Radiation Damage in Biomolecular Systems

Gustavo García Gómez-Tejedor, Martina Christina Fuss, 2012-01-05 Since the discovery of X rays and radioactivity ionizing radiations have been widely applied in medicine both for diagnostic and therapeutic purposes The risks associated with radiation exposure and handling led to the parallel development of the field of radiation protection Pioneering experiments done by Sanche and co workers in 2000 showed that low energy secondary electrons which are abundantly generated along radiation tracks are primarily responsible for radiation damage through successive interactions with the molecular constituents of the medium Apart from ionizing processes which are usually related to radiation damage below the ionization level low energy electrons can induce molecular fragmentation via dissociative processes such as internal excitation and electron attachment This prompted collaborative projects between different research groups from European countries together with other specialists from Canada the USA and Australia This book summarizes the advances achieved by these research groups after more than ten years of studies on radiation damage in biomolecular systems An extensive Part I deals with recent experimental and theoretical findings on radiation induced damage at the molecular level It includes many contributions on electron and positron collisions with biologically relevant molecules X ray and ion interactions are also covered Part II addresses different approaches to radiation damage modelling In Part III biomedical aspects of radiation effects are treated on different scales After the physics oriented focus of the previous parts there is a gradual transition to biology and medicine with the increasing size of the object studied Finally Part IV is dedicated to current trends and novel techniques in radiation reserach and the applications hence arising It includes new developments in radiotherapy and related cancer therapies as well as technical optimizations of accelerators and totally new equipment designs giving a glimpse of the near future of radiation based medical treatments

Electron Paramagnetic Resonance Bruce C Gilbert, N M Atherton, M J Davies, 2007-10-31 Specialist Periodical Reports provide systematic and detailed review coverage of progress in the major areas of chemical research Written by experts in their specialist fields the series creates a unique service for the active research chemist supplying regular critical in depth accounts of progress in particular areas of chemistry For over 80 years the Royal Society of Chemistry and its predecessor the Chemical Society have been publishing reports charting developments in chemistry which originally took the form of Annual Reports However by 1967 the whole spectrum of chemistry could no longer be contained within one volume and the series Specialist Periodical Reports was born The Annual Reports themselves still existed but were divided into two and subsequently three volumes covering Inorganic Organic and Physical Chemistry For more general coverage of the highlights in chemistry they remain a must Since that time the SPR series has altered according to the fluctuating degree of activity in various fields of chemistry Some titles have remained unchanged while others have altered their emphasis along with their titles some have been combined under a new name whereas others have had to be discontinued The current list of Specialist Periodical Reports can be seen on the inside flap of this volume

Recent Trends in Radiation Chemistry James F. Wishart, 2010 This volume is a review of the trends in the field of radiation chemistry research It covers a broad spectrum of topics ranging from the historical perspective instrumentation of accelerators in the nanosecond to femtosecond region through the use of radiation chemical methods in the study of antioxidants and nanomaterials radiation induced DNA damage by ionizing radiation involving both direct and indirect effects to ultrafast events in free electron transfer radiation induced processes at solid liquid interfaces and the recent work on infrared spectroscopy and radiation chemistry The book is unique in that it covers a wide spectrum of topics that will be of great interest to beginners as well as experts Recent data on ultrafast phenomena from the recently established world class laser driven accelerators facilities in the US France and Japan are reviewed Advances in Quantum Chemistry, 2006-12-22

Advances in Quantum Chemistry presents surveys of current developments in this rapidly developing field that falls between the historically established areas of mathematics physics chemistry and biology With invited reviews written by leading international researchers each presenting new results it provides a single vehicle for following progress in this interdisciplinary area Publishes articles invited reviews and proceedings of major international conferences and workshops Written by leading international researchers in quantum and theoretical chemistry Highlights important interdisciplinary developments Radiation Induced Molecular Phenomena in Nucleic Acids Manoj Shukla, Jerzy Leszczynski, 2008-05-08

Comprehensive theoretical and experimental analysis of UV radiation and low energy electron induced phenomena in nucleic acid bases NABs and base assemblies are presented in this book NABs are highly photostable the absorbed energy is dissipated in the form of ultrafast nonradiative decay This book highlights the possible mechanisms of these phenomena which is important for all living species and discusses technical challenges in exploration of these processes Radiation Protection in Medical Physics Yves Lemoigne, Alessandra Caner, 2011-04-14 This book introduces the fundamental aspects of Radiation Protection in Medical Physics and covers three main themes General Radiation Protection Principles Radiobiology Principles Radiation Protection in Hospital Medical Physics Each of these topics is developed by analysing the underlying physics principles and their implementation quality and safety aspects clinical performance and recent advances in the field Some issues specific to the individual techniques are also treated e.g. calculation of patient dose as well as that of workers in hospital optimisation of equipment used shielding design of radiation facilities radiation in oncology such as use of brachytherapy in gynecology or interventional procedures All topics are presented with didactical language and style making this book an appropriate reference for students and professionals seeking a comprehensive introduction to the field as well as a reliable overview of the most recent developments DNA Damage and Repair Jac A. Nickoloff, Merl F.

Hoekstra, 1998-08-12 Cutting edge reviews by leading researchers illuminate key aspects of DNA repair in mammalian systems and its relationship to human genetic disease and cancer Major topics include UV and X Ray repair repair of chemical damage recombination repair mismatch repair transcription repair coupling and the role of DNA repair in disease prevention Extensive up to date references and rigorous peer review of each chapter make this volume definitive and bring it to the active frontiers of research
