Psychiatric Nursing Skills Graham Dexter, Michael Wash, 2013-12-01 In this book we have attempted to identify skills which are needed by the psychiatric nurse and in doing so to identify a body of knowledge unique to the professional psychiatric nurse The book has been written to demonstrate the basis of a skills approach for both the experienced and the inexperienced nurse to build upon for we believe that psychiatric nurses due to both their training and their particular mixture of interests are well equipped to be in the forefront of psychiatry as a developing art and science We hope that this book in some small way helps this development Some of the more recent advances in psychiatric nursing have been reinforced by the publication of a training syllabus for mental nurses English and Welsh National Boards 1982 This document highlights the need for a change from a medical model to a social model and from a task oriented learning experience to a skills approach We have attempted to reflect this change in emphasis by including such aspects as personal development and self aware ness human sexuality the nursing process and counselling skills

Phobic and Obsessive-Compulsive Disorders Paul M.G. Emmelkamp, 2012-12-06 In the last decade the literature of phobic and obsessive compulsive disorders has increased enormously In view of this explosive growth it becomes increasingly difficult for the practitioner to keep abreast of important developments that have led to significant changes in treatment procedures The purpose of this volume is to present a critical account of the current status of theory research and practice in the field of phobic and obsessive compulsive disorders More specifically this book attempts to bridge the gap between theory laboratory investigation and application For purposes of clarity the volume has been divided into several parts Parts I and II provide it is hoped a reasonably comprehensive account of the theory and research relevant to the etiology assessment and treatment of these disorders Part I deals with phobic disorders and Part II with obsessive compulsive disorders The third part of the text is devoted to the clinical management of these disorders The opening chapter deals with phenomenology classification and prevalence of the various disorders In addition the status of analog research vis a vis clinical research is discussed The chapters on etiology discuss the many variables inherent in a comprehensive theory of the development of phobic Chapter 2 and obsessive compulsive behavior Chapter 6 An explicit effort has been made to extend the discussion beyond the boundaries of learning theory Attention is devoted to examining the contributions from other areas e.g biological cognitive psychoanalytical

Mastery of Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder Edna B. Foa,Michael J. Kozak,2004-11-11 This program has at its foundation the use of ritual prevention and prolonged actual and imaginable exposure exercises Therapists will learn the best methods for assessing OCD and formulating a treatment program tailored to their client s particular OCD symptoms Sample lists of exposure items are provided for fear of contamination fear of supernatural harm and fear of causing harm to self and others by acts of negligence This Therapist Guide is designed to help psychotherapists in assessing and treating obsessive compulsive disorder OCD It is divided into three sections In the first section a summary of the symptoms of OCD and methods for assessing the disorder are presented In the second section the relative efficacy of the available treatments and how to arrive at treatment recommendations for individuals with OCD who seek treatment are discussed In the third section a guide to cognitive behavioral treatment by exposure and ritual prevention is provided Also in this section the components of the treatment procedures whose efficacy has been experimentally documents are described and illustrated as well as those aspects of their practical application that inhabit experimentally uncharted territory of clinical wisdom and artistry

The Interface Between the Psychodynamic and Behavioral Therapies Judd Marmor, 2012-12-06 It is sobering to reflect that it has been nearly fifty years since Thomas French's article on the Interrelations between Psychoanalysis and the Experimental Work of Pavlov representing the first psychoanalyst to bridge the gap between the theories of conditioning was published In his paper French clearly delineated the manner and directions in which these two points of view might enrich each other Regrettably his openness to new ideas has not been characteristic of most schools of psychiatry thought which have tended instead to develop an unfortunate degree of insularity This has occurred despite the obvious reality that the bio social psychological nature of man is such that no one theory or discipline is likely in the foreseeable future to explain much less predict all of the complexities of human behavior All too often disputing theoreticians like the fabled blind men describing the elephant assume that the whole is just a gigantic magnification of the parts with which they are in contact When treatment strategies are extrapolated from such narrow views more often than not they fail to achieve the parsimony of effort the breadth of application and the maximum of efficiency that one would hope for In our opinion it is impossible adequately to conceptualize personality development symptom formation or responses to psychotherapy without taking into consideration theories of conflict as well as those of learning
