Radical Revisionism gathers important recent writings on Australian art. These writings are "revisionist" insofar as they seek to bring a series of previously peripheral perspectives to the study of the art of the post-1960s, post-1970s, post-1980s, the overturning of the legal doctrine of terra nullius. Radical Revisionism asks: what is the proper role for art history? Is it merely to chronicle the truth of the past, or is it actively to intervene in the system it records? These questions obviously bear a relationship to the "history wars" that raged throughout the 1990s in Australia. The anthology concludes by asking whether there can in fact be a history of "Australia" in which white and Indigenous artists come together. It proposes that the 21st century will be characterized by a certain "unAustralian" history of Australian art.
