Hrdlička, 1919      A Companion to the Etruscans Sinclair Bell, Alexandra A. Carpino, 2016-02-23 This new collection presents a rich selection of innovative scholarship on the Etruscans a vibrant independent people whose distinct civilization flourished in central Italy for most of the first millennium BCE and whose artistic social and cultural traditions helped shape the ancient Mediterranean European and Classical worlds Includes contributions from an international cast of both established and emerging scholars Offers fresh perspectives on Etruscan art and culture including analysis of the most up to date research and archaeological discoveries Reassesses and evaluates traditional topics like architecture wall painting ceramics and sculpture as well as new ones such as textile archaeology while also addressing themes that have yet to be thoroughly investigated in the scholarship such as the obesus etruscus the function and use of jewelry at different life stages Greek and Roman topoi about the Etruscans the Etruscans reception of ponderation and more Counters the claim that the Etruscans were culturally inferior to the Greeks and Romans by emphasizing fields where the Etruscans were either technological or artistic pioneers and by reframing similarities in style and iconography as examples of Etruscan agency and reception rather than as a deficit of local creativity      The Long Morning of Medieval Europe Jennifer R. Davis, Michael McCormick, 2008 Scholars from Europe and North America convened at Harvard University in 2004 for an interdisciplinary conference aimed at Rethinking the Early Middle Ages What are the issues and techniques of research defining the field today and what will they be tomorrow      The Foragers of Point Hope Charles E. Hilton, Benjamin M. Auerbach, Libby W. Cowgill, 2014-07-24 On the edge of the Arctic Ocean above the Arctic Circle the prehistoric settlements at Point Hope Alaska represent a truly remarkable accomplishment in human biological and cultural adaptations Presenting a set of anthropological analyses on the human skeletal remains and cultural material from the Ipiutak and Tigara archaeological sites The Foragers of Point Hope sheds new light on the excavations from 1939-41 which provided one of the largest sets of combined biological and cultural materials of northern latitude peoples in the world A range of material items indicated successful human foraging strategies in this harsh Arctic environment They also yielded enigmatic artifacts indicative of complex human cultural life filled with dense ritual and artistic expression These remnants of past human activity contribute to a crucial understanding of past foraging lifeways and offer important insights into the human condition at the extreme edges of the globe      Social Bioarchaeology Sabrina C. Agarwal, Bonnie A. Glencross, 2011-03-21 Illustrates new methodological directions in analyzing human social and biological variation Offers a wide array of research on past populations around the globe Explains the central features of bioarchaeological research by key researchers and established experts around the world      Wild Things Frederick W. F. Foulds, Helen C. Drinkall, Angela R. Perri, David T.G. Clinnick, James W.P. Walker, 2014-11-30 Recently Palaeolithic and Mesolithic archaeology has been breaking boundaries worldwide Finds such as the Mesolithic house at Howick the sequencing of the Neanderthal genome and the recently discovered footprints at Happisburgh all serve to indicate how archaeologists in these fields are truly at the cutting edge of understanding humanity's past This volume celebrates this trend by focusing on recent advances in the study of the Palaeolithic and Mesolithic. With contributors from a diverse range of backgrounds it allows for a greater degree of interdisciplinary discourse than is often the case as the Palaeolithic and Mesolithic are generally split apart. Wild Things brings together contributions from major researchers and early career specialists detailing research taking place across the British Isles, France, Portugal, Russia, the Levant and Europe as a whole, providing a cross section of the exciting range of research being conducted. By combining papers from both these periods it is hoped that dialogue between practitioners of Palaeolithic and Mesolithic archaeology can be further encouraged. Topics include the chronology of the Mid Upper Palaeolithic of Europe, Russia, territorial use of Alpine high altitude areas by Mesolithic hunter gatherers, discussing the feasibility of reconstructing Neanderthal demography to examine their extinction, the funerary contexts from the Mesolithic burials at Muge, the discovery of further British Upper Palaeolithic parietal art at Cathole Cave, exploitation of both lithics and fauna in Palaeolithic France and an analysis of Mesolithic Neolithic trade in Europe.

Dental Perspectives on Human Evolution Shara E. Bailey, Jean-Jacques Hublin, 2007-08-20

The objective of the volume is to bring together in one collection the most innovative dental anthropological research as it pertains to the study of hominid evolution. In the past few decades both the numbers of hominid dental fossils and the sophistication of the techniques used to analyze them have increased substantially. The book's contributions focus on dental morphometrics, growth and development, diet and dental evolution.

Biological Affinity in Forensic Identification of Human Skeletal Remains Gregory E. Berg, Sabrina C. Ta'ala, 2014-12-13

Ancestry determination in the identification of unknown remains can be a challenge for forensic scientists and anthropologists especially when the remains available for testing are limited. There are various techniques for the assessment of ancestry ranging from traditional to new microbiological and computer assisted methods.

Biological Affinity Jean-Jacques Hublin, Shannon P. McPherron, 2012-03-30

Over the last decade Africa has taken a central position in the search for the timing and mechanisms leading to modern human origins and the rich archaeological and human paleontological record of North Africa is critical to this search. In this volume we bring together new research into the archaeology, human paleontology, chronology and environmental context of modern human origins in North Africa. The result is a volume that better integrates the North African record into the modern human origins debate and at the same time highlights the research questions that are currently the focus of continued work in the area.

Race in Education Gerhard Mare, 2019-05-31

There is global evidence that the ghostly notions of essentialist differences between human groups continue to haunt in various forms. People draw upon ideas of religion, race, ethnicity, gender and sexuality and nation to draw distinctions. Racism, xenophobia, sexism and right wing populism are ongoing and increasing phenomena. In addition, genetic science has introduced new forms of evidence which lends itself to misuse to confirm the common sense perceptions. The valuable contributions of the authors in this publication not only warn against such notions but offer ways of exploring, exposing and challenging the ghosts and the fears engendered through their contemporary forms
