race sex and class and the process of British colonisation and government in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Leadership and Change in the Western Pacific R. Feinberg, K. A. Watson-Gegeo, 2021-01-07 An ethnographic exploration of the rise of new forms of leadership at community and national levels with islanders are synthesising traditional and Western models Association for Social Anthropology in Oceania Newsletter Association for Social Anthropology in Oceania, 1988 Entrepreneurship Norris F. Krueger, 2002 This new collection provides a much needed retrospective view of the key academic work published in this area The papers here highlight the importance of studying entrepreneurship from a wide range of perspectives including research that derives from economics history sociology psychology and from different business disciplinary bases such as marketing finance and strategy The overall focus in this set is on entrepreneurial activity rather than specifically small or family owned business and favours research articles over those that deal purely with practice Tufala Gavman Brian J. Bresnihan, Keith Woodward, 2002 The stories of thirty eight men and four women Melanesians Britons French Australia and New Zealanders all of whom played a part in the formative years of what was to become the Republic of Vanuatu Networking and Community Partnership Steve Trevillion, 2018 First published in 1999 this volume is a revised and fully updated version of the ground breaking book Caring in the Community which was the first book to attempt to develop a theory of networking for social workers and others It is still the only book which has systematically applied key networking principles to both community care and child care There is now no doubt that the time has come for a new edition which will take into account the developments which have taken place in social care since the work was first published This edition will also incorporate comparative European material thereby placing networking principles in a broader context Bridging Mental Boundaries in a Postcolonial Microcosm William F. S. Miles, 1998-09-01 The South Pacific archipelago of Vanuatu simultaneously experienced the two major types of colonialism of the modern era British and French the only instance in which these colonial powers jointly ruled the same people in the same territory over an extended period of time This in addition to its small size and recent independence 1980 makes Vanuatu an ideal case study of the clash of contemporary colonialism and its enduring legacies At the same time the uniqueness of Melanesian society highlights the singular role of indigenous culture in shaping both colonial and postcolonial political reality With its close attention to global processes Bridging Mental Boundaries in a Postcolonial Microcosm provides a fresh comparative approach to an island state that has most frequently been examined from an ethnographic or area studies perspective William F S Miles looks at the long term effects of the joint Franco British administration in public policy political disputes and social cleavages in post independence Vanuatu He emphasizes the strong imprint left by condocolonialism in dividing ni Vanuatu into Anglophones and Francophones but also suggest how this basic division is being replaced or overlaid by divisions based on urban or rural residence traditional or modern employment and disparities between the status and activities of men and women As such this volume is more than an analysis of a unique case of colonialism and its effects it is an interpretation of the evolution of an insular society beset by particularly convoluted precolonial colonial and postcolonial fractures Based principally on research conducted in 1991 and following a key change in Vanuatu's government a subsequent visit in 1992 the analysis is enriched by regular comparisons between Vanuatu and other colonized societies where the author has carried out original research including Niger Nigeria Martinique and Pondicherry Extensive interviews with ni Vanuatu are integrated throughout the text presenting islanders' views of their own experience Person and Place Sabine Hess, 2009-08-01 Concerned with contemporary notions of personhood and the relationship between persons and places this book presents a detailed insight into the Vanua Lavan's engagement with modernity and examines how they relate to the past make sense of the present and anticipate the future Marilyn Strathern's claim that the Melanesian person is a dividual by and large holds for the Vanua Lavan person But Vanua Lavans have also been exposed to and creatively engaged with what can be summarised under the term Western individualism The author draws together several themes discourses and conversations which concern Vanuatu specifically the Pacific as a wider geographic area but also theoretical fields in anthropology the relevance and expressions of sociality through kinship concepts of person issues about land and cosmology the kastom debate and questions about continuity and change In doing so she provides a snapshot of contemporary notions of personhood Subject Catalog, 1982 Library of Congress, 1982 Land Tenure in the Pacific R. G. Crocombe, 1987

Capital and Inequality in Rural Papua New Guinea Bettina Beer, Tobias Schwoerer, 2022-06-28 That large scale capital drives inequality in states like Papua New Guinea is clear enough how it does so is less clear This edited collection presents studies of the local contexts of capital intensive projects in the mining oil and gas and agro industry sectors in rural and semi rural parts of Papua New Guinea it asks what is involved when large scale capital and its agents begin to become significant nodes in hitherto more local social networks Its contributors describe the processes initiated by the planned presence of extractive industries that tend to reinforce already existing inequalities or to create and socially entrench novel inequalities The studies largely focus on the beginnings of such transformations when hopes for social improvement are highest and economic inequalities still incipient They show how those hopes and the encompassing socio political transformations characteristic of this phase act to produce far reaching impacts on ways of life setting precedents for and embedding the social distribution of gains and losses The chapters address a range of settings the PNG Liquid Natural Gas pipeline newly established eucalyptus and oil palm plantations a planned copper gold mine and one in which rumours of development diffuse through a rural social network as yet unaffected by any actual or planned capital investments The analyses all demonstrate that questions around land leadership and information are central to the current and future social profile of local inequality in all its facets Subject Catalog Library of Congress, Cricket, Kirikiti and Imperialism in Samoa, 1879-1939 Benjamin Sacks, 2019-10-10 This book considers how Samoans embraced and reshaped the English game of cricket recasting it as a distinctively Samoan pastime kirikiti Starting with cricket's introduction to the islands in 1879 it uses both cricket and kirikiti to trace six decades of contest between and within the categories of colonisers and colonised How and why did Samoans adapt and appropriate the imperial game How did officials missionaries colonists soldiers and those with mixed foreign and Samoan heritage understand and respond to the real and symbolic challenges kirikiti presented And how did Samoans use both games to navigate foreign colonialism s By investigating these questions Benjamin Sacks suggests alternative frameworks for conceptualising sporting transfer and adoption and advances understandings of how power politics and identity were manifested through sport in Samoa and across the globe

Islands, Islanders and the World Tim Bayliss-Smith, Richard Bedford, Harold Brookfield, 2006-11-02 Fiji is a country whose recent political instability can be directly traced to its distinctive colonial and post colonial experience For one particular region of Fiji the authors examine the environmental social and economic aspects of this experience at scales ranging from national and regional to island village and household Discussions in Third World geography regional economics and development planning have been full of rhetoric about underdevelopment centre periphery relations and dependency but seldom are the actual processes which give rise to these phenomena examined in detail In this book the authors explore in depth the interrelations between the island landscape the cultural geography of the islanders and the intrusive values and opportunities of the market economy Some important lessons are to be learnt from the gap between what might be predicted from abstract theories of development and what is actually happening in the real world of politicians planners farmers and fishermen

Politics, Property and Law in the Philippine Uplands Melanie Wiber, 1993 The Ibaloi village of Kabayan Poblacion combines a subsistence agricultural economy with a market economy that has grown up as a result of subsequent waves of colonization The Spanish arrived in the sixteenth century following the trail of gold and slave bearing Chinese trade junks and were followed in 1898 by the Americans The Ibaloi who were gold miners and traders cattle barons and vegetable producers have since then come to be known as an Hispanicized uplands people acculturated to Western ways and struggling to come to grips with new economic realities This book examines the Ibaloi property system and demonstrates that the changes which have taken place since the Spanish arrival were complex and had numerous directions and relationships many of them steered by the nature of Ibaloi society itself others by the Spanish and still others by the resources of Benguet Province What began as a study of the Ibaloi property system rapidly became an exercise in understanding developments over time in social stratification ritual and law Wiber s research has led her to challenge the dependency theory of legal pluralism whereby peripheral zones are forced into economic dependency by having to exist within two legal structures their own and another imposed by a central power zone in favour of the social science view of legal pluralism Thus all heterogeneous societies experience legal pluralism but in different and individual ways as people have a tendency to manipulate the law to their own advantage She also takes issue with the narrowness of current anthropological terms relating to property systems and whether they are applicable to non Western societies and argues for a reorientation of anthropology to end the tendency to generate simplistic models of property kinship and law Interpreting Corruption Peter Larmour, 2012-03-31 Corruption is a popular topic in the Pacific Islands. Politicians are accused of it and campaign against it. Fiji's coup leaders vowed to clean it up. Several countries have leadership codes designed to reduce corruption and others have created specialized anti corruption agencies. Donors, the World Bank and NGOs such as Transparency International have made it an international issue. Yet there is often disagreement about what constitutes corruption and how seriously it matters. What some view as corrupt may be regarded as harmless by others. Existing laws have proved difficult to enforce and seem out of step with public opinion which is often very suspicious of corrupt behavior among island elites. As well as talk there is silence. People fear the consequences of complaining. The dangers of anti corruption campaigns became apparent during the cleanup following Fiji's 2006 coup. So what counts as corruption in the Pacific and what causes it? How much is really going on? How can we measure it? What types are present? Are gifts really bribes? Is culture an excuse for corruption? Is politics in particular democracy intrinsically corrupt? In clear and concise language this work attempts to answer these questions. The author takes a comparative approach drawing on economics, law, political science and anthropology as well as literature and poetry from the region. He looks at Transparency International's studies of National Integrity Systems and at newer research including events since the Fiji coup. Interpreting Corruption is a highly accessible and approachable look at an age old problem. Those interested in the Pacific Islands and public integrity will find it remarkably comprehensive as will students and scholars of anthropology, sociology and political studies.
