Somerville, 2012-08-31 An exposition and analysis of the development of propaganda focusing on how the development of radio transformed the delivery and impact of propaganda and led to the use of radio to incite hatred and violence The Seduction of Brazil Antonio Pedro Tota, 2010-05-20 Following completion of the U S air base in Natal Brazil in 1942 U S airmen departing for North Africa during World War II communicated with Brazilian mechanics with a thumbs up before starting their engines This sign soon replaced the Brazilian tradition of touching the earlobe to indicate agreement friendship and all that was positive and good yet another indication of the Americanization of Brazil under way during this period In this translation of O Imperialismo Sedutor Antonio Pedro Tota considers both the Good Neighbor Policy and broader cultural influences to argue against simplistic theories of U S cultural imperialism and exploitation He shows that Brazilians actively interpreted negotiated and reconfigured U S culture in a process of cultural recombination The market he argues was far more important in determining the nature of this cultural exchange than state directed propaganda efforts because Brazil already was primed to adopt and disseminate American culture within the framework of its own rapidly expanding market for mass culture By examining the motives and strategies behind rising U S influence and its relationship to a simultaneous process of cultural and political centralization in Brazil Tota shows that these processes were not contradictory but rather mutually reinforcing The Seduction of Brazil brings greater sophistication to both Brazilian and American understanding of the forces at play during this period and should appeal to historians as well as students of Latin America culture and communications Asian American Spies Brian

Origins of Mass Communications Research During the American Cold War Timothy

Glander, 1999-12-01 In this critical examination of the beginnings of mass communications research in the United States written from the perspective of an educational historian Timothy Glander uses archival materials that have not been widely studied to document contextualize and interpret the dominant expressions of this field during the time in which it became rooted in American academic life and tries to give articulation to the larger historical forces that gave the field its fundamental purposes By mid century mass communications researchers had become recognized as experts in describing the effects of the mass media on learning and other social behavior However the conditions that promoted and sustained their authority as experts have not been adequately explored This study analyzes the ideological and historical forces giving rise to and shaping their research Until this study the history of communications research has been written almost entirely from within the field of communications studies and as a result has tended to refrain from asking troubling foundational questions about the origins of the field or to entertain how its emergence shaped educational discourse during the post World War II period By examining the intersection between the individual biographies of key leaders in the communications field Wilbur Schramm Paul Lazarsfeld Bernard Berelson Hadley Cantril Stuart Dodd and others and the larger historical context in which they lived and worked this book aims to tell part of the story of how the field of communications became divorced from the field of education The book also examines the work of significant voices on the rise of mass communications study including C Wright Mills William W Biddle Paul Goodman and others who theorized about the emergence of a mass society It concludes with a discussion of the contemporary relevance of the theory of a mass society to educational thought and practice
