The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,1993 A Dictionary of Sporting Artists Mary Ann Wingfield,1992 This text presents a historical and alphabetical record of painters of sport over the last 300 years It covers a wide subject area over 200 actively played sports throughout the period studied and some 7 000 artists The Idol in the Age of Art Rebecca Zorach,2017-07-05 After 1500 as Catholic Europe fragmented into warring sects evidence of a pagan past came newly into view and travelers to distant places encountered deeply unfamiliar visual cultures it became ever more pressing to distinguish between the sacred image and its opposite the idol Historians and philosophers have long attended to Reformation charges of idolatry the premise for image breaking but only very recently have scholars begun to consider the ways that the idol occasioned the making no less than the destruction The present book focuses on how idols and ideas about them matter for the history of early modern objects produced around the globe especially those created in the context of an exchange or confrontation between an us and a them Ranging widely within the early modern period the volume contributes to the project of globalizing the study of European art bringing the continent's commercial colonial antiquarian and religious histories into dialogue Its studies of crosses statues on columns wax ex votos ivories prints maps manuscripts fountains banners and New World gold all frame Western art simultaneously as an idea and as a collection of real things arguing that it was through the idol that object makers and writers came to terms with what it was that art should be and do Why Art Photography? Lucy Soutter, 2013 Contemporary art photography is paradoxical Anyone can look at it and form an opinion about what they see yet it represents critical positions that only a small minority of well informed viewers can usually access This book provides an introduction to the ideas behind today's striking photographic images Cutting a Figure Richard J. Powell, 2008 Examining portraits of black people over the past two centuries Cutting a Figure argues that these images should be viewed as a distinct category of portraiture that differs significantly from depictions of people with other racial and ethnic backgrounds The difference Richard Powell contends lies in the social capital that stems directly from the black subject's power to subvert dominant racist representations by evincing such traits as self composure self adornment and self imagining Powell forcefully supports this argument with evidence drawn from a survey of nineteenth century portraits in depth case studies of the postwar fashion model Donyale Luna and the contemporary portraitist Barkley L Hendricks and insightful analyses of images created since the late 1970s Along the way he discusses major artists such as Fr d ric Bazille John Singer Sargent James Van Der Zee and David Hammons alongside such overlooked producers of black visual culture as the Tonka and Nike corporations Combining previously unpublished images with scrupulous archival research Cutting a Figure illuminates the ideological nature of the genre and the centrality of race and cultural identity in understanding modern and contemporary portraiture Books Out-of-print , 1986 Art After Appropriation John C. Welchman, 2001 A thought provoking series of essays provides the first detailed overview of art and the art world in the late 1980s and through the 1990s Painters in the Northern Counties of England and Wales Dennis Child, 2002
