Photography, Modern Architecture, and Design Vitra Design Museum, 2005-01-01 Examining the photographic collection that Alberto Sartoris donated to the Swiss federal government this text throws light on a poorly understood aspect of 20th century architecture namely the mechanisms behind the creation and diffusion of the image of modern architecture

Photography, Architecture, and the Modern Italian Landscape Lindsay Harris, 2024-11-19 Photography Architecture and the Modern Italian Landscape explores the impact of photography at a pivotal moment in Italian architecture and culture focusing on the period between 1910 and the mid 1970s The book analyzes architectural photographs taken by Italian cultural figures who helped transform the Italian landscape into what we know today This study charts the oscillation of Italians ideas about what progress signified For example the book demonstrates that for writers and artists familiar with ancient ideas about civilization in 1910 the Roman countryside exemplified the contradictions inherent in primitivism On the one hand their photographs praised the region's primordial beauty yet their images condemned the crudeness of local living conditions More broadly it traces the history of primitivism and photography in Italy to show how cultural leaders alarm at the nation's pre-modern living conditions their aspiration to modernize them and their grasp of photography to catalyze the process helped forge the modern Italian landscape its monuments housing infrastructure and natural environments At the same time it explores a vibrant period in photographic history when the advent of photographic reproduction as a commercial process developed into a medium with its own visual style capable of shaping ideas about modernity This new image making and reproduction technology empowered Italy's cultural leaders not simply to represent the Italian landscape through photography but to determine how it developed Of interest to researchers and students from a range of disciplines modern architecture photography and Italian studies this book demonstrates the power of art to transform society and to reformulate our ideas of progress

Architecture in Nineteenth-Century Photographs Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Revealing that nineteenth century photography goes beyond the functional to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time this study proposes that each photographic image of architecture be studied both as a primary visual document and an object of aesthetic inquiry This multi-faceted approach drives Architecture in Nineteenth Century Photographs: Essays on Reading a Collection Despite three decades of post-colonial post-structuralist and gender-conscious criticism the study of architectural photography continues to privilege technical virtuosity This volume offers a thematic exploration of the material and a socio-historical examination that allows consideration of questions that have not been addressed comprehensively before in a single publication Themes include exoticism and armchair tourism the absence of women from architectural photography the role of photographs as commodities vernacular architecture and the picturesque and historic preservation urban renewal and nationalism Micheline Nilsen analyzes photographs from France and England the two countries where photography was invented and from around the world representing a corpus of over 10 000 photographs from the Janos Scholz Collection of Nineteenth Century Photographs of the Snite Museum of Art at the University of Notre Dame

buildings in an ideal moment and rarely captures what photographer Berenice Abbott called the medium's power to depict how the past jostled the present. In Beyond the Architect's Eye, Mary N. Woods expands on this range of images through a rich analysis that commingles art, amateur, and documentary photography genres usually not considered architectural but that often take the built environment as their subject. Woods explores how photographers used their built environment to capture the disparate American landscapes prior to World War II when urban and rural areas grew further apart in the face of skyscrapers, massive industrialization, and profound cultural shifts. Central to this study is the work of Alfred Stieglitz, Frances Benjamin Johnston, and Marion Post Wolcott, but Woods weaves a wider narrative that also includes Alice Austen, Gertrude Kasebier, Berenice Abbott, Margaret Bourke-White, Helen Levitt, Lisette Model, Louise Dahl Wolfe, Morgan and Marvin Smith, Eudora Welty, Samuel Gottscho Walker, Evans, Max Waldman, and others. In such disparate places as New York City, the rural South, and the burgeoning metropolis of Miami, these unconventional architectural photographers observed buildings as deeply connected to their context. Whereas Stieglitz captured New York as the quintessential modern urban landscape in the period, the South was its opposite, a land supposedly frozen in the past. Yet just as this myth of the Old South crystallized in photographs like Johnston's, a New South shaped by popular culture and modern industry arose. Miami embodied both of these visions. In Wolcott's work, agricultural fields where stoop labor persisted were juxtaposed with Art Deco hotels, a popular modernism of the machine age that remade Miami Beach into a miniaturized Manhattan on the beach. Beyond the Architect's Eye is a groundbreaking study that melds histories of American art, cities, and architecture with visual studies of landscape photography and cultural geography. Photographic Architecture in the Twentieth Century Claire Zimmerman, 2014-05-01. One hundred years ago, architects found in the medium of photography so good at representing a building's lines and planes, a necessary way to promote their practices. It soon became apparent, however, that photography did more than reproduce what it depicted. It altered both subject and reception, as architecture in the twentieth century was enlisted as a form of mass communication. Claire Zimmerman reveals how photography profoundly influenced architectural design in the past century, playing an instrumental role in the evolution of modern architecture. Her picture anthropology demonstrates how buildings changed irrevocably and substantially through their interaction with photography, beginning with the emergence of mass-printed photographically illustrated texts in Germany before World War II and concluding with the postwar age of commercial advertising. In taking up photographic architecture, Zimmerman considers two interconnected topics: first, architectural photography and its circulation, and second, the impact of photography on architectural design. She describes how architectural photographic protocols developed in Germany in the early twentieth century, expanded significantly in the wartime and postwar diaspora, and accelerated dramatically with the advent of postmodernism. In modern architecture, she argues, how buildings looked and how photographs made them look overlapped in consequential ways. In architecture and photography, the modernist concepts that were visible to the largest number over the widest terrain, with the greatest clarity carried the day This richly illustrated work shows for the first time how new ideas and new buildings arose from the interplay of photography and architecture transforming how we see the world and how we act on it The Le Corbusier Galaxy Martina Hrabová, 2025-03-31 Drawing on the author's discovery of an unknown long forgotten collection of photographs in an Indian ashram this book offers an exciting new view of the international community of young architects who served as Le Corbusier's assistants in the inter war years A collection of some 500 snapshots assembled by the Czech architect František Sammer between 1931 and 1939 had been stored unnoticed for more than 70 years in an unlikely location the Sri Aurobindo Ashram in Pondicherry India Sammer was one of Le Corbusier's closest assistants from the early 1930s Later Sammer worked in the Soviet Union Japan and India During and after his time in Paris he personally took or collected these photographs which he then deposited at the ashram when he left to fight in World War II The images offer a remarkable view of the international community of people who worked in Le Corbusier's atelier in the 1930s Among those featured in the photographs are Charlotte Perriand Pierre Jeanneret Jane West the first American woman to work for Le Corbusier Gordon Stephenson Antonin Raymond Junzo Sakakura and Josep Lluís Sert Given the travels and international background of these individuals the photographs are from different countries around the world including the USSR England France Czech Republic Greece USA Tennessee Montana California and New Mexico Japan and India The Le Corbusier Galaxy successfully brings together serious archival research with a fascinating narrative and it captures the human dimension of modern architecture which is all too often neglected in today's accounts Without and Within Mark Pimlott, 2007
