Nature's Museums Carla Yanni, 2005-09-09 Yanni art history Rutgers U examines the relationship between architecture and science in the 19th century by considering the physical placement and display of natural artifacts in Victorian natural history museums She begins by discussing the problem of classification the social history of collecting as well as architectural competitions and Victorian Science and Imagery Nancy Rose Marshall, 2021-07-27 The nineteenth century was a period of science and imagery when scientific theories and discoveries challenged longstanding boundaries between animal plant and human and when art and visual culture produced new notions about the place of the human in the natural world Just as scientists relied on graphic representation to conceptualize their ideas artists moved seamlessly between scientific debate and creative expression to support or contradict popular scientific theories such as Darwin's theory of evolution and sexual selection deliberately drawing on concepts in ways that allowed them to refute popular claims or disrupt conventional knowledges Focusing on the close kinship between the arts and sciences during the Victorian period the art historians contributing to this volume reveal the unique ways in which nineteenth century British and American visual culture participated in making science and in which science informed art at a crucial moment in the history of the development of the modern world Together they explore topics in geology meteorology medicine anatomy evolution and zoology as well as a range of media from photography to oil painting They remind us that science and art are not tightly compartmentalized separate influences Rather these are fields that share forms manifest as waves layers lines or geometries that invest in the idea of the evolution of form and that generate surprisingly kindred responses such as pain pleasure empathy and sympathy Science and Visual Culture in Great Britain in the Long Nineteenth Century Diana Donald, 2024-10-07 This volume consists of a collection of primary sources throwing light on the various aspects of interplay between zoology and visual culture in nineteenth century Britain Scientific illustration both in specialist studies and in works intended for a broader lay readership are included These sources throw light on the difficulties of both authors and illustrators in conceptualising their subjects in visual forms given the great extension of knowledge of the natural world and the technical complexities of image making in the pre photographic era The study examines the impact of zoological knowledge and theories on imaginative art and explores the aestheticisation and appropriation of nature especially in relation to bird imagery in painting illustration and the decorative arts Finally the collection examines the presentation of zoology and pal ozoology to the general public for both education and entertainment purposes This title will be of great interest to students of the History of Science and Art History Nature Displaced, Nature Displayed Nuala C. Johnson, 2011-04-29 Botanical gardens brought together in a single space the great diversity of the earth's flora They displaced nature from forest and foothill and re arranged it to reveal something of the scientific principles underpinning the apparent chaos of the wild Nature Displaced Nature Displayed shows how the design and display of such gardens was not determined by scientific principles alone Through a study of three botanical gardens belonging to the University of Cambridge the Royal Dublin Society and the Belfast Natural History Society the author shows how the final outcome involved a complex interplay of ideas about place identity empire botanical science and especially aesthetics creating spaces that would educate the mind as well as please the senses This highly engaging book offers a wealth of fresh insights into both the history and development of botanical gardens as well as connections between science and aesthetics The Victorian Palace of Science Edward J.
