Mary Ann Kingsley,1990 Developing Effective Student Peer Mentoring Programs Peter J. Collier,2023-07-03 At a time when college completion is a major issue and there is particular concern about the retention of underserved student populations peer mentoring programs offer one solution to promoting student success This is a comprehensive resource for creating refining and sustaining effective student peer mentoring programs While providing a blueprint for successfully designing programs for a wide range of audiences from freshmen to doctoral students it also offers specific guidance on developing programs targeting three large groups of under served students first generation students international students and student veterans This guidebook is divided into two main sections The opening section begins by reviewing the issue of degree non completion as well as college adjustment challenges that all students and those in each of the targeted groups face Subsequent chapters in section one explore models of traditional and non traditional student transition persistence and belonging address what peer mentoring can realistically achieve and present a rubric for categorizing college student peer mentoring programs The final chapter in section one provides a detailed framework for assessing students adjustment issues to determine which ones peer mentoring programs can appropriately address Section two of the guidebook shifts from the theoretical to the practical by covering the nuts and bolts of developing a college student peer mentoring program The initial chapter in section two covers a range of design issues including establishing a program timeline developing a budget securing funding getting commitments from stakeholders hiring staff recruiting mentors and mentees and developing policies and procedures Subsequent chapters analyze the strengths and limitations of different program delivery options from paired and group face to face mentoring to their e mentoring equivalents offer guidance on the creation of program content and resources for mentors and mentees and provide mentor training exercises and curricular guidelines Section two concludes by outlining processes for evaluating programs including setting goals collecting appropriate data and methods of analysis and by offering advice on sustaining and institutionalizing programs Each chapter opens with a case study illustrating its principal points This book is primarily intended as a resource for student affairs professionals and program coordinators who are developing new peer mentoring programs or considering refining existing ones It may also serve as a text in courses designed to train future peer mentors and leaders Postgraduate Education and Training in the Social Sciences Robert G. Burgess,1994 This volume presents a guide to the state of the art in postgraduate education and training in the social sciences the concept of quality in the PhD examining styles and strategies of supervisors with a view to improving completion rates the process of supervision the motives of supervisors and students and their relationship U.S.

Students Abroad Marianthi Zikopoulos,1988 Statistics are provided on U S students overseas with data coming from the Study Abroad Survey a survey of 2 896 accredited U S institutions of higher education with 1 898 responding for a 65% response rate Details are provided on the characteristics and destinations of the 48 483 students abroad Reasons for the increase in study abroad include a desire among American youth in the 1970s and 1980s to understand a world and network of international relationships offering exciting opportunities and perils the increasing strength of the American dollar against foreign currencies and a softening of U S cultural attitudes toward foreign lands Obstacles to such study include doubts about the academic rigor of such programs suspicion about non academic motives of program promoters and regret at loss of time spent on the home campus The predominant direction of student mobility in the world today is from Third World countries to the host countries of the West Important outflows from the western countries are also occurring but data have been scarce about U S students overseas This study provides statistics on world region with the vast majority of study abroad students in Western Europe leading countries with the highest being the United Kingdom France Spain and Italy field of study led by liberal arts and foreign languages duration of study more than one third staying for one semester and gender two thirds female Statistical data are provided on university name city and study abroad student count SM Sponsorship and Leverage Alan P. Wagner,1989 The study examined the influence of financial sources on field of study decisions of non sponsored and sponsored students from developing countries at both the graduate and undergraduate levels Findings are based on analysis of survey responses of 868 foreign students from five countries Brazil Egypt Indonesia Jamaica and Nigeria studying at 20 U S colleges and universities Major findings included the following 1 a large proportion of foreign students are nonsponsored but sponsorship is dramatically more important for graduate students than for undergraduates 2 for students receiving sponsor assistance there has been an inadequate attempt to leverage funding by making use of personal family or institutional resources 3 the relationship between sponsorship and the intention to return home is strong and could probably be increased by tying some aid to employment return requirements 4 there is no evidence that sponsorship has been effective as a force to redress inequities or promote social inclusion of under represented groups 5 sponsor support does influence field of study choices and 6 better means are needed to provide incentives and information to students to promote congruence between their preferences and the goals of sponsoring institutions Data are detailed in 28 tables Includes 13 references DB Mentors and Supervisors Nathaniel Friedman,1987 Handbook of Research on Engineering, Business, and Healthcare Applications of Data Science and Analytics Patil, Bhushan,Vohra, Manisha,2020-10-23 Analyzing data sets has continued to be an invaluable application for numerous industries By combining different algorithms technologies and systems used to extract information from data and solve complex problems various sectors have reached new heights and have changed our world for the better The Handbook of Research on Engineering Business and Healthcare Applications of Data Science and Analytics is a collection of innovative research on the methods and applications of data
