Photorealism At The Millennium:

Photorealism At the Millennium Louis K. Meisel, Linda Chase, 2002-10-01 In the early 1970s Meisel began documenting the works of the original thirteen Photorealists Many of these are still making significant contributions as evidenced for example by Richard Estes's complex street scenes and waterscapes Tom Blackwell's dazzling reflective storefronts and John Salt's wistful rusting automobiles all represented here Although always approached from a Photorealist point of view the images depicted by these artists are staggeringly varied Ralph Goings's diners Richard McLean's horses Linda Bacon's toys Randy Dudley's industrial vistas Ron Kleemann's Thanksgiving Day parade balloons David Parrish's pop icons Wherever possible the complete works made by the artist in the 1990s are illustrated and the rest are listed Such a comprehensive approach makes this volume invaluable to scholars collectors and art historians

The Aesthetics of Violence in Contemporary Media Gwyn Symonds, 2011-11-03 The topic of violence in the media seems as inundated as can be Countless studies and research projects have been conducted mostly to show its negative effects on society What Gwyneth Symonds proposes though takes this significant topic one step further studying the aesthetics of media violence By defining key terms like the graphic nature and authenticity of violent representations and discussing how those definitions are linked to actual violence outside the film and television screen Symonds broadens the arena of study Engagingly written The Aesthetics of Violence in Contemporary Media fills an important gap Symonds uses existing studies for the empirical audience reception data together with discussions of the different representations of violence to look at violence in the media as an art form in of itself By looking at The Simpsons Bowling for Columbine and Norma Khouri's Forbidden Love just to name a few Symonds cross analyzes violence in multiple media to see their affective role in audience reception an important aspect when discussing media The book strikes a balance between the readers need to see how theory matches what actually happens in the texts in question and the demands of a theoretical overview
