cosmos Andrew Hicks argues that sound and the harmonious coordination of sounds sources and listeners has always been an integral part of the history of studying the cosmos Composing the World charts one constellation of musical metaphors analogies and expressive modalities embedded within a late ancient and medieval cosmological discourse that of a cosmos animated and choreographed according to a specifically musical aesthetic The specific historical terrain of Hicks discussion centers upon the world of twelfth century philosophy and from there he offers a new intellectual history of the role of harmony in medieval cosmological discourse a discourse which itself focused on the reception and development of Platonism Hicks illuminates how a cosmological aesthetics based on the music of the spheres both governed the moral physical and psychic equilibrium of the human and assured the coherence of the universe as a whole With a rare convergence of musicological philosophical and philological rigor Hicks presents a narrative tour through medieval cosmology with reflections on important philosophical movements along the way raising connections to Cartesian dualism Uexküll's theoretical biology and Deleuze and Guattari's musically inspired language of milieus and de territorialization Hicks ultimately suggests that the models of musical cosmology popular in late antiquity and the twelfth century are relevant to our modern philosophical and scientific undertakings Impeccably researched and beautifully written Composing the World will resonate with a variety of readers and it encourages us to rethink the role of music and sound within our greater understanding of the universe
