and Michel Foucault announced the death of the author several decades ago critics have been slow to abandon the idea of the solitary writer Bette London maintains that this notion has blinded us to the reality that writing is seldom an individual activity and that it has led us to overlook both the frequency with which women authors have worked together and the significance of their collaborative undertakings as a form of professional activity In Writing Double the first full length treatment of women's literary partnerships she goes to the heart of issues surrounding authorial identity What is an author Which forms of authorship are sanctioned and which forms marginalized Which of these forms have particularly attracted women Such questions are central to London's analysis of the challenge that women's literary collaboration presents to accepted notions of authorship Focusing on British texts from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries she considers a fascinating variety of works by largely noncanonical and in some instances highly unconventional authors from the enormously popular novels composed by writing teams at the turn of the century to the Brontë juvenilia and the occult scripts of Georgie Yeats and W B Yeats to automatic writings produced by mediums purporting to be in communication with the spirit world

The Myth of an Irish Cinema Michael Patrick Gillespie, 2009-01-19 For the past seventy years the discipline of film studies has widely invoked the term national cinema Such a concept suggests a unified identity with distinct cultural narratives As the current debate over the meaning of nation and nationalism has made thoughtful readers question the term its application to the field of film studies has become the subject of recent interrogation In The Myth of an Irish Cinema Michael Patrick Gillespie presents a groundbreaking challenge to the traditional view of filmmaking contesting the existence of an Irish national cinema Given the social economic and cultural complexity of contemporary Irish identity Gillespie argues filmmakers can no longer present Irishness as a monolithic entity The book is arranged thematically with chapters exploring cinematic representation of the middle class urban life rural life religion and politics Offering close readings of Irish themed films Gillespie identifies a variety of interpretative approaches based on the diverse elements that define national character Covering a wide range of films from John Ford's The Quiet Man and Kirk Jones's Waking Ned Devine to Bob Quinn's controversial Budawanny and The Bishop's Story The Myth of an Irish Cinema signals a paradigm shift in the field of film studies and promises to reinvigorate dialogue on the subject of national cinema

Making Ireland Irish Eric G. E. Zuelow, 2009-03-01 From the dark shadow of civil war to the pastel painted towns of today Making Ireland Irish provides a sweeping account of the evolution of the Irish tourist industry over the twentieth century Drawing on an extensive array of previously untapped or underused sources Eric G E Zuelow examines how a small group of tourism advocates inspired by tourist development movements in countries such as France and Spain worked tirelessly to convince their Irish compatriots that tourism was the secret to Ireland's success Over time tourism went from being a national joke to a national interest Men and women from across Irish society joined in eager to help shape their country and culture for visitors eyes The result was Ireland as it is depicted today a land of blue skies smiling faces pastel towns natural beauty ancient history and timeless traditions With lucid prose and vivid detail Zuelow explains how careful planning transformed Irish towns and villages from grey and unattractive to bright and inviting sanitized Irish history to avoid offending Ireland's largest tourist market the English and supplanted traditional rural fairs revolving around muddy animals and featuring sexually suggestive ceremonies with new family friendly festivals and events filling today's tourist calendar By challenging existing notions that the Irish tourist product is either timeless or the consequence of colonialism Zuelow demonstrates that the development of tourist imagery and Irish national identity was not the result of a handful of elites or a postcolonial legacy but rather the product of an extended discussion that ultimately involved a broad cross section of society both inside and outside Ireland Tourism he argues played a vital role in making Ireland Irish
