

The Photosynthetic Reaction Center

- The three-dimensional structure of a photosynthetic reaction center of a purple bacterium was the first high-resolution structure to be obtained for a membrane-bound protein. The molecule contains four subunits: L, M, H, and a cytochrome. Subunits L and M bind the photosynthetic pigments, and the cytochrome binds four heme groups. The L (yellow) and the M (red) subunits each have five trans-membrane α -helices A-E. The H subunit (green) has one such trans-membrane helix, AH, and the cytochrome (blue) has none. Approximate membrane boundaries are shown. The photosynthetic pigments and the heme groups appear in black.

Very High Frequency (VHF) ESR/EPR Oleg Grinberg, Lawrence J. Berliner, 2013-11-09 The field of Very High Frequency EPR VHF EPR or sometimes called Very High Field EPR conveniently also abbreviated as VHF EPR has blossomed during the past decade especially after the original pioneering work of Ya S Lebedev and his group at the Institute of Chemical Physics Russian Academy of Sciences in Moscow Although Lebedev suffered heavily under the economic constraints of the communist Soviet Union and then succumbed to cancer at the peak of his scientific career his groundbreaking work from the 1970 s is still considered today to be the gold standard by researchers practicing EPR at high magnetic fields A stimulus for the production of this book is the legacy of Yakov Levedev in his students now residing in academic positions in the US and elsewhere The aim of this book is to highlight the state of this growing field This is an attempt to cover the full scope of VHF EPR in a single volume The idea for this volume came to the editors at the 2001 Rocky Mountain Analytical Conference during the 24th International EPR Symposium chaired by Sandra and Gareth Eaton VHF EPR was presented as an independent research field at a workshop organized by LC Brunel and supported by the National High Magnetic Field Laboratory a National Science Foundation funded facility at Florida State University

Photosynthetic Reaction Center Johann Deisenhofer, J. R. Norris, 2013-10-22 The availability of the photosynthetic reaction center s structure at an atomic resolution of less than three angstroms has revolutionized research This protein is the first integral membrane protein whose structure has been determined with such precision Each volume of the Photosynthetic Reaction Center contains original research methods and reviews Together these volumes cover our current understanding of how photosynthesis converts light energy into stored chemical energy Volume II details the electron transfer process it is oriented to the physical aspects of photosynthesis It thus primarily discusses bacterial photosynthesis and model compounds Volume II features the very complex and rapidly evolving issues associated with the theory of electron transfer in the bacterial reaction center and explores picosecond and femtosecond spectroscopy This volume also covers holeburning spectroscopy primary events of bacterial photosynthesis with emphasis on the application of large external electric fields designed to manipulate and probe mechanisms of the initial chemistry the role of accessory carotenoid pigments the techniques of infrared spectroscopy and magnetic resonance as applied to photosynthesis and the interplay between natural and artificial photosynthesis energy into stored chemical energy Volume I describes the chemistry and biochemistry of photosynthesis including green plant photosynthesis it is devoted to the overall features and implications of the bacterial reaction center for green plant research It features a new description of the structure of the reaction center followed by coverage of the antenna and light functions Volume I also details new manipulations of the reaction center including chemical and genetic modifications It describes how the reaction center provides reducing power via electron transfer chemistry coupled to proton uptake and release coupling of electron transport between the oxidized reaction center and the aqueous periplasm and the general operation of membrane bound proteins Additionally this volume contains five chapters detailing facets of green plant photosynthesis important for future research Brookhaven Symposia in Biology Brookhaven National Laboratory,1948
