetics And Cultural Theory Is An Interdisciplinary Series In Continental Philosophy Cultural Theory And The Arts Edited By Hugh J Silverman Stony Brook University New York USA This is a compelling study of the intimate complex and often unexpected aspects of the relationship between philosophy and myth This is an eloquent forceful and altogether timely

contribution in a world in which new myths purport to be unquestionable while philosophy bides its time in self absorbed conceptual retreat Its publication marks a new step in deconstructive thinking after which deconstruction will never again be the same This book is a gift precisely in the Derridean sense described within it Its gift is that it is a tour de force The book leads its reader on a profound and clear even if complex exploratory voyage into and out of the maze of Jacques Derrida s web of deconstructive thought While making this trip the book weaves a radical argument against the notion that philosophical logic transcends mythic qualities of understanding It shows compellingly that philosophy s knowledge of truth is inescapably embedded in myth Bombarded by narratives that terrorize and repress we may often consider myth to be constrictive dogma or at best something to be readily disregarded as unphilosophical and irrelevant However such dismissals miss a crucial aspect of myth Harnessing the insights of Jacques Derrida s deconstruction and Mark C Taylor s philosophical reading of complexity theory Derrida Myth and the Impossibility of Philosophy provocatively reframes the pivotal relation of myth to thinking and to philosophy demonstrating that myth s inherent ambiguity engenders vital and inescapable deconstructive propensities Exploring myth s disruptive presence Spitzer shows that philosophy cannot separate itself from myth Instead myth is an inevitable condition of the possibility of philosophy
