Women and Photography in Africa Darren Newbury, Lorena Rizzo, Kylie Thomas, 2020-10-26 This collection explores women's multifaceted historical and contemporary involvement in photography in Africa. The book offers new ways of thinking about the history of photography exploring through case studies the complex and historically specific articulations of gender and photography on the continent and attending to the challenge and potential of contemporary feminist and postcolonial engagements with the medium. The volume is organised in thematic sections that present the lives and work of historically significant yet overlooked women photographers as well as the work of acclaimed contemporary African women photographers such as Hla Ammar Fatoumata Diabat Lebohang Kganye and Zanele Muholi. The book offers critical reflections on the politics of gendered knowledge production and the production of racialised and gendered identities and alternative and subaltern subjectivities. Several chapters illuminate how contemporary African women photographers, collectors and curators are engaging with colonial photographic archives to contest stereotypical forms of representation and produce powerful counter histories. Raising critical questions about race, gender and the history of photography, the collection provides a model for interdisciplinary feminist approaches for scholars and students of art history, visual studies and African history.

Adjusting the Lens Sigrid Lien, Hilde Wallem Nielssen, 2021-11-15 Adjusting the Lens explores the role of photography in contemporary renegotiations of the past and in Indigenous art activism. Through moving and powerful case studies contributors analyze photographic practices and heritage related to Indigenous communities in Canada, Australia, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Finland and the United States. In the process they call attention to how Indigenous people are using old photographs in new ways to empower themselves, revitalize community identity and decolonize the colonial record. The original research presented in Adjusting the Lens offers a transnational perspective on this emerging field in Indigenous photography studies. It is an exciting collection that challenges old ways of thinking and meaningfully advances the crucially important project of reclamation.

Photography Theory in Historical Perspective Hilde Van Gelder, Helen Westgeest, 2011-04-25 Photography Theory in Historical Perspective Case Studies from Contemporary Art aims to contribute to the understanding of the multifaceted and complex character of the photographic medium by dealing with various case studies selected from photographic practices in contemporary art discussed in the context of views and theories of photography from its inception. It uses case studies to explain photographic practices in contemporary art and place them in the context of theory. It presents current debates on theory of photography through comparisons to research of other visual media.

Imaging History Bruno

Vandermeulen, Danny Veys, 2011 In archaeology photography is mainly used as a technique for gathering data and evidence Within the framework of the research project in site specific photography revisited the relationship between photography and archaeology or broader history is explored How do photographers visualize history What is the importance of place particularly the place that remains after the event took place How do photographers or artists use photography to depict the past when time has become past time These articles and portfolios explore both on practical and theoretical level how history can be captured The research project is an attempt to redefine the traditional relationship between archaeology and photography in order to produce new forms of image making more adapted to contemporary visual culture The project considers photography as a practice in which a picture is shaped and constructed by the photographer not a practice in which a picture is mechanically taken
