Next 500 Years:

The Next 500 Years Christopher E. Mason, 2022-04-12 An argument that we have a moral duty to explore other planets and solar systems because human life on Earth has an expiration date Inevitably life on Earth will come to an end whether by climate disaster cataclysmic war or the death of the sun in a few billion years To avoid extinction we will have to find a new home planet perhaps even a new solar system to inhabit In this provocative and fascinating book Christopher Mason argues that we have a moral duty to do just that As the only species aware that life on Earth has an expiration date we have a responsibility to act as the shepherd of life forms not only for our species but for all species on which we depend and for those still to come by accidental or designed evolution Mason argues that the same capacity for ingenuity that has enabled us to build rockets and land on other planets can be applied to redesigning biology so that we can sustainably inhabit those planets And he lays out a 500 year plan for undertaking the massively ambitious project of reengineering human genetics for life on other worlds As they are today our frail human bodies could never survive travel to another habitable planet Mason describes the toll that long term space travel took on astronaut Scott Kelly who returned from a year on the International Space Station with changes to his blood bones and genes Mason proposes a ten phase 500 year program that would engineer the genome so that humans can tolerate the extreme environments of outer space with the ultimate goal of achieving human settlement of new solar systems He lays out a roadmap of which solar systems to visit first and merges biotechnology philosophy and genetics to offer an unparalleled vision of the universe to come

The World According to Cycles Samuel A. Schreiner,2009-08-18 Like most of humankind s great theories the cyclical view of the universe is at once elegant in its simplicity and utterly persuasive. Scholars, pundits, and experts in all walks of life, from Carl Jung to Arthur Schlesinger and from Paul Volcker to Lee Iacocca, proclaim the validity of cycles. In this fascinating work, Samuel A. Schreiner Jr. spells out in layperson's terms how to look for patterns in unpredictable environments and how to spot the recurring forces that can predict changes in one's health, moods, and relationships in financial investments, the weather, politics, and the state of the world. Incorporating over fifty years of research on hundreds of different cycles by scientists affiliated with the Foundation for the Study of Cycles, The World According to Cycles enables readers to recognize many naturally recurring patterns in their daily lives. Scientists affiliated with the Foundation have correctly predicted such events as the 1987 stock market crash, a killer earthquake in Armenia, and the 1988 U.S. presidential election. The World According to Cycles will help readers develop the ability to predict a wide variety of occurrences so they can apply a greater understanding of the rhythms of everyday existence to their personal relationships, emotional well-being, employer-employee relations, and judgment and decision making in business and finance.

Review of the MEPAG Report on Mars Special Regions

European Science Foundation, European Space Sciences Committee, National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Space Studies Board, Committee to Review the MEPAG Report on Mars Special Regions, 2016-01-15. Planetary protection is a guiding principle in the design of an interplanetary mission aiming to prevent biological contamination of both the target celestial body and the Earth. The protection of high-priority science goals, the search for life, and the understanding of the Martian organic environment may be compromised if Earth microbes carried by spacecraft are grown and spread on Mars. This has led to the definition of Special Regions on Mars where strict planetary protection measures have to be applied before a spacecraft can enter these areas. At NASA's request, the community-based Mars Exploration Program Analysis Group (MEPAG) established the Special Regions Science Analysis Group (SR-SAG2) in October 2013 to examine the quantitative definition of a Special Region and proposed modifications to it as necessary based upon the latest scientific results. Review of the MEPAG Report on Mars Special Regions reviews the conclusions and recommendations contained in MEPAG's SR-SAG2 report and assesses their consistency with current understanding of both the Martian environment and the physical and chemical limits for the survival and propagation of microbial and other life on Earth. This report provides recommendations for an update of the planetary protection requirements for Mars Special Regions.
